Dollar Falls To New Low With Bonds In Nose Dive

Treasury, Budget Heads Showing Alarm at Declines.

Conflict Over Gold Policy Intensified

Advisers of President Continue Divided on Purchase Plan.

By Elliott Thurston.

A rapid fall of the dollar against foreign currencies, accompanied by a sharp drop in Government bonds, served yesterday to intensify the conflict within the Administration over President Roosevelt's monetary policy.

Treasury, Federal Reserve and Budget officials were disturbed by the day's developments, though the gold-price manipulators, headed by Prof. Warren, of Cornell, felt that the foreign gold buying and domestic gold price boosting procedure was beginning to take effect in driving up commodity prices. Hence what to one group of advisers were adverse signs were, to the commodity-dollar advocates, evidences of achievement in producing higher commodity prices.

Not only were Treasury and Reserve authorities uneasy over the drop of as much as $15 per $1,000 bond in Government securities, but they pondered the possibility of foreign counter-action, if not outright reprisals, to offset the sharp drop of the dollar in terms of the pound, franc, guilder, &c.

Jones Silent on Purchases.

Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, who participated in another raising of domestic prices for newly mined gold during the day—the latest new high being $33.15 an ounce, 10 cents above the day before—declined to shed any new light on the extent of foreign gold purchases, which are being conducted secretly through the medium of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, but announced that a total of 213,000 ounces of newly mined domestic gold has already been bought for about $6,500,000.

Accordingly, it was impossible to tell whether actual buying of foreign gold was a factor in yesterday's precipitate fall of the dollar abroad to levels unapproached since the uncertain war days of 1914.

In any case, the fear that the dollar was going to get ever cheaper sent it so far down that the British pound would buy $5.12¼ in New York and some dealers were quoting $5.12½ to the dollar. Similarly, the dollar skidded downward against the French gold franc, the Dutch guilder, the Swiss franc. Measured in French francs the dollar was down to 62.02 per cent of parity. The Associated Press pointed out that this conformed roughly to

3,300 Parks Places Saved

Roosevelt Order Makes Jobs Permanent, Gives Many Vacations.

More than 3,300 workers in the Office of National Parks, Buildings and Reservations were cheered yesterday when President Roosevelt saved their jobs.

He issued an executive order placing the employes on a permanent, instead of temporary, basis, and automatically restoring privilege of sick and annual leave. Many now will be entitled to long-delayed vacations.

At the same time the President abolished 238 positions, but only about half of those have been filled since the unit was placed on temporary status a month ago as an economy move. The original shake-up resulted in removal of 97 other employes at the suggestion of Budget Director Douglas.

The order also authorized continuance of 646 employes, assigned to seasonal work, on a temporary basis. Their ultimate fate will be decided by A. B. Cammerer, parks director.

Interpreting the Presidential action, Interior Department officials said the parks unit now has a grand total of 4,010 employes. Units in the merged office since August 10 include the old National Park Service, office of National Parks and Public Buildings Commission.

The order is effective immediately.

Two Aged Globe Trotters On 19,000-Mile Air Trip

Miami, Fla., Nov. 9 (AP).—On a 19,000-mile flight through South and Central America, two aged Ohioans, who already have flown from England to Africa and India, left here today aboard a Pan-American Airways plane.

The gray-haired globe trotters are Burton Preston, 74, of Mansfield, Ohio, and Edward Ayres, 70, of Zanesville.

Building Code Pushed Despite Strike Threat

Federated Labor Appeals for Inclusion of the Minimum Wage Clause in Draft of Construction Agreement.

In the face of reported threats that a Nation-wide strike will tie up building activities unless the NRA revises the pending construction code to make it more acceptable to labor, the Construction League of the United States, representing building contractors, announced last night that the industry was being mobilized to demand immediate adoption of the present code.

Meanwhile, H. I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, sent a letter to members of the organization asking them to communicate their views to Gen. Johnson. He pointed out that labor interests have insisted that a minimum wage be fixed for various types of skilled labor.

Wage Scaling Charged.

The American Federation of Labor, it was learned, has appealed directly to Gen. Johnson for revision of the code, charging that certain of Johnson's assistants played into the hands of the Construction League and caused an earlier code between the A. F. of L. and legitimate contractors to be discarded.

The Construction League, A. F. of L. leaders charge, is not representative of the building construction industry and that it contains architects, railroad contractors, and even building material sales companies, and that it prevailed on some of Johnson's assistants to consider a code making for higher building material prices and lower wage scales.

Strike Threat Circulated.

Answering these charges, Carlton S. Proctor, chairman of the code committee of the professional engineers and spokesman for the league, said they were "particularly unreasonable, coming, as they do, from a representative of a minority group." His statement was addressed particularly to M. J. McDonough, president of the building trades division of the A. F. of L.

"As a matter of fact, only a portion of the building tradesmen are connected with McDonough's organization," Proctor said. "It is my impression that the largest single union among the building trades, namely the carpenters, are not affiliated with his department. Certainly he represents not more than 25 per cent of the building workers in this country."

The strike threat is contained in a letter written on the stationery of

Wallace Goes To Tell Iowa Of Loan Plan

$500,000,000 Available for Relief of Grain and Hog Farmers.

Taking with him a liberalized program for corn loans, Secretary Wallace prepared to invade the corn belt today, speaking to the Iowa legislature at Des Moines and to a farmers meeting in the same city tonight.

The corn loan program, for which Wallace has obtained $150,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, provides for lending 45 cents a bushel on corn at the farms. Added to the corn-hog reduction program, this brings the total provided to relieve corn farmers to an even $500,000,000.

The money will be lent on corn "properly stored and warehoused" providing the farmer agrees to the Agriculture Administration's corn-hog reduction program, calling for a 20 per cent reduction in corn acreage and a 25 per cent reduction in hog production.

Offers Greater Aid.

Under the original corn loan plan, farmers were to be lent 50 cents a bushel on No. 2 December corn, f. o. b. Chicago. This would have meant less than 45 cents a bushel at the farms. It would have meant that the loan varied in proportion to the farmer's distance from Chicago and in proportion to the grade of his corn.

The new corn plan will apply to States without warehousing laws as well as to those that have such laws. The original plan applied only to States with warehousing legislation.

It was estimated in Iowa alone, where nearly one-fifth of the Nation's corn is produced, the plan will make available about $45,000,000. This was based on the estimate that Iowa farmers would make loans on 20 per cent of their crop. It was said the Government

30-Year Candidate Finally Wins Post But Dies That Day

Philadelphia, Nov. 9 (AP).—For 30 years Louis J. Smith fought the Republicans in the Twenty-fourth Ward.

Although nearly blind, he was an active Democrat, ever fighting, never winning.

This year, however, the Democrats carried the ward and Smith was elected assessor. His friends carried the good news to him in a hospital where he was ill with pneumonia.

But the oath of office is not for Smith. A few hours after receiving the news he died.

McCarl Gives Low Bidder Federal Job

Late Code Signer Upheld in Decision That Scouts Idea of Quibbling.

In a decision upholding the low bidder in an NRA controversy, Comptroller General J. R. McCarl yesterday ruled that the contract for the superstructure of the New York City postoffice annex must go to the George F. Driscoll Co.

Award of the contract, involving about $4,000,000, had been held up by the Treasury Department on the grounds the Driscoll company had not signed the President's reemployment agreement or any code at the time the bids were opened on October 2. Three days later the company's agreement was received and since then it has been complying with NRA requirements.

Meanwhile, contracts for 300 trucks and 100 ambulances for use in Civilian Conservation camps were awarded yesterday by the War Department to the Chevrolet Motor Co. and the Fargo Motor Co., respectively, the low bidders in each case.

Does Not Affect Ford.

The order for the trucks is not connected with the award for 1,000 trucks, which the Agriculture Department has held up pending a decision by the Comptroller General on the eligibility of Henry Ford for Government contracts. A ruling in that case is expected in several days.

The Chevrolet price for the 300 trucks was $214,863, or $716.12 a truck, which compared with $750.54 offered in the Ford bid. The Fargo contract price was $96,834.

In the Driscoll case, McCarl ruled that because language of the public works specifications left room for doubt that a contractor must have signed before bids were opened, and because the President's purpose in restricting awards to those complying was now being served, he saw no "impelling reason" why the low bidder should not get the contract.

McCarl Against Quibbling.

The decision, although it involves compliance with NRA requirements, had little bearing on the case of Henry Ford further than McCarl's comment that "it would appear out of line with the recovery program and far afield from the high plane on which the President appealed to employers for support of his plan to deny for other that an impelling reason a low bidder of public work who has in the vital things fully cooperated with the President's plan."

The ruling is expected to lead to withdrawal of injunction proceedings filed in the District Supreme Court by the Driscoll company to prevent any other contractor getting the award.

Czarist Poet, 63, Is Awarded Nobel Prize for Literature

Stockholm, Nov. 9 (AP).—Three Nobel prize awards were made today, including the annual prize for literature given to the 63-year-old Russian author, Ivan Alexeyevich Bunin.

The 1933 award in physics was divided between Paul A. M. Dirac, Lucasian professor of mathematics at Cambridge University, England, and Prof. Erwin Schroedinger, of Austria, for their work in connection with the atomic theory.

The 1932 physics prize was awarded to Prof. Werner Heisenberg, of Leipzig, Germany, for his work on a theory of the mechanics of quantities, application of which led to the discovery of allotrophic forms of hydrogen.

Bunin, now living in France, was born October 10, 1870, the son of a Russian land owner. Among his best works are poems inspired by boyhood experiences. During the Russian civil war he was editor of a counter-revolutionary paper in the Ukraine, and later emigrated.

He won the Pushkin prize, highest academic distinction under the czar, for some of his early poetry, and again for his translation into Russian of Longfellow's "Hiawatha."

His poetry is described as impassive and of classic simplicity. His most recent work, "The Well of Days," recently was published in England.

His works include "The Village," "The Gentleman From San Francisco," "An Evening in the Spring" and "The Rose of Jericho." He also has translated some of Byron's works.

Bar Lifted On Foreign Rum Flow

White House Conference Considers Repeal Problems.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Liberalization of the present embargo against the importation of alcoholic liquors to permit the entry of supplies for medicinal purposes between now and December 5 was decided yesterday at a conference of President Roosevelt and representatives of five of the executive departments.

The conference, called to formulate the course of the Government now and after December 5, when repeal of the eighteenth amendment becomes effective, spent more than two hours surveying the liquor situation and seeking agreement on general principles to guide future action. Few definite conclusions were reached, it was said.

It was agreed that the State, Treasury, Agriculture, Justice and Commerce Departments would name representatives to a committee to work out details of a plan of action to be considered at another White House conference, probably next week.

Medicinal Liquor Only.

It was decided, however, to loosen the rigid embargo laid down some weeks ago against the importation of all liquors before repeal becomes effective. In granting licenses for liquor importations, however, Dr. James M. Doran, chief of the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol, will investigate to make certain that such liquor is necessary for medicinal purposes and that it will not be held as stocks to be offered for sale for beverage purposes after December 5.

Although there is a sizable supply of good liquor in this country, which could be used for medicinal purposes, its owners are holding it for the high prices expected after December 5, it was explained. Due to this circumstance, it was pointed out, a shortage of liquor for medicinal purposes threatens. Importation of about 250,000 gallons of various alcoholic wines and liquors during the next month was mentioned as a possibility in the conference.

Earlier in the day, Secretary of State Hull and Acting Secretary of the Treasury Acheson, in a joint statement, warned that the Volstead act and subsequent prohibition legislation continued to control the importation of liquor. They asserted that importations without a license from Dr. Doran will be subject to prosecutions until after the effective date of repeal.

To Certify Invoices.

Under treaty arrangements, shipments of liquor to the United States must be approved by American consular officers at the exporting point abroad. Consular agents will certify invoices of liquor containing more than 3.2 per cent alcohol only when a license has been issued, Secretaries Hull and Acheson explained. Thus without the issuance of a license, liquor can not be legally started to the United States prior to December 5.

As the White House meeting was going on, Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, chairman of the Finance Committee, said he proposed to call that group next month to consider proposals for increasing the present liquor taxes. He pointed

Wintry Wave Will Hit City

Mercury Seen Touching Thirty Mark Here Early Today.

A cold wave sweeping over the East last night heralded the approach of the lowest temperatures of the season in Washington today and tonight.

A low of 30 degrees was forecast by the Weather Bureau for the early hours this morning, and the mercury is expected to hover just above freezing during the day and drop again tonight.

Skies will be clear today and tomorrow, according to the Weather Bureau, and the cold wave will break somewhat tomorrow as the temperature rises slowly.

Washington's 30 degrees is still 10 above the temperature forecast for the higher sections of New England and New York, and the cold wave was expected to reach as far South as central Georgia.

Snow was predicted for the northern States east of Ohio.

The Weather Bureau's forecast of 28 degrees for early yesterday failed to materalize, the low being 32 at 4 a. m.

Map Indicates Plot To Kidnap Governor

Danville, Ind., Nov. 9 (AP).—A map, directing the way to the executive mansion in Indianapolis and giving instructions in kidnaping Gov. Paul V. McNutt for the purpose of forcing him to sign a pardon, was in the hands of authorities here today. On the map margin was written:

Litvinoff, Roosevelt Meet Today

Vital Step in Course of Recognition Believed Near.

Talk First Scheduled Yesterday Postponed at Last Minute.

By Kendall Foss.

Soviet Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff will see the President at noon today in what may prove to be a momentous step in the course of the Soviet-American recognition discussions.

The conference originally was scheduled for 5 o'clock yesterday, but was postponed at the last minute. Officials declined to give any reason for the postponement.

Litvinoff, unperturbed, spent his unexpected leisure in viewing the city. He sampled his first American soda and spent some time window-shopping. He was accompanied by his host while here, Boris Skvirsky, unofficial Soviet representative in Washington, and by Ivan Divilkovski, who made the trip from Moscow with the commissar. The trio had to keep moving, for Litvinoff was recognized frequently and crowds tended to gather.

Guest of Turkish Envoy.

In the evening Litvinoff was a dinner guest at the Turkish Embassy, where his personal friend, Ahmet Muhtar, presides as ambassador. The Turkish envoy formerly represented his government in Moscow, where he came to know Litvinoff well.

The last scheduled State Department conference with Litvinoff ended at 1 o'clock yesterday. Secretary Hull gave a luncheon at the Carlton Hotel in Litvinoff's honor following the morning talks.

In the absence of any official explanation for the sudden postponement of the afternoon conference with President Roosevelt, some quarters suggested it might be due to the fact that the President was tied up all afternoon with his liquor advisers and had no time to acquaint himself with the results of the talks at the department.

Hull Sees President.

It was known that Secretary Hull and others of the State Department who have been taking part in the Russian discussions were with the President after five.

In view of the fact that the President has a regular press conference this afternoon, it is held possible that he may utilize this opportunity to acquaint newspapermen with the results of the conferences with Litvinoff.

Others, however, appear doubtful that the negotiations will be concluded so soon. If they are to be protracted it is felt the reason may lie on the American side of the conference table, for Litvinoff has repeatedly expressed his belief that matters can be arranged quickly.

There were no police officers in the corridors of the department yesterday, though a close watch was kept on Litvinoff and a motorcade surrounded him when he traveled by car.

Guests at Luncheon.

At the Secretary's luncheon were: Messrs. Litvinoff, Skvirsky, Bogdanov, Divilkovski and Umanski of the Russians, and Attorney General Cummings, Senator Couzens, Jesse H. Jones, of the RFC; Henry Morgenthau, jr., governor of the Farm Credit Administration, who has been sitting in on the conferences, and Messrs. Phillips, Moore, Bullitt, Dunn, and Kelley, of the department.

Morgenthau's presence at the conferences indicates that trade matters are being discussed at least in principle. This involves a listing of products the Soviet Union would like to buy in the United States, a discussion of the credit conditions, and a survey of the methods the U. S. S. R. proposes for repaying such credits with goods and with cash. Details can not be discussed for Litvinoff has not brought trade experts to the conferences, but an outline can be worked out.

Banks Shared Huge Sinclair Pool Profits

Cutten Tells of 12 Million Gains in 1929 Through "Kept Market."

The Senate Banking Committee yesterday traced millions in profits from a Sinclair oil stock pool to a score of participating banking houses, to investors who put up no cash, and to a Canadian corporation which paid no tax on its profits.

Arthur W. Cutten, manager of the account, from which $12,000,000 in profits were reaped in 1929, detailed how he "kept the market" for the stock through daily purchases and sales. He told how he assigned his own personal interest and $2,632,962 profit to Cutten & Co., Ltd., a Canadian company, owned by his brothers and sisters.

Cutten testified in the absence of Harry F. Sinclair, one of the principal participants, who was prevented by illness from answering the committee's subpoena. Sinclair, now in Kansas City, can not appear before Wednesday or Thursday, G. T. Stanford, his attorney, said.

Participants Named.

A prepared statement by Stanford, explaining Consolidated Oil Corporation's "sale" of 1,030,000 shares of its stock to Cutten for the pool account, and naming 17 "subparticipants" in Sinclair's 22 per cent interest, was read into the record by Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel.

Earlier, John J. Raskob, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, was asked to explain Chase National Bank loans to himself, Alfred E. Smith and others in a 1929 syndicate account in County Trust Co. stock. Denying this was done for speculative purposes, Raskob told how the syndicate was organized to support County Trust Co. stock following the suicide of its president, James J. Riordan.

Albert H. Wiggin, retired Chase National Bank head, whose private corporation profited from the huge Sinclair stock pool, will be placed on the stand this morning. Pecora said he will ask Wiggin what he knows of General Theaters Equipment Co., organized in 1929 to acquire theater equipment shares.

Cutten's Memory Faulty.

Cutten, who claimed a faulty memory and lack of first-hand knowledge of most questions asked, yesterday baffled attempts of Pecora to get at all details of the Sinclair pool.

Exasperated, Pecora sarcastically asked him at last:

"Is there anything you know about this trading account other than that you managed it?"

Willard F. Tompkins, counsel for E. F. Hutton & Co., frequently spoke for Cutten. He promised to produce books and records of E. F. Hutton Co. throwing light on the transactions when Sinclair appears before the committee next week. Most of the trading was handled through this New York brokerage house.

Cutten disclosed there were two separate accounts in Sinclair stock, both managed by himself, the first a purchasing account and the second a general trading account. The general account, underwritten by several interested companies, netted more than $12,002,000 in profits, while the trading account profited $464,870. Cutten received 10 per cent of this as syndicate manager.

The witness testified that Sinclair's share of the profits amounted to $2,632,962, but Pecora later

Larceny Jury Finds Countess, Gormley Guilty

Sentences of 30 Years Possible on Three Indictments.

A jury in District Supreme Court last night returned a verdict finding Countess Grace DeBenque and George Gormley guilty of stealing $5,000 from Miss Louise Maret, coproprietor of a fashionable finishing school on Kalorama road northwest.

The verdict carries with it possible 30-year sentences for each defendant. There were three grand larceny counts in the indictment and each count bears a possible 10-year maximum sentence. Under District laws the defendants have four days within which to file motions for new trials and until then sentence may not be pronounced.

The charge against Gormley and Countess DeBenque is that they frightened Miss Maret into paying $5,000 to avoid possible arrest, or publicity, in connection with a trumped-up arrest on the Brookville (Md.) pike two years ago.

Signed Two Notes.

Miss Maret, in addition to paying out $5,000, had signed two notes, each for $5,000. This she did, she charged, at the instance of Gormley. The latter told her, she said, that he learned after a conference with the "policeman" that $25,000 would have to be given him to avoid charges.

The "policeman" was brought to the stand by the Government in a surprise gesture. He was Charles Arthur May, of Takoma Park, and he testified that prior to the "arrest" he had been in negotiation with Gormley as to the part he was to play.

He swore that he had been paid $250 for his part. The money, he said, was paid to him in the home

"Happy" Chandler Is Happy; Finds Mother, Gone 31 Years

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 9 (AP).—Lieut. Gov. Albert B. Chandler, of Kentucky, has "Happy" for his nick name—and he was that tonight.

He came here to find his mother's grave, but discovered instead she lived—and had watched him from afar for 31 years.

He found not only a mother, but two half brothers and a sister, of whom he had never known.

The mother is Mrs. A. W. Chamberlain, for more than 20 years a resident of Jacksonville. The brothers are Lawrence and William Fortune, and his sister is Mary Ellen Fortune.

"I've always thought of you and prayed to God that you were a good boy," Mrs. Chamberlin told her son—now a man of 35.

She had followed his progress through the years, breaking the silence only once when his brother, Robert, died in 1912. Then she addressed a card to Albert, signed it simply "Mother."

He recently located one of his mother's brothers. The brother, for some inexplicable reason, told him the mother had died here.

He came to Jacksonville and talked with a Jacksonville woman last night.

"Why, I know your mother!" the woman exclaimed.

Mother and son "pieced" their lives together. She told how after leaving Chandler's father and the boys at Corydon, Ky., she had gone to Evansville, Ind., later coming to Florida.

The second husband died after the family had been here some time and she again married.

Tonight she was anxious to see a daughter-in-law and four grandchildren, two boys and two girls, who today learned for the first time that they have a paternal grandmother.

U. S. S. Wyoming Sails for Havana

Hernandez Meets Death Day After He Joins Revolution.

(Associated Press.)

The Navy was advised last night that the battleship Wyoming left anchorage near Tampa, Fla., at 8 o'clock for Havana.

The Wyoming, it was said, simply will move a little nearer the scene of disorders, officials hoping that her presence will have an influence on the rioters. The naval tanker Neches also is en route to Havana to take fuel supplies to the vessels already there.

Havana, Nov. 9 (AP).—Cuban rebel forces late today surrendered the ancient Atares fortress, their last main stronghold, in a bloody rebellion, with an estimated 40 to 50 of their number killed by furious bombardment from land and sea.

Among those killed was Juan Blas Hernandez, veteran rebel leader, who yesterday joined revolutionary forces seeking the return of Manuel de Cespedes to the presidency.

With the surrender of some 1,500 rebels the backbone of the uprising was regarded as broken. Brilliant lights flashed from the capitol tonight signifying the government's victory.

Run Up White Flag.

For six hours today a steady stream of 3-inch shells and machine gun and rifle bullets poured into the fortress before the rebels ran up the white flag at 4:07 p. m. Survivors said the walls had begun to crumble. Among the casualties were about 100 wounded rebels.

A preliminary check of hospitals and the morgue tonight showed 56 dead and 184 wounded in today's engagement, in addition to 52 killed yesterday. Morgue officials said they believed 40 to 50 more dead were still lying within Atares fortress and elsewhere.

Newspapermen saw 12 dead men lying near a building in Fabrica street, a mile from the fortress, of which 5 were uniformed soldiers and the rest civilians. Two more dead civilians were lying in a doorway.

Soldiers standing guard over them said they were prisoners from Atares who had drawn concealed pistols and attempted to shoot their guards.

City Comparatively Quiet.

At nightfall snipers were active and scattered rifle and machine-gun fire burst forth throughout the

Insular Women Win Suffrage

Philippine Law Effective in 1935 Sponsored by Gov. Gen. Murphy.

Manilla, Nov. 9 (AP).—Suffrage was granted the women of the Philippines today, marking the first extension of the right to vote to the women of an Oriental country.

Enfranchisement came through the action of the ninth Insular Legislature. It passed the suffrage bill on recommendation of Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy, former mayor of Detroit.

Women will be placed on the same electoral basis as men. They must be 21 years of age, able to read and write and possess property worth at least $250.

The bill will not become law until after January 1, 1935, which will prevent women from balloting next June at the triennial elections.

Murphy revived an apparently dead issue when he urged in his first message as governor general last July that women of the Philippines be allowed to vote.

The action of the governor general won for him a letter of thanks from Mrs. Pilar Hidalgo Lim, president of the National Federation of Women's Clubs.

Screams of Wounded Filled Air as Guns Raked Fortress.

Havana, Nov. 9 (AP).—The desperate daring of Pedro Lemos, a rebel soldier in Atares Fortress, played an important part today in bringing about cessation of the terrific bombardment of the rebel stronghold.

Lemos, wounded in both legs and in the back, was interviewed tonight in the Emergency Hospital.

He related how he saw the first soldier, who climbed to the ramparts with a white flag, blown to bits when a shell from the gunboat Patria hit him squarely.

"The situation within the fortress was desperate," Lemos said, "everywhere there were dead and wounded and the air was filled with screams for help.

"We soldiers defended the castle because members of the ABC and OCRR secret societies had no knowledge of military tactics.

"We had gone to Atares believing it impregnable and that we could defend it. But our arms—machine guns and rifles—were useless against artillery.

"Every shrapnel shell exploding within wiped out two or three, just like hand grenades. Finally the cannonading began seriously to damage the walls and it was decided to surrender.

"Made desperate by the screaming I grabbed another white flag and climped atop of the walls, jumped, and ran down hill waving the flag. I suddenly fell wounded in a volley.

"One shell entered a fortress door and killed eight. The shrapnel caused panic. It was horrible because there was no medicine."

Lemos said he lay wounded but conscious under a storm of bullets until the firing ceased.

is prepared to make loans in excess of the $150,000,000 if necessary.

The Farm Administration is avoiding the difficulties arising from the original corn loan plan, which made a basic rate for No. 2 corn, the rate to vary according to grade. Corn is graded according to moisture content. New corn rarely grades as high as No. 2. The same loan per bushel will be made on all grades of "merchantable" corn, but "bushel" will be defined "with adjustment of cubic measure to allow for variation in moisture content."

The announcement said that the area in which farmers will be eligible for loans comprises the three States of Iowa, Indiana and Illinois, and those parts of Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, South Dakota, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin where corn is a major crop."

Meanwhile, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, through the Commodity Credit Corporation, advanced $4,300,000 to cotton farmers in the form of loans at 10 cents a pound. Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, in making this announcement, said banks in cotton States have loaned several times the amount advanced by the Government.

Complain About Rayon.

Cotton textile interests are complaining that rayon manufacturers are being given an undue advantage because of the processing tax on cotton. Cotton and rayon manufacturers presented their cases yesterday at a hearing before D. S. Murph, chief of the cotton processing and marketing section.

D. H. Williams, of the American Cotton Shippers Association, said that many mills in the South were being forced to reduce their labor because of a decline in business. He said that for the first time in history the price of rayon and other synthetic fibers is less than the price of cotton yarn. The cotton manufacturers suggested a compensatory tax on rayon.

The hearing will continue today with testimony from the rayon interests.

Leaps to Feet at Match, Dies in 10 Minutes.

John Henry Hankey, 43, leaped to his feet during an exciting moment of last night's wrestling matches at the Auditorium. He suddenly slumped to the floor and less than 10 minutes later was pronounced dead.

Physicians said he suffered a heart attack. Members of the Fire Rescue Squad vainly attempted to save his life. Hankey, who lived at 1702 E street southeast, was attending the matches with a friend, Fred Krinthley.

Hankey, according to Krinthley, was married and worked at the Navy Yard. He appeared in good health, Krinthley said, and was in jovial spirits during the matches.

Havana's Old Fort Turns One More Red Page in Its History

Gray Walls That Trapped Rebels Were Built by British in 1763.

The white flag over the ancient fortress of Santo Domingo de Atares in Havana yesterday, marking the surrender of 2,000 rebels within its walls who tried to upset the Grau government, is one more chapter in its 170 years of bloody history.

Its strategical importance was recognized by the British who built it in 1763. War Department records note that the fort has always been difficult to capture by assault if well defended, for it occupies the summit of a solitary, conical hill, 111 feet above sea level, and its sides permit fire in all directions.

But artillery, machine guns, antiaircraft guns and enough ammunition to last for seven months availed nothing but dead comrades to the 2,000 revolutionists who were ready "to fight to the death."

Useless against sea attack, in form the fortress is a triple-tiered bastioned structure of irregular shape, approaching a circle, but with nearly a dozen angles, none of which are prominent. The only means of approach to the fort was by way of a winding, narrow road.

War Department records note that in 1851 Crittenden, of Kentucky, and 50 of his followers in the Lopez expedition were imprisoned there and later shot.

For some act a century or more ago, on the part of its garrison, it is the only Havana fort permitted to fly a silken flag.

Rebels Surrender Main Fort in Cuba

city. Later the sniping died down and comparative quiet fell.

The government took drastic steps to end the reign of terror, and strengthened its state-of-war order by making it a "state of siege." No one was allowed in the streets after 6 p. m. without a military pass. The new order called upon all civilians to turn in their arms.

Among those slightly wounded today was a civilian who claimed to be an American. He refused to give his name and details of the shooting, saying he did not want the publicity.

The Battle of Atares was the bitterest and most spectacular of the recent fights in war-torn Cuba, and apparently marked a decisive blow to rebel elements.

For six hours loyal fighters poured shells into the high-placed castle with keen accuracy. Their answer was the heavy machine-gun fire from Atares and the shots of rebel snipers behind loyal lines.

Walls Resist Shells.

As the loyalists' shells struck the fort huge clouds of stone dust were raised, but apparently the thick walls were able to withstand the attack.

Early in the afternoon the gunboats Patria and Cuba joined in the bombardment and dropped shell after shell into the huge mass of stone and steel.

Shortly after the gunboats opened their deadly fire a Red Cross flag was hoisted over the fort and firing ceased for a few minutes.

After another hour of fighting rebels unfurled a small white flag, then a larger one, and finally more small ones until it appeared as though all the defenders had abandoned their rifles and seized white flags.

In a short time the surrender was complete and soldiers entered the fort.

Meanwhile, reporters watching from a nearby balcony narrowly escaped being shot by snipers who apparently mistook them for the enemy.

One rifle bullet struck a wall five feet above heads of the reporters.

The situation at interior points was hard to determine because of lack of communication facilities. Reports from Santiago said troops there were loyal and the garrison was well fortified.

Camaguey Quiet.

Unconfirmed reports from Matanzas said some rebels had mobilized near the city. Camaguey was said to be quiet with rural guards in control.

All commerce was at a standstill throughout the island, including Havana, where the doors of all stores were barred after the beginning of hostilities Wednesday morning.

From three emplacements on land and from the gunboats Patria and Cuba, in the harbor shells had rained on Atares, crumbling its walls before the rebels called quits.

The surrender came more than an hour after the deadline which the rebels—members of the A B C Secret Society and police and soldiers—had set after which they said they would attack American property to provoke intervention by the United States if their movement failed.

A group of several hundred civilians started for the castle, apparently intending to loot it, but they fled in a rain of bullets from soldiers. One of the civilians was killed.

Red Cross field stations, operating near the grim pile of masonry atop Atares Hill, were unable to communicate with each other because of the terrific fire preceding the surrender.

Kill White Flag Hoister.

It was learned that a shell from the Patria had killed the first man to attempt to hoist a white flag, more than an hour before the final surrender.

During the bombardment 15 shells fell into the Cuban Electric Co.'s power plant, causing considerable damage and wounding one man.

One of the biggest bursts when the land batteries found their mark was followed by a huge cloud of smoke, debris and earth. Almost simultaneously the gunboats found their mark. As the Patria steamed into Havana Harbor, its decks cleared for action, machine guns and cannon in the huge old fortress belched forth a volley. The gunboat answered with a terrific burst of fire

The Patria fired 25 shots as soon as it went into action, and apparently 15 of these were effective despite the elevation of the target.

Each volley produced intense excitement and confusion within the presidential palace, where student guards were on duty. Following a disturbance before the palace gates in Zayas Park, a truckload of soldiers roared down the streets to reinforce the presidential guard. An antiaircraft gun on the roof was made ready for action as an A. B. C. ultimatum warned the public to stay off the streets since the rebels intended to fly airplanes over the city and bomb the palace.

Subsequently American families were warned that their homes were in danger of being sacked. The Minister of Uruguay went to the palace, presumably in an attempt to mediate.

Atares was occupied before dawn as rebels fled from the Dragones and San Ambrosio fortresses after Col. Batista's men had threatened to bombard those strongholds.

During the night, arms and munitions had been smuggled into Atares, which is on top of a hill overlooking the capital.

While the battle about Atares Fortress was at its height, foreign diplomats met in the Spanish Embassy and decided they had no authority to interfere in Cuba's internal affairs. Representatives of the United States and Uruguay were unable to attend owing to pressure of other affairs.

The meeting followed receipt by several foreign diplomats of numerous requests asking the foreign emissaries to take some action to end the fighting.

It was learned the Platt amendment was not formally discussed at the main meeting, but was mentioned in several side sessions attended by European diplomats.

U.S. Officials Refuse Action In Cuba Revolt

State Department Insists on Aloofness, But Many Ships Are Nearby.

Reiterating the determination of the United States Government not to intervene in the latest Cuban revolt, State Department officials until a late hour last night nevertheless stayed close to telephones to get news from the island.

Although considerable pressure was brought to bear on the State Department by representatives of American interests in Cuba, the Government is determined to hold out as long as possible against armed intervention.

While sugar men and bankers who have investments in the island came to him with appeals for protection, Jefferson Caffery, Assistant Secretary of State, kept in close telegraphic communication with Sumner Welles, American Ambassador in Havana. It is understood that Welles made no recommendation for American intervention.

Coercion Unconfirmed.

Yesterday's rumor that the rebels had threatened Americans with shelling in order to force this country's taking an active part in settling the warfare was not confirmed by the dispatches to the State Department.

Two ship movements were ordered during the day. The naval tanker Neches was ordered to Havana from the Texas coast. The battleship Wyoming, carrying a battalion of Marines, was on the way from Tampa to Havana. The cruiser Richmond and the destroyers Reuben James and Claxton already are at Havana, while seven other American ships are at other Cuban ports.

This makes a total of 18 American warships that are either in Cuban waters or within easy sailing distance of points of disturbance. The distribution of the vessels follows:

Destroyers Babbitt at Guantanamo, Goff and Taylor at Nipe Bay, Ellis and Dupont at Port Banes, Tillman and Badger at Santiago, Tattnall at Nuova Gerona, Sturtevant and J. F. Talbott at Tampa, Cole and Bainbridge at Miami, Twiggs at Key West.

Defeat of Grau Seen.

It is generally believed that should the American Government step in at the present moment, it would mean the defeat of the Grau San Martin forces, with the return to power temporarily of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, who was deposed as president by the Grau regime.

The mystery of the initials A B C was explained by Cuban experts yesterday. The secret radical society was originated by ten men, who took the title of A. Each of these ten choose ten more, who became known as B. Each B in turn chose ten, who are the C's. And so on well through the alphabet.

Each man, from B down, knows only the men who chose him and his own ten appointees.

out that this legislation would have to originate in the House, but he wished his committee to be ready to report a few days after the House bill reached the Senate. A Ways and Means subcommittee is now holding executive sessions on this problem.

"Our aim should be to get as much revenue as possible without encouraging the existence of the bootlegger and the evils of the present day," Senator Harrison said, adding he did not care to discuss specific tax rates at this time.

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, on leaving the White House, revealed that the same thought was projected at the President's conference.

"We are striving for an orderly and decent procedure for the control and taxation of liquor after repeal becomes effective to the end that the activities of the bootlegger will become unprofitable and unhealthy," the Attorney General asserted.

The Attorney General said that as far as his department was concerned the Volstead act would remain effective until the hour the eighteenth amendment is repealed by the vote of the thirty-sixth State constitutional convention. In the District of Columbia, he added, it will remain in effect until specifically repealed by Congress.

But due to the reduced size of his budget, Mr. Cummings went on, the Federal enforcement agencies have not attempted wholesale seizures and arrests for some months, instead concentrating on the trial of what he described as "the predatory and racketeering violators of the law." Until December 5, he said, the battle against this type of liquor-law violator will be pushed.

No General Clemency.

Attorney General Cummings saw no necessity for the President granting a general clemency or pardon to all liquor law violators in prison on December 5. As a result of the let-up in enforcement last spring and the imposition of milder sentences by the courts as the repeal vote progressed, there are few persons in jail now who deserve their freedom, he said. The large majority of those now in prison, he contended, are not casual liquor law violators but habitual and professional criminals, and they should remain in jail.

The discussion in the President's conference, it was reported, was divided into three categories:

What should be done between now and December 5.

What should be done in the period between December 5 and until Congress takes final action next year.

What recommendations should be made to Congress for permanent legislation.

Under the first heading, it was explained, the discussion centered chiefly on the question of liquor importation. It also was decided that between now and December 5 a more liberal policy would be followed in licensing distillers to speed-up production.

Codes Being Drafted.

Meanwhile, George N. Peek, Agricultural administrator, will proceed with the formulation of a code to govern the brewery, distillery and retail liquor trades under the powers of the AAA and NRA, as revealed yesterday in The Washington Post.

In the discussion on what should be done after December 5 and before Congress acts, the trend seemed to point to leaving the Hawley-Smoot tariff duties untouched. These rates were regarded as sufficiently high for the present. The President under the flexible clause of the tariff act has power to increase or lower these rates by 50 per cent. A more definite policy on tariffs will be considered later.

But the discussion revealed a distinct possibility that the President might use his embargo powers under the NRA and AAA to limit wine and liquor importations after December 5 in order to protect the domestic industry and prevent unfair competition. The procedure would be to establish monthly quotas for wine, whisky and other distilled liquor importations.

In this connection the view that a distinction should be made between wines and hard liquors appeared to have support in the conference. The thought was expressed, it was said, that the Federal Government should do those things that would encourage this country to become a beer and wine drinking people.

Liberal Attitude Planned.

The inference was that while importations of whisky and other strong beverages might be severely restricted, a more liberal attitude would be taken toward wines and beers. Any effort to carry out such a plan, however, would meet with bitter complaints from the California and New York vintners and the brewery interests.

In the matter of levying Federal taxes, it was pointed out that the action of State authorities must be kept in mind in the effort to drive out the bootlegger. A suggestion being considered is that an agreement be worked out with the State governnors on a division of liquor revenue between them and the Washington Government.

Meanwhile, the dry organizations prepared to meet here on January 3 to consider their future. Out in Michigan a new antiprohibition party was born, to be known as the Commonwealth Party, to renew the dry fight. Reports from all parts of the country were to the effect all types of liquor were being sold openly.

Vermont Repeal Vote Hit.

Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 9 (AP).—Vermont's ratification of prohibition repeal was questioned for its legality today by Dr. William Sheafe Chase, of Brookyln, N. Y., in a petition filed with the Supreme Court. Dr. Chase is superintendent of the International Reform Federation.

U. S. Delegates At Montevideo To Avoid Tariff

Survey for Pan-American Highway Will Be Chief Offer Made.

Currency stablization, import quotas, and reciprocal tariff agreements are three things which the United States is not prepared to discuss at the forthcoming Pan-American Conference in Montevideo December 3.

These above all things are what the other delegations hope to settle, though they probably will not be surprised that United States is unable to enter into such agreements.

To atone for this inability, the United States will propose putting up $500,000 for a survey of a Pan-American highway to run from the Texas border to the southern tip of South America, a State Department announcement said last night.

The President issued a simultaneous statement naming a delegation of six, headed by Secretary of State Hull, to represent the United States at the conference. As anticipated, Assistant Secretary of State Caffery wil not make the trip. In his stead, Alexander W. Weddell, of Virginia, Ambassador to the Argentine was named. The others are J. Reuben Clark, former Ambassador to Mexico; J. Butler Wright, Minister to Uruguay; Spruille Braden, New York copper man, and Mrs. Sophonisba P. Breckenridge, of Kentucky. These names have been unofficially known for some time.

Delegates Sail Saturday.

The delegation will sail from New York next Saturday aboard the American Legion.

In announcing its plans for developing road facilities, the State Department said the United States proposes to bear the whole expense of the highway survey and that the President intends to make a recommendation to Congress to this effect. Each South American country through which the road would pass will be asked to approve the plans.

Careful study has been made to arrive at a plan to give some practical expression to President Roosevelt's "good neighbor" policy toward Latin America, the announcement said.

"This study has brought the conviction that no matter what advantageous arrangements are made ultimately, such arrangements will lack full effectiveness in increasing neighborly contacts and trade unless there is betterment in the rapidity of communication and transportation," the statement added.

Voyage Takes Two Weeks.

The Graf Zeppelin makes the trip from Germany to South America in 60 hours, while it requires 2 weeks to travel by boat from New York to Montevideo. The Government's transportation program would seek to speed up travel by air, highway, water and rail, the statement continued.

Besides the six delegates, the following will attend the conference in official capacities: Hugh S. Cumming, jr., assistant to the chairman; James Clement Dunn, of the State Department, as secretary general; Ernest H. Gruening, of New York, adviser; Wallace McClure, of the State Department; Alexander V. Dye, commercial attache at Buenos Aires, and James C. Corliss, of the Commerce Department, as technical advisers; Ulric Bell, of Kentucky, as press officer; Warren H. Kelchner, of Pennsylvania, as secretary, and Hayward Gibbes Hill, of Louisiana, and Hartley Edward Howe, of Massachusetts, and assistant secretaries.

Leveled Guns Guard Touhy's Gang Hearing

Alleged Kidnapers Flanked by Officers as Jury Is Drawn.

St. Paul, Nov. 9 (AP).—Guns leveled at their backs, four members of Roger Touhy's Chicago gang watched today the selection of a jury to try them on charges of kidnaping William Hamm, wealthy brewer, for $100,000 ransom.

Nine jurymen were chosen tentatively.

Hamm Views Proceedings.

While Touhy, chieftain of the gang authorities claim abducted the millionaire president of the Theo. Hamm Brewing Co., last June 15, took a lively interest in the first day's proceedings, Hamm stepped in to scan the crowded courtroom. Accompanied by a guard, Hamm left after a short while.

The four defendants were brought to the courtroom flanked by armed guards. Behind Touhy sat a deputy United States marshal holding a tear gas gun.

In the rear of the room city policemen and deputy sheriffs were stationed. Outside corridors teemed with law enforcement officers who kept the curious from congregating.

Capiases for the detention of the four should they be exonerated in the Hamm case were brought here by Frank Reynolds of the State's attorney's office, of Chicago, based on indictments returned yesterday by a Federal grand jury in Cook County and accused Touhy, Willie Sharkey, Eddie McFadden and Gustav Schaefer of having kidnaped John "Jake the Barber" Factor in Chicago last July.

Collected $400,000.

Cook County officials said the gang had collected at least $400,000 in ransom.

Should William Scott Stewart and Thomas McMeekin, counsel for the defense, succeed in clearing the four men in the Hamm case, in which convictions would mean life sentence under the so-called Lindbergh law, they would be returned to Illinois, liable to execution if found guilty of the Factor abduction.

Hamm was held prisoner almost four days near or at Lake Geneva, Wis.

Kidnapers Get $900,000.

Chicago, Nov. 9 (AP).—State and Federal officials today estimated revenues of two separate gangs of kidnapers at $900,000 as they gathered evidence against at least a dozen men.

The State's attorney's investigators questioned three men who they said were members of a previously unknown band that collected $500,000 from its victims in the last two years.

Melvin H. Purvis, chief of the Chicago Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, said the Roger Touhy gang, seven of whose members were indicted yesterday for kidnaping John Factor, had committed some 25 or 30 kidnapings in the same period and obtained $400,000 in ransoms. Touhy and three henchmen are on trial for kidnaping in St. Paul.

Fusion Heads Plan Regular Party in N. Y.

Permanent Organization Would Keep Up Fight Against Tammany.

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Fusionists that thrust Fiorello H. LaGuardia into the mayoralty today moved toward creation of a permanent party dedicated to the task of keeping Tammany out of power.

As LaGuardia reiterated his intention to "stay out of politics" during his four years in the City Hall and asserted he would take no part in the "move toward permanency," the city's Democracy, torn by internal strife, settled down to retrieve the remnants left by Tuesday's election.

Battle lines were drawn by the "Roosevelt wing" of the Democratic party, headed by Postmaster General James A. Farley and Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn, and the Tammany wing, with John F. Curry and John H. McCooey, Brooklyn leader, at the helm.

Farley and Flynn, reputedly armed with Federal patronage, were pictured as determined to complete the overthrow of the Tammany and Brooklyn organizations.

Maurice P. Davidson, Fusion chairman, announced the party would be held intact, with units in each assembly district "to enforce the principle of nonpartisanship in the government of our city."

"That's the line which it ought to go along," said LaGuardia, indorsing Davidson's plans.

Asked if it were true, as reported, that Gen. John F. O'Ryan would be named to succeed James S. Bolan, whose handling of election disorders he criticized, LaGuardia said he was going to "keep my own counsel."

As mayor, he will have the power to appoint approximately 700 persons to city offices exempt from civil service. He has already indicated there will be a "housecleaning" of Tammany jobholders.

Rate Fixing Hit In Shipping Code

Exporters and Independent Operators Protest.

American exporters yesterday massed opposition to rate-fixing provisions of a proposed code of competition for the shipping industry, while within the industry several groups offered resistance to the plan for a general code embracing all forms of water transportation, according to the Associated Press.

At the same time signs became apparent of a struggle between American and foreign-owned steamship companies for control of the rate-fixing power proposed for the code authority.

Alligned with the exporters in their protest against rate fixing were the independent operators who protested that the "tramp" steamers now carrying a large volume of American shipping would be driven from American ports under such a program.

Diamond Bracelet Claimed by Finders

Finding of a handbag containing a valuable diamond bracelet by oyster tongers in the James River raised a complex question of ownership yesterday, according to Associated Press dispatches.

The bracelet is claimed by the estate of Mrs. Evelyn Ray, reported to be the wife of a Washington broker. Mrs. Ray was drowned last summer when a car ran off the James River Bridge. Her body was recovered the next day.

On the other hand, the two oyster dredgers claim the bracelet on the ground that it is abandoned property in a navigable stream. In the meantime, the bracelet is in the hands of a Suffolk (Va.) bank for safekeeping.

All Auto Dealers Ruled Under Code

Automobile dealers in towns of 2,500 population or less will not be exempt from their trade code, it was announced yesterday by NRA.

Though other retail merchants in small towns are exempt from the master retail code, it was held this exemption should not apply to motor car retailers since their activities are not confined to local areas.

At the same time it was announced use of NRA emblems, the words Blue Eagle or NRA to distinguish articles for sale will be punishable by a fine of $500 or a six-months jail sentence. The ruling does not prevent the labeling of articles made under the codes.

Hoover Lucky

Back From Mexico Waters With Some Big Fish.

Long Beach, Calif., Nov. 9 (AP).—Herbert Hoover, former President, came back today from Mexican waters with some big fish.

"I had good luck—better than ever before," he said.

In the Gulf of California he caught three marlin swordfish, the largest weighing 128 pounds, and one sailfish of 120 pounds. This was half the catch of the party, but the biggest fish went to the hook of Arthur M. Hyde, former Secretary of Agriculture.

The party was out two weeks on the 147-foot cabin cruiser Samoa II, owned by Williams J. Hole, of Pasadena.

Asked about prohibition and public affairs, the former President laughed and said:

"No, I never talk about those things. I find it keeps me out of trouble."

the Building Trades Employers Association and signed by W. P. Carroll, executive manager. Photostatic copies of the letters are being circulated.

The letter, dated October 28, says:

"A 'war council' of the heads of all international building trades unions was held in Washington this week and unanimous agreement was reached to issue a Nation-wide strike order to members as a protest against approval of the code for the construction industry as presented by the Construction League of the United States."

The Construction League declared delay in adoption of the building code is holding up practically all private construction and is "seriously menacing the success of the entire NRA program."

The league announced it will establish a special committee, composed of nationally prominent representatives of each of the major divisions of the industry, to carry on an intensive fight "for the code's immediate adoption over labor's veto. It was announced the committee will get into action today.

Labor Motives Questioned.

"Further delay," the league's statement said, "would not only probably preclude the possibility of getting the industry under a code this winter, but seemingly would be in accord with labor's objectives to block action on any cade proposed by an organized and coordinated construction industry."

The American Federation of Labor charges that in some instances the code demanded by the Consrtuction League provides wage scales 50 per cent less than those provided in the code agreed upon by labor representatives and representatives of building industries.

The A. F. of L. has asked that wages for skilled labor be the same as prevailing union wages brought about by collective bargaining in the localities where there are building operations, and that where there are no prevailing wage scales the pay scales listed by the Public Works Administration shall govern.

The Chamber of Commerce letter said that "an issue has arisen with respect to the general code for the construction industry." It added that "this issue is of direct interest to every community which desires to have private construction go forward."

Code Far Advanced.

"The general code contains the customary provision for a minimum wage for all workers in construction. Since the code has reached an advanced stage in its preparation for approval, proposals have been insistently urged in the labor interest that to the usual provision for a minimum wage in the industry there should be added a minimum for skilled workers. Acceptance of these proposals undoubtedly would mean that there will be proposals that in supplementary codes for different branches of the construction industry there should be inserted rates of wage for every craft and occupation.

"Communities which have been looking forward to revival of private construction, and which would find in these proposals with respect to wages such wage increases that construction could not proceed, will be immediately concerned."

Coast Guard Aids Grounded Vessel

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Coast Guard headquarters here received a report from the cutter Seneca today that it was proceeding to the assistance of the steamer Golden Mountain, stranded off Manchas Granbes, near the port of Mayaguez, Puerto Rico.

The vessel was reported in no great danger.

The Golden Mountain is a 6,000-ton freighter with an over-all length of 401 feet. It is owned by the Oceanic & Oriental Navigation Co., San Francisco, and was proceeding to Charleston, S. C., when it ran aground. It carries a crew of about 40 men and officers.

Officials Pray It Won't Hand Out More Than There Is on Earth.

(United Press.)

Word got around yesterday that at the Agricultural Adjustment Administration the folks had contracted writer's cramp and had been forced to bring in a strange machine—a robot of the banking world—to write the $100,000,000 worth of checks that are being distributed to cotton farmers for reducing their acreage.

It's true, all right. You slip a piece of paper into the maws of the monsters, press a lever and in 20 seconds the United States Government has ordered some bank to pay to the order of Peter K. Bullwinkle $210—exactly two hundred and ten dollars.

The process is accompanied by a brief prayer on the part of the A. A. A.; a prayer that the robot won't go haywire and make a check for $100 come out reading $10,000,000,000, thereby settling the farm strike in what is called one fell swoop.

So far nothing like that has happened, according to a Mr. Palmer who is nursing the machine through its infancy, but they have had a bad scare. It was just a normal day and the machine was clicking off nice, neat checks at the rate of $5,000,000 every eight hours. Suddenly the machine sent up distress signals. Mr. Palmer and all his assistants promptly had nightmares in which they visioned the United States Treasury paying out 20 or 30 million dollars and putting a couple of cotton farmers in control of the Nation.

They stopped the machine. A man came down from New York with a monkey wrench and got things fixed up.

When they really get going on payments to wheat farmers, Mr. Palmer says, his machine will turn out 80,000 checks a day.

Some of the checks are beginning to come back, and down South they are using them for money. Most of them are badly frayed and the backs are covered with indorsements, indicating they have gone clear around town.

Repealist Lead In "Blue Grass" State Grows

G. O. P. Candidate Ahead in Louisville Race for Mayor.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 9 (AP).—With late returns steadily increasing Kentucky's margin in favor of repeal, interest in results of Tuesday's election centered tonight on the proposed amendment to enable the Legislature to remove the State real estate tax, and on contests for the mayoralty of Louisville, 19 Senate seats and 100 House of Representatives seats.

Returns from 1,863 of the State's 4,204 precincts gave repeal a majority of 34,647 votes, the count standing 152,299 to 117,552. In Jefferson County (Louisville), with the count one-fourth complete, repeal had 18,265 and antirepeal 1,458.

The proposal to authorize removal of the real estate tax developed a nip-and-tuck vote. Reports from 1,202 precints showed 43,184 votes for the amendment and 41,142 against it. Approval of the amendment, submitted by the 1932 Legislature, was expected to pave the way for a sales tax bill at the 1934 session.

After leading throughout yesterday's count, Neville Miller (Democrat), who seeks to break a 20-year-old hold by Republicans on the Louisville mayoralty, was trailing Col. Dan M. Carrell (Republican) by 1,743 votes tonight on returns from 199 of the city's 568 precincts. The vote was: Carrell, 20,991; Miller, 19,248.

Miller supporters pointed out, however, that much of today's counting was of ballots in normally heavy Republican precincts.

Wage Dispute Closes Nash Company Plant

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 9 (AP).—The Nash Motor Co. plant was closed today after a disagreement on wages between the management and workers of one department.

About 3,000 men temporarily are out of jobs because of a closing order issued by C. W. Nash, chairman of the board of directors.

Tammany, Not Party, Smote In New York, Says Farley

New York repudiated Tammany and not the Democratic party, Postmaster General James A. Farley assured newspapermen yesterday. In fact, he considered it "in no sense a party election."

"The last figures I have seen show the combined voted of the two Democratic candidates was a quarter of a million more than the fusionist who won the mayoralty."

With those words he dismissed the defeat of Joseph V. McKee, whom he backed on a Recovery ticket, and Joseph P. O'Brien, whose machine crumpled beneath him, by the Republican-Fusionist Fiorello H. LaGuardia.

Wherever there was a "clean-cut contest between the two major parties," he said, returns showed "the Democratic tide which elected Franklin D. Roosevelt to the Presidency a year ago is still running strong."

The genial political strategist gave credit to President Roosevelt for initiating the repeal movement, declaring "I think it was the President's indorsement of repeal and the knowledge that he was sincerely committed to it that really lined up the necessary three-fourths of the States."

No Reply to Curry.

While his formal statement on the New York election was brief, Mr. Farley did not answer a question of what he thought of the accusation of John F. Curry, Tammany chieftain, that he had split the New York Democratic party and "can not remain in office" as chairman of the State committee.

"Listen," he responded laconically, "I have no comment either off or on the record for anything Mr. Curry may say."

His statement summarized the "satisfaction of the country with the Roosevelt administration." It said:

"The Pennsylvania results were significant. The Democrats elected a mayor in Pittsburgh, the citadel of the Mellon Republican machine for nearly 30 years, and all the candidates running on the Democratic ticket, including 10 city magistrates, were elected in Philadelphia, resulting in the routing of the long-established Vare Republican machine.

Tradition Upset.

"Likewise, in Lancaster, the Democrats elected a Democratic mayor for the first time in 35 years.

"A Democrat was elected mayor of Boston and Virginia elected a Democratic governor; a Democartic senator and 98 of the 100 members of the House of Delegates will be Democrats."

The Postmaster General revealed he plans to leave Washington for a three weeks' vacation on November 25, explaining, "I'm going to fold up and take a rest."

Duck Time

Hunters Warned to Kill Moderately This Season.

Officially proclaiming the hunting season which opens Thursday as "a critical time" for water-fowl, the U. S. Biological Survey has called on hunters to shoot moderately and kill only the more abundant species.

The only ducks likely to be plentiful are pintails, mallards and black ducks. Water-fowl have never entirely recovered from the 1931 low ebb, which cut the hunting season to 1 month.

The Survey also urged hunters to retrieve their crippled birds. About 7,500,000, it is estimated, are wounded every year and lost.

Litvinoff Will Be Honor Guest Of Press Club

Luncheon Will Be Given Saturday for Russian Foreign Minister.

Maxim M. Litvinoff, Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs, will be honor guest of the National Press Club tomorrow.

In keeping with its tradition of entertaining international visitors, the National Press Club promises a free forum to Commissar Litvinoff so that he may "sound off" on any Soviet question occupying his mind.

On the same platform where stood Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of England, and Laval, of France, the great Russian diplomat will be given opportunity to answer questions left unanswered in hurried interviews at the port of call and here in Washington.

For members only, the luncheon will be held in the auditorium of the Press Club—a seating capacity of 300. An overflow is expected. Tickets will be available at the office of the club.

Raymond P. Brandt, president of the National Press Club, spent several years in Russia and speaks the language, it is said. Commissar Litvinoff, who speaks English with an Oxford accent, having majored in the language at London, will make his first American broadcast on this occasion. With the president of the club and the commissar knowing the two languages, it is expected that happy exchanges of thought will be effected all round.

Appearance at the Press Club will be the only unofficial act of the Soviet Commissar.

It was reported to the United States Embassy.

NRA Gag on Press Denied by Counsel

Editorial Fears for Rights Termed "Nightmares."

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 9 (AP).—Donald R. Richberg, general counsel for the National Recovery Administration, told Michigan newspaper editors here tonight that "there is not and there never will be the slightest interference with the constitutionally guaranteed freedom of the press by the NRA."

Richberg spoke at the annual banquet of the University Press Club at the University of Michigan.

"It is unfortunate," Richberg said, "that in recent weeks many newspapers have devoted so much space to articles and editorials attacking the NRA that their readers have been deprived of adequate knowledge of achievements of the Administration."

Richberg termed the fears of editors that the freedom of the press would be jeopardized as "nightmares."

brought ou that half of this went to "subparticipants" with Sinclair.

Cutten told how he managed operations in the two accounts through daily communication with a cousin, Ruloff Cutten, a floor trader for E. F. Hutton & Co.

Pecora brought out how in one day the second syndicate account bought 11,600 shares and sold 100,600, while the first account was purchasing 50,000 shares.

Chairman Fletcher wanted to know if this did not constitute "manipulation" of the market. Cutten replied he "didn't have to manipulate it" as all stocks were going up. He said he called it "keeping the market."

Pecora charged it was "artificial stimulation," and Senator Gore (Democrat), Oklahoma, observed it was "the same thing as a shot in the arm."

"The fact was the public, seeing the activity, and not knowing it was a 'shot in the arm,' was lured into the market," said Pecora.

Organized for Profit.

Counsel questioned Cutten at length on why the second trading account was formed.

"To buy and sell the stock," Cutten replied several times. Then, as Pecora persisted, Cutten answered bluntly, "to make money." He said the account furnished the necessary "support" for the stock.

Cutten said he transferred his fourth interest in the original pool to Cutten & Co., Ltd., of Canada, "because they had the money to finance it." His money was tied up in other operations, he added. He said Cutten & Co. paid no income tax in 1929, despite its huge profit from the pool, "because it had net losses of $169,000."

Cutten said he could not account for payment of $300,000, or 2½ per cent of the profits to W. S. Fitzpatrick, then head of Prairie Oil & Gas Co., a Sinclair competitor. Pecora later told newspapermen if he can not find out any other way why the money was paid Fitzpatrick, he will subpena him before the committee.

Sinclair's attorney, Stanford, told the committee the 1,030,000-share sale of Sinclair stock to the Cutten pool was authorized by the board and executive committee of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation in October, 1928, Sinclair and other personally interested parties leaving the room while the matter was under discussion.

Employes Share Profits.

Stanford enumerated the following 17 parties who shared in $1,229,575 of Sinclair's profits as subparticipants in 118,733 shares, Sinclair retaining for himself 135,517 shares:

W. L. Connelly, an employe, 333 shares; R. Costello, an employe, 333; Nellie Kline Crawley, wife of company official, 1,000; Mason Day, a friend, 3,300; Miss Josephine Farrell, Sinclair's sister-in-law, 2,000; J. F. Farrell, an official, 8,300; J. J. Larkin, oil operator, 1,500; J. H. Markham, jr., oil operator, 16,700; H. H. Rogers, Tulsa banker, 8,300; E. W. Sinclair, a brother, 8,000; Mrs. H. F. Sinclair, 5,000; G. T. Stanford, counsel, 6,667; R. W. Ragland, employe, 1,000; P. W. Thirtle, employe, 2,000; Frank Walls, 1,000; A. E. Watts, official, 3,300; the late H. P. Whiney, a director, 50,000.

Cutten filed a list of companies which participated in profits of the original pool as follows: Blair & Co., 22½ per cent; Chase Securities Corporation, 15 per cent; Shermar Corporation, 7½ per cent; the Cutten Co., Ltd., 22½ per cent; H. F. Sinclair, 22½ per cent; Continental National Co., 4 per cent; Arthur Reynolds, 1 per cent; A. M. Andrews, 1 per cent; the Famoth Corporation, 1¾ per cent; Traywin Corporation, 1¾ per cent, L. W. Hill and C. O. Kalman, ½ per cent.

Cutten enumerated as participants in the second trading account: A. W. Cutten, 90,000 shares; H. E. Merselles, 10,000; Lawrence P. Fisher, 100,000; Blair & Co., 100,000; W. H. Eshbaugh, 35,000; Joseph Toplitsky, 25,000; Continental National Co., 25,000; Fred Bartlett, 25,000; Matthew C. Brush, 25,000; P. H. O'Nel, 25,000; Trust Co. of Georgia, 25,000; George Breen, 25,000; Edwin Weisel & Co., 15,000; James C. Wilson & Co., 10,000; Loew & Co., 10,000, Guardian Detroit Co., 5,000; Chase Securities Corporation, 66,666 2-3; Shermar, 33,333 1-3; E. F. Hutton & Co., 50,000; Kissell, Kinnicutt & Co., 20,000; J. & W. Seligman & Co., 10,000; Janney & Co., 6,000; Spencer, Trask Co., 6,000; H. F. Sinclair, 75,000; H. P. Whitney, 50,000; John H. Markham, jr., 50,000; Benjamin Lissberger, 10,000; Famoth Corporation, 8,750; Traywin, 8,750; L. W. Hill and C. O. Kalman, 5,000, and Joseph E. Cutten, 50,000.

Bridges Fired As Cold Routs Farm Pickets

Strike Activity Spotty; 15 Grain Companies Close Elevators.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 9 (AP).—Farm strike leaders tonight recommended abandonment of the holiday in Wisconsin on condition that sufficient farmers in cooperation with labor pledge themsevles to start recall proceedings against all officials who have opposed the movement.

Des Moines, Nov. 9 (AP).—Wintry northwest blasts joined forces with antifarm strikers today to force pickets from the highways.

Livestock and milk trucks sped unmolested to Sioux City markets, where for four days picket lines had effected sharply reduced receipts.

Wisconsin farmers opposed to the strike, declared by the National Farmers Holiday Association October 21, banded together in a half dozen "protective associations" and additional associations were being organized.

Activity by pickets lagged in some Wisconsin communities and flared up fitfully in others. There were a dozen minor arrests, and a culvert was dynamited to close a road near Wausau. Milwaukee receipts were normal.

At Paynesville, Minn., two creameries operated today but indicated they would close because of threats that 500 men would invade the town to force a shutdown.

A fourth incendiary railway-bridge fire near Sioux City was extinguished with little damage. Two bridges have been destroyed in the area this week.

15 Firms Close Elevators.

Portsmouth, Iowa, Nov. 9 (AP).—A large bridge of the Milwaukee Railroad was fired and destroyed early today 1 mile south of here by farm pickets.

Morris, Ill., Nov. 9 (AP).—Fifteen grain companies closed their elevators here today at the request of the Farm Holiday Association.

Sioux City, Iowa, Nov. 9 (AP).—Truckloads of cattle, hogs and sheep were on their way to Sioux City today, signalizing, the authorities said, the apparent end of farm-strike picketing in this territory. Deputies escorted the trucks.

He charged the company's liabilities total $509,000,000. The company's assets, he said, are not more than $300,000,000, although their par value is given at $694,843,704.

The Federal Diary

(Trade-mark Applied For)

By Morgan Baker

FURTHER support for restoration of Government pay was revealed yesterday from another veterans' organization. Following action by the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars enrolled in the battle for repeal of the Federal salary cuts.

BAKER.

"I am convinced the Administration will favorably consider the removal of the pay cuts of Federal employes," James E. Van Zandt, commander in chief, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, stated.

Mr. Van Zandt, regarding restoration of pay as certain, is directing his attention toward reestablishment of the scale of pension payments of disabled veterans. He sent an appeal to President Roosevelt yesterday. The letter follows:

"Realizing that you have under consideration removal of the pay cuts of the Federal employes, it is the earnest hope of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States that you will be able to again return the pension payments for our disabled comrades to the scale prior to the enactment of Public No. 2.

"We believe this would help the men who still remain on the pension rolls a great deal and we trust it will have your sincere consideration."

SUBSTANTIAL increases in membership and interest in the work of the National Federation of Federal Employes, are reported by Miss Matilda Lindsay, national organizer, who has returned after several weeks of work in Chicago.

Miss Lindsay.

Especially gratifying, Miss Lindsay said yesterday, was the cooperation extended by administrative officials of Cook County.

While compilation of membership applications is not complete, officials at N. F. F. E. headquarters said they amounted to several hundred, and that additional application blanks have been requested by Chicago locals.

New "Brother" for Hydrogen Atom Claimed by Professor

Berkeley, Calif., Nov. 9 (AP).—Another "brother" for the hydrogen atom, which it appears is a "triplet" instead of a "twin," was disclosed by California University scientists today.

The new "brother," or isotope, announced by Prof. M. Latimer and Dr. Herbert A. Young, takes its place beside the hydrogen "twin" isolated by Dr. Gilbert N. Lewis in developing his so-called "heavy water."

While Dr. Lewis' isotope has an atomic weight of 2, as compared with ordinary hydrogen's weight of 1, the new "brother" is even heavier, Prof. Latimer and Dr. Young said. It tips the scales at 3.

The scientists said, although not making any definite predictions, that their isotope, because of its weight, may prove of value in the "atom smashing" machine of Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, another university scientist.

Hitler Honors Nazi "Martyrs"

Civil and Military Unity Stressed on Party's 10th Anniversary.

Munich, Bavaria, Nov. 9 (AP).—Adolf Hitler told thousands of cheering constituents today that he was "supremely happy because the unity betwen the German army and the German people has been reestablished."

The chancellor's speech formed the climax of an impressive and often frenzied ceremony to commemorate the tenth anniversary of the famous "beer putsch," where originated the movement that Hitler has carried to success.

"My hope of those days has been fulfilled," the Nazi leader said as he unveiled a monolith to honor the 16 dead heroes of the unsuccessful Nazi insurrection of November 10, 1923.

"I am gratified that the representatives of our military forces and of our people are one again. That unity shall never be broken in Germany.

"We entered the political fight 10 years ago as soldiers of the World War. When we thought of the millions of Germans who paid with their life-blood for the harm done by political leadership of the time, we entered the fight at home, convinced that the sacrifice of our soldiers would be in vain if political leadership continued weak."

"3 Bull Frogs" Opposed NRA, Says Johnson

"Not 1 Per Cent of People" Object, Roosevelt Told; Trip "Unnecessary."

Kansas City, Nov. 9 (AP).—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson said here tonight his survey of the Midwest had caused him to inform the President "there is not 1 per cent of the people who have any idea of opposing his program."

Addressing a large audience in Convention Hall, the general, in crisp, crackling phrases, told of coming to "my own kind of country" to meet his critics face to face only to learn his mission was "love's labor lost." "There was so much tom-tom writing in the papers out here that I thought it well to make a 'swing around the circle,'" he said.

"Love's Labor Lost."

"It was altogether unnecessary. Last night I called the White House on the telephone and said so. I have been in every so-called disaffected center except Sioux Falls and have talked personally to scores of people—and in speeches to millions Sincerely, and I think accurately, I sent word to the President that there is not 1 per cent of the people who have any idea of opposing his program.

"I came out to talk to the Middle West because it was reported in Washington that there was a turn of feeling about NRA," Johnson explained. "I wanted to tell these people about it. At the end of every speech I invited questions. It has been 'love's labor lost.'

Three Frogs Made All Noise.

He likened the opposition to "a famous chef," who came to the West from New York because "some big butter and egg man of these early days had told him that, right on the edge of his ranch, there were millions of bull frogs."

"Well you know the rest of that story as well as I," Johnson said.

"Like the lone coyote—like William Allen White—like several others of our institutions in this great Mississippi basin—he found that there are exactly three bull frogs who were making all the noise."

Dealers Demand Repeal of State Dry Law.

Jersey City, N. J., Nov. 9 (AP).—A boycott on Kentucky liquors unless that State repeals its dry law, was threatened by the executive council of the National Retail Beer & Liquor Dealers Association today.

In a resolution the association stated:

"Until such time as the State of Kentucky shall repeal its State prohibition law, the National Association of Retail Beer & Liquor Dealers shall call upon its members and all others interested in the promotion of law observance in this country to refrain from purchasing alcoholic beverages, distilled or otherwise, manufactured within the State of Kentucky."

No Comedy!

Burlesque Stage Hurt by Low Pay, Plea.

Thomas J. Phillips, president of the Burlesque Artists Association of New York, yesterday asked the National Recovery Administration to rescue the burlesque business from "degeneration," according to the Associated Press.

Declaring the level of performances was sinking with salaries, he asked that the proposed code, upon which a hearing is being held, establish a minimum of $50 per week for principals and $30 a week for chorus girls. He said chorus girls now were receiving as low as $16 per week.

Security for Aged Urged by Bishops

Equitable Distribution of Wealth Favored.

Davenport, Iowa, Nov. 9 (AP).—A new economic order with equitable distribution of wealth and security for the unemployed and the aged was advocated today by the Episcopal House of Bishops.

It also declared that although rehabilitation of agriculture and industry are urgently important, "spiritual recovery must be made coincident with economic recovery."

The bishops called for renewed emphasis on temperance.

Rail Leaders Offered Help Of Government

Eastman Warns Against Panic; Promises Cash on Easy Terms.

Chicago, Nov. 9 (AP).—Counseling railroad men that there was no cause for panic in the present situation, Joseph B. Eastman, Federal coordinator of transportation, tonight predicted industry was on the threshold of improvements in equipment, service and methods.

Eastman assured the railroad men the Government stood ready to provide funds on easy terms to railroads for new equipment, where such purchases would increase their earning power.

"If the railroads will take counsel of their fears and look more closely into the State of their properties and operating facts," Eastman said, "they will find many opportunities for such improvements.

"If the railroads could begin buying again in some volume, it would reduce unemployment where it is most acute and would have a healthful effect on the entire situation," he said.

"The railroad industry is going through one of its periodic crises, heightened by the economic depression and new competitive conditions. Instead of striking panic, these new rivals should stir the pulse of creative genius."

Carl R. Gray, Union Pacific president, said he believed no one cause contributed more to the present business confusion than the uncertainties of highway and water transportation costs. He said highway and waterway carriers needed regulation for their own protection.

Banker Convicted Of Embezzlement

Kansas Financier Guilty on 12 Counts.

Emporia, Kans., Nov. 9 (AP).—Warren W. Finney, 64-year-old Emporia banker, whose son, Ronald, is accused in the Kansas million-dollar bogus bond scandal, was convicted late today on 12 counts of an embezzlement charge by a district court jury.

Finney, president of two banks, manager of three telephone companies and member of a prominent Kansas family—his father was a lieutenant governor of the State—originally was charged with embezzlements exceeding $75,000. Dismissal of some of the counts reduced the amount to $63,774.20, the total on which he was convicted today.

Afghan King's Slaying Blamed On Royal Feud

Danger of War in Khyber Pass Feared by India Official.

Bombay, Nov. 9 (AP).—Political intrigue involving the Afganistan throne was seen here today as responsible for the death at an assassin's hand of King Nadir Shah Ghazi of Afganistan.

A student, believed to have been repatriated from Germany, shot the monarch yesterday as he was leaving the harem, but when bullets failed to kill the ruler, the assailant knifed him to death.

The Acting Foreign Secretary of the India Government at New Delhi, Maj. W. K. Fraser Tytler, meanwhile blamed a blood feud between families of the exiled former King Amanullah for the killing.

"We had been fearing this might happen for some time," he said. "Factions in Afganistan are so bitter it is impossible to predict where the event may lead.

"It is significant that the assassination occurred while the Afghan premier, who is the king's half-brother, foreign minister, and the minister of commerce, was touring the northern provinces."

At New Delhi it was feared that Afghan tribesmen might loot Kabul and that consequently the historic Khyber Pass would again be the scene of bloody warfare. Rumors circulated, too, that Amanullah intends to regain the throne with the help of a strong following in certain districts.

Amanullah, in Rome, said he was ready to return as King of Afghanistan if the people are ready to accept the program of westernization that caused his downfall in 1928.

Nadir Shah's 21-year-old son, Mohamed Zahir Shah, was on the throne in succession to his father.

Support Urged In Chest Drive By First Lady

Large Audience Attends Meeting Sponsored by Woman's Crusade.

"The fact that life is so little worth living to so many today is a blot on modern civilization," declared Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, at a mass meeting of the Woman's Crusade for the Community Chest held in Constitution Hall yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Roosevelt urged upon the audience, which crowded the auditorium to the doors, that generous support be given to the Community Chest this year, in order that the 62 social welfare agencies aided by it might continue their character building and social rehabilitation work in the National Capital.

The speaker pointed out that Washington must serve as an example to the whole United States in this regard. She told the workers that the National and local Government could not do all the relief work necessary to keep these agencies in operation.

Means Higher Taxes.

"The Government can only provide food, clothing and shelter for the thousands who are needy this winter," exclaimed Mrs. Roosevelt. "You would not want the Government to do everything, if it could, because it would mean higher taxes, which mean we would have to pay for it, and once taxes are up it is hard to get them down again."

Mrs. Roosevelt was met in the reception room by Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, chairman of the Woman's Crusade and the members of her executive committee and escorted to her place on the platform. Attractively gowned in blue silk with which she wore a modish black hat adorned with several plumes, Mrs. Roosevelt smilingly acknowledged the ovation when she came into the hall.

A second ovation was given to Miss Grace Moore, the opera star, who had volunteered her services to the program, when she appeared to open the afternoon's program with several operatic selections. Miss Moore who wore a beautiful gown of lavender silk, was in fine voice.

Marine Band Plays.

To the accompaniment of the United States Marine Band, led by Capt. Taylor Branson, U. S. M. C., Miss Moore sang the aria from "Madame Butterfly," her coloratura tones rising with musical surety above the vigorous measures of the band. In answer to the rounds of applause, Miss Moore sang first "Smiling Through the Years," and then that perennial favorite, "Annie Laurie."

Mrs. Roosevelt was the only speaker and she was introduced by Mrs. Patterson with these words, "Our beloved friend, Mrs. Roosevelt."

Mrs. Roosevelt rehearsed the results of the Chicago meeting of the Woman's Crusade held the latter part of October, in which, she said, representatives from many parts of the country told of satisfactory results from the work of the Crusaders, especially in St. Paul, where the Community Chest drive is "over the top" with a surplus of $40,000 more than the quota.

Warns of Protests.

"Unless we can alleviate the suffering of the present among so many of our people," Mrs. Roosevelt said, "none of us can be happy. Life is hard in many ways at the present time, but we might just as well live courageously while we live."

She warned the members of the Crusade, representing many of the civic institutions, clubs and societies of the city, that their work for the Community Chest would meet with many objections. Mrs. Roosevelt urged them to prepare themselves to answer these protests by a real knowledge of what the 62 agencies do in the way of social welfare, character building and rehabilitation.

The members of the executive committee of the Woman's Crusade occupied seats on the platform. The meeting closed with the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by the audience, led by Miss Moore and the United States Marine Band.

Hoover Removal Tale Held 'Absurd'

Department Scouts Rumor Justice Chief Will Go.

Reports of the removal of J. Edgar Hoover as head of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice were declared "absurd" at the Attorney General's office yesterday.

The Attorney General was quoted as saying replacement of Hoover never had been considered, and that any reports he was to be removed were totally untrue.

According to a story being circulated, Hoover was to be removed shortly because of dissatisfaction among a group of Southern senators.

A complete denial was issued at the Attorney General's office. It was said the recent records of the Bureau of Investigation in cleaning up kidnaping has caused Hoover to be held in highest regard in official circles.

Freedom of Press? Never!

Immediate Censorship, Until Papers Quit Printing Nasty Things About Insolvent People, Is Demand of Pegler.

By Westbrook Pegler.

New York, Nov. 9 (Spl.).—I do not read the political news or the crime reports very carefully, but from my casual perusal of such matter in searching for the society news I have formed the opinion that the censorship of our American press can not begin a minute too soon.

I believe some sort of censorship is contemplated, isn't it? Didn't I see somewhere in the headlines where Gen. Whatsit, of the NRA, is going to blue-pencil the newspapers and make them stop printing unpatriotic reports?

The publishers are protesting, of course. But let them. They have simply gone too far and one must draw a line somewhere. Printing nothing but destructive reports under great big headlines. Farmers burning bridges. Unemployed artist dies in doorway of starvation. Lower classes scavengering cabbage leaves and meat scraps in the New York markets and boiling them into soup in a collection of unsightly shacks called Hoover City in New York.

Of all the impudence! Hoover City. Our President! It makes one's blood boil. I should like to go over into their Hoover City and knock some respect into them.

And soup from cabbage leaves picked out of the market gutters and meat scraps from wherever one gets meat scraps. From one's market man, presumably. One's housekeeper would know about that.

Lobster Bisque? Well, Maybe.

Soup. The very word makes one wish to be ill. Oh, possibly a little lobster bisque or cream of mushroom. But cabbage leaves and scraps of meat. I declare if our journalism has neither tact nor taste, the Government should exercise it.

I was about to have breakfast when I read it. I dropped the filthy paper at once and tried to put it out of my mind. I shut my eyes. Still the nasty suggestion persisted. All I could do was sip my coffee and nibble one hot-house grape. Then I called my man to take it away and rolled over to try to sleep some more and forget.

I should like to have the running of a big newspaper for one week. I would show them something about a clean, wholesome taste in news and a patriotic policy. You would not find any articles about cabbage leaves and Hoover City or unemployed artist starves in doorway in my newspaper.

How can any useful purpose be served in emphasizing the ugly side of life? And, what possible interest can one have in the affairs of persons whom one does not know and, as far as I am concerned, certainly does not wish to know?

Look at he Vanderbilts.

What I say about our journalism is: Give the subscribers the proper sort of news about the proper sort of people. Now, for instance.

Here I find an article of what I think is the constructive, wholesome type. But do I find it on the first page under a big head-line? No, I find it on the society page.

It says that Commodore William K. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Vanderbilt have arrived at their estate at Miami Beach on their yacht, Alva. After a five-month cruise in the Mediterranean and stops at the Cape Verdes and St. Thomas on the way home. Dean old Commodore. I hope he is well. I missed them at Monte in August.

Now, there in that little article, I think you have the remedy for unrest and the impudent mood of the lower classes which, if it isn't checked, is going to call for severe measures before we are through. One doesn't read of the Commodore burning bridges or starving in doorways or making cabbage soup in an unsightly shack.

Then There Is Mike.

Then, there is another item about Mr. Harold Vanderbilt giving a luncheon in the oval room at the Ritz in connection with the opening of the Vanderbilt Cup contract tournament. Good old Mike, as we call him. Fine chap. Strictly grade-A, and a world leader in two lines, yachting and card playing. He has done more for yachting and card playing than any other man in the world. A builder. That's Mike.

I tell you, I wish it were possible, if they weren't so soiled and rather out of hand, to march about a hundred of those cabbage-soup Hoover City people up to Mike's luncheon at the Ritz and show them that there are still people who would like to keep the world clean and attractive. And we mean to do so. Our patience can be tried just so far. Here is a little item, hidden away, about Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel, jr., leaving their cottage at White Sulphur Springs by motor for New York, where they will stop a week at the Pierre before sailing for the winter in Nassau. Charming couple.

That sort of thing. Articles about the sort of people one knows. Pleasant news. Good news. I am writing to the editor about it tonight.

English Employment On Rise, Says Publisher

San Francisco, Nov. 9 (A.P.).—E. Bostwick Smith, publisher of the South London, England, Gazette, arrived here today from Hawaii on the liner Lurline with Mrs. Smith and will travel in this country to study conditions before returning home.

Reemployment already has gained impetus in England, he declared, except in a few industries such as the Lancashire cotton mills, and fewer persons are on the dole.

U. S. Employes Fight Cuts, Ask Bigger Budgets

Roosevelt Aid Predicted; Leader Scores Civil Service Dismissals.

Increased departmental budgets for 1934-35 will be sought by the National Federation of Federal Employes in a move to curb furloughs and dismissals, totaling several thousand in the past year.

Plans for a drive to provide department heads and bureau chiefs with sufficient funds to remove all possibility of further personnel cuts were revealed yesterday by Miss Gertrude McNally, organization secretary. She predicted budget estimates to be made public by President Roosevelt when Congress convenes would be substantially larger than those for the current year.

The organization has succeeded in having numerous furloughed and dismissed workers returned to the rolls.

"We're using every avenue possible," Miss McNally said, "to stop furloughs and dismissals. I think it's terrible the way efficient workers have been losing their jobs.

"Very serious inroads have been made on the merit system by spoilsmen. A real merit system would mean there wouldn't be a single worker with civil service status out of a job. You'd think they'd be glad to have civil-service trained employes first of all, and then, if possible, bring in persons who must be given political jobs."

Miss McNally complimented the Agriculture Department for giving preference to civil-service workers. She contended most of the emergency agencies employ favored outsiders instead of merit-system workers in filling vacancies.

Plan to Put Pecora In U. S. Post Denied

Is Not Being Considered as Federal Prosecutor.

Rumors about the appointment of Ferdinand Pecora, special counsel for the Senate Banking Committee, as United States Attorney for New York were branded "just talk" at the Department of Justice yesterday.

Rumors emanating from New York had Pecora as a likely choice to succeed George Medalie, Republican. Reports said "the Administration was looking for an aggressive and fiery individual" to take over the office, and that Pecora was the logical choice notwithstanding his defeat for the post of New York County district attorney. Department officials said the report was news to them.

3 Army Fliers Escape When Plane Wrecked

They were en route from Indiana, Pa., to Dayton with Williamson piloting. Darkness and a snowstorm overtook them. In landing the plane ran off the edge of a field and struck a wall.

Restaurant Manager Fined.

James Protos, restaurant manager, 912 Fourteenth street northwest, was fined $20 in Police Court yesterday for violation of the six-day female work law. Protos was convicted of permitting Helen Plakas, 21, a waitress, to work more than six days a week.

Work for Unemployed Men.

The Government has announced its intention of finding work for 4,000,000 unemployed or partly employed men within the immediate future. Half of these men are to be assigned to public works projects within a few days, it is stated, and the rest will be absorbed into "fully self-sustaining" work "a little later." The Public Works Administration has agreed to furnish $400,000,000 to finance the initial undertakings and State and local governments will be expected to contribute additional sums.

Apparently the intention is to remove about 2,000,000 men at once from the rolls of the relief agencies and to transfer them to a new civil works division of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, which will employ these men "at the hourly rates prevailing for similar work in the community." The result, of course, will be a substantial increase in the amounts paid to those previously in receipt of relief grants. Mr. Hopkins explains that the contemplated projects are "on the border line between ordinary public works activities and outright relief."

It looks as if the P.W.A. had abandoned the sound principles laid down for testing the social usefulness of the projects offered for its approval in agreeing to spend $400,000,000 for "border line" public works projects without prior investigation.

Certainly, a list of the heterogeneous activities which may be financed by the new civil works organization covers a multitude of occupations which seem exceedingly remote from the field of public works, as that term is customarily used.

However, the purpose of this latest plan for relieving distress is fairly clear, even if the details are obscure. The scope of the plan and the speed with which it is to be executed make it inevitable that the work provided will not be suited to the capacities of large numbers of the men to be employed, nor will the tasks assigned them differ greatly from the kind of work given to many now on relief rolls, merely for the purpose of strengthening their morale.

Experience has shown that the execution of a public works program is necessarily a slow process if funds are to be spent economically and with the intention of securing tangible benefits. It imposes a severe strain upon the credulity of the average man to ask him to believe that within the next few weeks the Government can find socially useful and self-sustaining work for from 2,000,000 to 4,000,000 men. Undoubtedly, work of some sort can be provided for all who are employable, but unless it is work that needs to be done, the wages paid will be a camouflaged dole, donated in large part by the Public Works Administration.

The P.W.A. might be doing more to relieve distress if it were to devote its resources to financing public works and construction projects that would not only give a large amount of direct employment to labor but would at the same time create a demand for the products of many allied heavy industries.

Civil Service Impaired.

Reports that 145,118 Federal employes have been separated from the service since March are misleading. The books of the Civil Service Commission show that number of separations and 148,058 additions to the Government's pay rolls. But a large percentage of these "separations" represent transfers of employes from one department to another under the reorganization program. Another sizable group consists of temporary employes who have been hired for brief periods to do special work in a number of new governmental agencies. These figures do not in any sense represent an actual turnover of personnel since the new Administration took the helm.

Nevertheless, it is apparent that thousands of civil service workers have lost their jobs while other thousands of patronage seekers have been rewarded with Government positions. During the last seven months there has been a net addition of nearly 3,000 employes to the Federal pay roll for the executive agencies. While the personnel of some departments has been sharply reduced, ten emergency establishments have hired 16,666 employes. None of these agencies is required to draw its personnel from civil service lists, and most of them have completely ignored the Civil Service Commission in hiring employes.

Figures showing the total number of separations from the competitive classified service during recent months are not available. But the commission reports a reduction of 12,799 employes during the fiscal year ending last June 30. During the same period there was a reduction of 11,065 in the number of employes serving under the merit system. In other words, civil service employes who have obtained their jobs through competitive examinations have suffered most from the reorganization program, while new jobs have been distributed largely on a political basis.

An increase in the number of Government workers perhaps was inevitable because of the extensive emergency activities undertaken by the Administration, but it is unfortunate that the new organizations are being built up largely through political influence.

President Roosevelt recently requested the Director of the Budget to investigate the failure of these agencies to cooperate with the Civil Service Commission in choosing their personnel. The President expressed surprise at reports indicating that preference is not being given to applicants having a civil service status, in accordance with his request made several months ago. He let it be known that he expects compliance with that request. Nevertheless, most of the jobs available in the emergency organizations have been awarded chiefly on a political basis, and the civil service now plays a less important role in Federal personnel matters than it did a few months ago.

The Farm Strike.

Reaction against the farm strike in the Middle West is arising from a number of sources. Edward A. O'Neal, President of the American Farm Bureau Federation, has expressed opposition to the strike and asked farmers to give the agricultural adjustment program a fair trial. In Iowa farmers are organizing to keep the highways open in spite of the strikers. Gov. Herring of that State has asked sheriffs to deputize citizens for highway patrol duty if that course is necessary to guarantee protection to farmers who wish to move their crops to market.

The leaders of the strike movement seek to justify it as a means of calling public attention to the plight of agriculture. The entire Nation is aware of the farmer's plight, and nearly every one is in sympathy with the general objective of increasing the farmer's purchasing power. It is not a question of indifference to the welfare of agriculture, but a question of practical methods by which depression on the farm can be lifted. A movement designed to spread unrest in the farm belt and to prod Washington officials into new experiments might easily become a boomerang for the farmer.

"The method of solving the situation by farm strikes," says Mr. O'Neal, "is a less hopeful way. In fact, it may be a hopeless way so far as real raising of prices of farm commodities is concerned. These activities are likely to hinder the successful operation of the present laws and might delay, rather than hasten, the advent of the higher price level for farm crops."

Most farmers are disappointed with the results obtained by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration thus far, but they realize that the basic maladjustments of agriculture can not be straightened out by the strike method. It is unfortunate that a few individuals who profess to represent the farmers are encouraging practices of this kind.

The Community Chest.

The first drive of the Community Chest campaign is under way. A committee is seeking special gifts which are expected to make up a considerable part of the $1,945,000 needed to finance social service agencies of Washington during the next year. By the time the general campaign gets under way on November 20 this unit hopes to have a substantial sum already pledged to the chest.

In good times and in bad every community should meet its responsibilities to those in distress. The needs this winter will be greater than ever before. While Federal and District funds will help to relieve unemployment, they will not be available for the humanitarian duties of all kinds which devolve upon the Community Chest. The sick, the aged, the homeless children, the blind, the maimed—these and other victims of misfortune, whose needs can not be met by the use of public funds, must be provided for through the generosity of the community.

By the concentration of all efforts in a single campaign for funds the social service requirements of the entire community can be supplied on an equitable basis. The Community Chest method of financing welfare and social work needs no defense. It has become the established means through which progressive communities supply urgent needs of their unfortunate citizens.

Residents of Washington may be expected to respond to this civic duty as they have done in the past. If the needs of the agencies supported by the chest are kept in mind when contributions are made, there should be no difficulty in filling the chest to the brim.

Transport Cooperation.

An interesting example of cooperation in solving a transportation problem is reported from Australia. A trucking concern established a good business in long-distance hauling, taking traffic from the South Australian Railways. The highway was a busy one, and the heavy trucks contributed to the congestion as well as the cost of paving repairs. There was a demand for cancellation of the license of the trucking company, but the government transport board persuaded both sides that cooperative effort would provide the proper solution.

The final arrangement provided that the trucks should abandon long hauls on main roads and act as feeders to the railroad. The trucking concern was allowed its own sidings and sheds at terminals. Dismountable van bodies were loaded on railway cars for transportation to more distant points. The truck company was granted full-truck rates, even though its loads usually were made up of mixed consignments. As the truckers did their own loading and unloading, the railroad suffered no inconvenience from the fact that small-lot merchandise made up the load.

The result of the experiment, it is announced, has been an increase in truck business and a substantial addition to railroad traffic. This arrangement provides service similar to that which some American railroads are establishing in connection with freight—that is, door-to-door deliveries.

Truck and railroad rivalries in various sections of the United States offer difficult problems that can not be solved as simply as the Australian case, which involved principally one trucking company in competition with one railroad. Since both systems of transportation are needed in this country, however, it would be to the advantage of all traffic interests, as well as shippers, to reconcile present differences and arrive at an equitable adjustment for their mutual welfare.

Railway Electrification.

With the allotment of $84,000,000 by the Public Works Administration, no time will be lost in extending toward the Capital the electrification of the Pennsylvania Railroad's line between New York and Washington. The company, it is announced, will spend $2,500,000 this month on the project and $4,500,000 in December, with an outlay of approximately $6,000,000 every month in 1934.

The various features of the work outlined by the PWA include the fabrication and placing of 2,500 towers to carry overhead wiring in addition to the 1,800 already in place, and the construction of substations between Wilmington and Washington to supply current. Many additional electric locomotives will be required, as well as the multiple unit cars used in the electric service. At Elkton, Md., grade crossings will be eliminated and a four-track connection installed.

In Washington the Virginia avenue tunnel must be enlarged to give necessary clearance for electrical operation. Additional facilities will be provided for electric freight operation at Potomac yard. A new double-track tunnel is to be added in Baltimore. Nearly $6,000,000 will be spent next year in and adjacent to Washington for special tunnel and terminal work in addition to the general electrification of the road.

Government statisticians estimate that 18,000 men will be given direct employment on the Pennsylvania construction work, and that a total of 50,000,000 man-hours of work scattered through 35 States will be created.

Motor Fuel From Coal.

The coal mining industry of England is to be aided by the decision of the government to subsidize the production of oil from coal. Manufacturers of motor fuel from this source will be guaranteed a premium of 4 pence a gallon on the product. Research and experiments covering several years are reported to have demonstrated the practicability of developing both motor fuel and oil suitable for use in Diesel engines, which would reduce in some measure the imports of motor fuel, amounting to 1,000,000,000 gallons a year.

The results of the program are expected to be of prime importance to the mining industry, which has been hard hit during recent years. British coal production, which in 1913 exceeded 287,000,000 tons, with an export total of 73,400,000 tons, was reduced last year to 208,700,000 tons, with less than 40,000,000 tons exported. The plans for extracting oil from coal are expected to provide reemployment for many idle miners.

The British Fuel Research Station has demonstrated that a ton of coal will produce 20 gallons of tar, which can be reduced to 14 gallons of motor spirit and 6 gallons of oil for Diesel engines. The favored method of conversion is known as hydrogenation. A British company has been working to perfect the hydrogenation process for six years, and is said to have spent £1,000,000 in experimentation, with the result that it is now constructing a plant which will produce 30,000,000 gallons of motor fuel annually, consuming nearly 400,000 tons of coal and giving employment to 1,500 miners. Another company, also using the low-temperature carbonization process, has obtained a navy contract for oil and is providing airplane fuel for the Royal Air Force.

One reason why there will not be 57 varieties of liquor regulation in this country is that there are only 48 States.

The farm strike would be a terrible menace but for the fact that most farmers are against it.

Sir Francis Drake a Pirate!

From the Kansas City Times.

One of the disquieting phenomena of the times is the ready inclination among members of a certain growing group to make free with the characters and reputations of historic persons, with no more compunction than if they were alive and active among us today. At Sioux City, Iowa, last Friday, a Michigan University professor, without expert qualifications other than that he is the author of several internationally standard works on English history, took the stand in the Federal court and denounced Sir Francis Drake as "something of a scoundrel" and "just a pirate," omitting as he did so, any use of the words "glamorous" or "glorious" or any of their equivalents.

Frankly, that sort of thing is beginning to rasp. We who have cultivated Sir Francis Drake from our earliest boyhood, and have devoured all the authentic chronicles of his prodigious deeds from Mother Goose to Alfred Noyes, have formed rather a high opinion of him, one that we do not intend to give up on any evidence so obviously hearsay. We saw him sweeping up and down the high seas, even before it was generally understood that Britannia ruled the waves, smiting the Spaniards hip and thigh at a time when purging the earth of Spaniards was a far more glorious and worthy endeavor than it ever has been since—even in 1898.

We never heard that Drake worked his men 56 hours a week for $9; if he ever sold his stock in the Golden Hind short when Queen Bess was trying to support the market, it never got into the books. He took on all Spaniards from Cadiz to Nombre de Dios and chiseled them roundly, but he paid a goodly income tax for the privilege without doctoring a book or setting up an affiliate. And now we are told that he was just a muscleman for a hijacking queen!

He took two years to go around the world, because he scorned to take short cuts, like Wiley Post. And now, we suppose, we're to be told that he was no navigator!

"Business as Usual."

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

MUSSOLINI AND BALBO.

Balbo.
You sent for me, most gracious chief;
There's some surprise—I feel it;
More medals I anticipate.
How idle to conceal it!

Mussolini.
I sent for you—indeed I did—
Or had my office do it;
My purpose isn't what you think—
I fear you misconstrue it.

Balbo.
That epic flight—'twas nothing much,
It made a world-wide story,
But I'm no glutton for rewards—
I'm satisfied with glory.

Mussolini.
Don't be so modest, Balbo, dear,
You swayed the world—confess it!
A grand surprise I have for you—
You'll never, never guess it.

Balbo.
Don't be too generous, I pray;
Promotions are so trying.
I'm quite contented where I am
As minister of flying.

Mussolini.
My boy, you minimize your deeds—
They are so great I'd never Consider overlooking them—
'Twould not be wise or clever.

Balbo.
You make, I fear, too much of them;
I'm but a simple flier;
I'm really very happy and
I crave no office higher.

Mussolini.
I know when merit brings reward;
So have no further worry—
I'm sending you to Africa—
Your hat, sir! What's your hurry?

Balbo.
To Africa? To Africa?
Do my old ears deceive me?
Can I be hearing what you say?
If so the tidings grieve me.

Mussolini.
You heard me; in affairs or state
I'm really rather psychic:
You're going, kid, to Africa—
So fly or swim or hike it!

Balbo.
But, chief . .

Mussolini.
No "buts!" It's very quiet there
And you must grin and bear it;
I own the spotlight here in Rome
And know too much to share it.
Good-by! Good luck! Don't slam the door!
And in the desert heat, oh,
Reflect no hero ever shares
The spotlight with Benito

To Libya you must go—
To Libya you must go—
The newsreel men can't find you then—
To Libya you must go!

YES, COME TO THINK OF IT.

Our idea of a big news story is when an American heiress gets to Europe and back without marrying one of the Mdvani boys.

What They Promised.

Charleston News and Courier.

It is not the belief of the News and Courier that the eighteenth amendment was the prineipal cause of the depression or of the increase of crime—but before it was adopted the prohibitionists promised that it would save the country from poverty and from crime. They promised it twenty thousand times in ten thousand different places. The banks were to be crammed with coin and the jails were to be emptied.

George Santayana.

Although a fullblooded, 100 per cent Spaniard by birth and parentage, Mr. Santayana is perhaps the most accomplished master of English prose now living, and stands high among contemporary poets. Thirty years ago he was a member of the Harvard philosophical department, when Harvard had the most distinguished group of professors in that subject of all the universities in the world. William James, Josiah Royce, George H. Palmer, Hugo Munsterberg and George Santayana made up a department of scholars and teachers so brilliant that practically every Harvard undergraduate took some course or courses in philosophy.

Those who are particularly interested in the study of philosophy will no doubt find it stimulating to read Mr. Santayana's work, The Life of Reason. But I, who have no interest whatever in the scientific side of philosophy—if it has one—but only in its literary aspect, take delight in reading those works of Mr. Santayana that reveal his airs and graces as an artist. I like his book, "Character and Opinion in the United States," and especially his "Soliloquies in England," which contains the best essay on Dickens I have seen.

Some years ago Mr. Santayana resigned his professorship to devote all his time to writing, and left America for Europe, probably never to return. He lives in cheerful solitude; but those who are walking in the Pincian Gardens in Rome between the hours of 4 and 6 on a winter afternoon will see him.

His poems, selected and revised by him in 1923, are very beautiful, especially the Sonnets.

If the Native's God Would Steal, It Is Well to Watch the Native.

By Robert Quillen.

If 10 people standing together observe the full moon and attempt to describe it, no two of them will agree. One will think it the size of a dollar, another the size of a dinner plate and another the size of a car wheel.

No one sees the moon as it is. The reflection of it strikes his eyes; delicate nerves report the impression to his brain; and his conception of the image depends on the strength and sensitivity of his eyes and the ability of his brain to interpret impressions.

As people differ in all other particulars, so that no two in all the world make the same print, so they differ in the physical construction of their brains.

The brain is composed of untold millions of microscopic cells and within these is an energy, beyond the understanding of the greatest scientists, that equips them for the process called thought.

As two brains differ in physical construction, and thus in power of thought, their difference must increase as they gather and store the knowledge reported by the senses.

One accumulates more facts than the other and of this superior equipment forms ideas of which the other is incapable.

One, because of its natural superiority, reaches conclusions that are beyond the capacity of the other.

And if no two brains, being different by nature and training, can make the same interpretation of an image or sound or odor reported by the senses, how much more they must differ in their interpretation of an abstract idea.

Even simple words such as big, late, love and awful mean different things to different people. For these words express ideas, and the reception of an idea depends on the brain's ability to digest it.

These things being true, it is easy to understand why men differ in their conception of God.

One age or race fears a God of vengeance; another loves a God of mercy. And one race wishes to destroy another because it not worship the true God.

But none sees God as He does, and the God of each is the God his poor abilities are able to conceive and comprehend.

Thus each individual creates his God in his own image, and to know a man's God is to know the ideals and capacities and limitations of the man.

Press Comment

Poisonous Cosmetics.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The movement for revision of the food and drugs act to insure better protection for the people has a notable ally in Mrs. Roosevelt. At a recent press conference she exhibited pictures from the "chamber of horrors," which is a collection of evidence, gathered by the Department of Agriculture, to demonstrate the loopholes in the present law and the harm wrought by them. Among the photographs shown by Mrs. Roosevelt were two of a young woman whose sight had been destroyed by a single application of a preparation for curling eyelashes. They were grewsome pictures, that sent shudders through the assembled reporters. The Government was powerless to prevent sale of the dangerous preparation that caused this tragedy. Why? Simply because the present act, passed in 1906, makes no mention of cosmetics, which at that distant date had little commercial importance.

Better Times Abroad.

Kansas City Times.

The reports of continued business improvement from many parts of the world, assembled by the Department of Commerce in Washington, are encouraging to the United States for two reasons. One is that they indicate the existence of a kind of time limit for the present depression, which seems definitely to have been passed now in most, if not all, of the important commercial countries. The cyclical movement of business conditions in the past, with alternating periods of expansion and contraction, of course, has led the world to assume that sooner or later even a depression on the scale of the present one would run its course naturally and be followed by the usual recovery. But it is a comfort to have real evidence that the turning point has been reached.

Relativity.

Detroit Free Press.

Sir Arthur Slater, the British economist, asserts that more people are earning money and living comfortably during the present world depression than were working steadily and living comfortably a quarter of a century ago. The world as a whole is better off than it was then. The depression in comparison with the bountiful times of a decade back. In fact, it is only a depression in a relative sense, and in another relative sense it's not a depression at all. Presto, chango, see—it's all a matter of relativity.

Carlisle Bargeron

IT IS INEVITABLE that after the Administration's retreat from New York there should be a clamor for Jim Farley's scalp. One prominent newspaper supporting the Administration yesterday called for his resignation. In another editorial quarter one read the suggestion that Jim's wings would be clipped now. It is a good thing for Jim that Congress is not in session because there would be any number of senators and congressmen to run to the White House and tell Mr. Roosevelt they were so devoted to him they felt compelled to advise that Jim go. Even with Congress away there will be those hereabouts to whisper this in the President's ear.

BARGERON.

It is the way political things go. At the time McKee was dragged into the race by the Administration a newspaper chain that is yelling the President's praises to the sky indignantly demanded of Mr. Roosevelt that he not let Jim do him the way he was. The newspaper chain happened to be supporting La-Guardia. Of Mr. Roosevelt it had not the slightest criticism about McKee's candidacy. Jim was the man.

* * * *

I HAVE never understood how newspapers and politicians can do such as this with a straight face. The Administration's entrance into the New York mayoralty race was a silly thing and one bound to be resented. And, of course, it suffered a defeat.

But it was the Administration that did it—and not Jim Farley. And while criticism may very well be in order now by those disappointed at the outcome, it should be of the Administration and not the man who was simply doing what he was told.

Anyone who knows anything about politics—and certainly those critics of the New York debacle—know full well that Jim would not on his own have gone into the fight.

* * * *

HE may have had the original idea. About that I do not know. But wherever it originated it went through the White House process and became a definite decision on the part of the Administration. There is no doubt either that Mr. Roosevelt's feeling against Boss Curry, of Tammany Hall, made it for him a delightful decision to reach.

Unfortunately for Jim's part, the word did go around that he had the most directly to gain, that by getting control of Tammany the way would be paved for him to the governor's chair in 1936. That, however, is rather far-fetched. If Mr. Roosevelt can command a renomination himself, in 1936, which is the likelihood, to say the very least, then he certainly can dictate Jim's gubernatorial nomination then.

The plain truth is that whatever the underlying motives of the Administration were in going into New York, they were the Administration's, not those of one single member of the Cabinet.

* * * *

BUT it will be an open season on Jim for all of those who have stored up grievances against the present regime, all of those who are nursing fancied wrongs. They have wanted to complain all along, but against the Administration they didn't have the nerve. Jim offers the outlet. Complain against him!

Where they are wrong is that a smart President always is able to spot them, to know exactly what the trouble is. And Mr. Roosevelt is smart.

Now if McKee had won in New York there would have been no doubt as to where the Administration stood. It would have crowed and claimed it as another evidence of how the people eat out of its hands.

But since McKee didn't win, then it was just a mess that Jim got into and for which his wings should be clipped.

It is to laugh!

* * * *

OF course, the whole business is something from which the Administration will later hear. Every time it pleads party loyalty—on anything or anywhere—there will be the memory of its bolting the party in New York, putting up an independent candidate and wrecking the Democratic organization. It will make its demand for party loyalty very ridiculous, indeed.

But it won't help things to make Jim the goat. The truth is he is one of the most capable men they've got around here.

Golfer's Change of Heart.

Where are the wasteful boys who cried
In all the arrogance and pride
Of easy money days: "We'll play
A fifty-dollar stake today!"
Where's he who wagered dollars five
When playing golf, on every drive,
And looked with scorn upon us all
Who wished to keep our wagers small?

One gentle-spoken man I know
To such a challenge answered: "No!
I play for pleasure, not for gain;
So modest let the stake remain.
Still, if with you but money counts,
Let's see how high your courage mounts.
I'll double any sum you name
Upon the outcome of the game."

Where are those boys? All, all returned
To sanity, their lesson learned.
Stripped of all sham and boastful pride,
They look at life much clearer-eyed.
Today in these severer times
Their golfing stakes are nickels, dimes.

Roosevelt Gets Luther Plaque Opening Rites

450th Birthday of Noted Reformer Will Be Marked Tonight.

Presentation yesterday of a bronze plaque to President Roosevelt commemorative of the 450th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther, inaugurated today's ceremonies in honor of the great reformer.

The plaque was presented to Mr. Roosevelt at the White House by E. F. Eilert, treasurer of the National Lutheran Council, speaking for a group including the Rev. Charles Enders, Dr. Harry T. Domer, Carl W. Johnson, the Rev. Gerhard E. Lenski, Martin A. McGory, Prof. Raymond J. Seeger, of George Washington University; Dr. William J. Showalter, the Rev. Howard E. Snyder and Dr. N. J. Gould Wickey.

This morning at 9 p. m. this same committee will place a wreath on the statue at Thomas Circle, erected 50 years ago to mark the 400th anniversary of Luther's birth.

Colorful religious pageantry will feature the celebration tonight in Constitution Hall, when all Protestant denomination will join with Lutheran churches in honoring the German idealist. Dr. Hans Luther, German Ambassador to the United States, a descendant of the reformer, will speak on "Martin Luther's Influence on Christendom." This speech later will be broadcast over a national hook-up at 10:45.

The Rev. Paul E. Scherer, pastor of the Holy Trinity Lutheran Church in New York, also will speak. Dr. Howard E. Snyder, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Atonement, will conduct the closing services and the benediction will be pronounced by the Rev. S. T. Nicholas.

The combined choirs of all Washington Lutheran Churches, directed by John Monroe, will sing, and the Washington Orchestral Society, under direction of Dr. C. E. Christiani, will take part.

An interesting feature of the musical program will be the processional hymn, "Come, Holy Spirit, God and Lord," written by Luther in 1524. "Ein Feste Burg," the most famous hymn written by Luther, also will be offered.

George Washington University will observe the Luther anniversary with noon chapel services when Dr. N. J. Gould Wickey, executive secretary of the Lutheran Board of Education and former president of Carthage College, will speak.

DeMolay Lodge Gives Degrees Here Tonight

High District Masons to Take Active Part in Ceremony.

Led by Benjamin Doehrer and Charles A. Goodman, a team composed of past master councilors and members of the alumni of Robert Le Bruce Chapter, Order of De Molay, will confer degrees upon a number of candidates tonight at Almas Temple Clubhouse, Thirteenth and K streets northwest. All Master Masons of the District are invited.

Worshipful masters of many District Masonic lodges, officers of the grand lodge, of the commandery and Scottish Rite bodies have signified their intention to be present.

Harry C. Kimball, grand master, Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia; Warren Grimes, potentate of Almas Temple; Gen. Amos A. Fries, District deputy of the De Molay Grand Council, and Leonard P. Steuart, imperial chief rabban of the Shrine, are among the Masons who will be honorary guests.

The degree team includes 14 past master councilors of De Molay. Goodman, who will take the part of junior councilor, is a thirty-second degree Mason, a noble of Almas Temple, a member of the Scottish bodies of the District, a member of National Lodge, No. 12, and is on the advisory council of the Robert Le Bruce Chapter. He is one of the few De Molays who has received the Legionnaire of Honor, the highest award of the order.

Dollar Falls to New Low Mark

the domestic gold price of $33.15 an ounce, indicating 62.35 per cent of parity.

So great was the foreign drop of the dollar that its gold price in London went to $33.21, actually above the domestic posted price for the newly mined metal. Up to yesterday the domestic price had been as high as $1.25 above the London level.

Meanwhile, stocks on the New York market went up to an irregular close during which there was heavy profit taking—the sales reached 3,000,000 shares in one of the largest overturns in some time—wheat rose 3 to 4 cents net, cotton jumped $1 a bale, then closed with gains of 70 to 80 cents, but Government bonds developed pronounced weakness.

Though some officials fear that the marked drop of the dollar in exchange will invite retaliatory measures abroad, others hold that as long as the dollar is falling business will not make commitments and that no American trade advantage will result until an effort is made to stabilize, or at least to halt the drop.

Bond Slump Alarming.

However, there is unanimity among officials charged with Treasury financing and budget-balancing over the serious consequences of a drop in Government bonds at an hour when the Treasury is still offering its new 4¼-3¼ per cent conversion bonds and must look to the market for much more financing of public works, relief and other requirements. The conversion issue, for instance, originally quoted at 102, were down to $98.30 at yesterday's close.

Accordingly the prospect of increasing difficulty and rising interest charges in selling further issues was far from pleasing to the Treasury, and was disquieting to those Presidential advisers who strenuously oppose printing greenbacks as a means of escaping from selling Government bonds to the public.

Bank Portfolios Shrink.

Of even deeper concern to officials responsible for banking policy is the effect of Government bond-price shrinkage upon the portfolios of all banking institutions. Reserve System member banks hold nearly 7,000,000,000 of Governments, into which the money of depositors has been placed. Nonmember banks hold many more. The latest Federal Reserve Board statement shows holdings of $2,430,000,000 in Government securities. Protection of Government credit is so vital a principle to a number of Administration officials that a continuation of the present trends is, from their viewpoint, intolerable.

To the unorthodox among the monetary advisers Federal credit is a subordinate consideration, especially to those who favor currency inflation by greenbacks or any other method. The differences among the President's counselors are acutely accentuated by the latest developments, with the orthodox hopeful that the present, and to them undesirable, signs will turn the White House back to the orthodox course. Thus they look for an early recasting of policy, and hope for an end of the uncertainty about the future value of the dollar.

Want Uncertainty Removed.

More and more weight is being piled up at the White House by business, industrial and banking leaders to support those advisers who tell Mr. Roosevelt that until the uncertainty is removed capital will remain in flight or refuse to venture into enterprise necessary to revive basic industry. They cite that in October new corporate financing fell to a new low, not merely because of the exactions of the security act, but because of prevailing uncertainty. Only seven corporate issues were offered, aggregating but $3,109,000, and five of these were for breweries.

The divergence of monetary views has now reached the stage among Administration officials where a definite reversion to "sound money" policy or an open breach appears to be immediately ahead.

France Fights Doggedly.

Paris, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—The French government fought doggedly today to remain on the gold standard in the face of a dropping dollar which touched a new low since the World War.

The dollar closed at 16.11 francs, or 6.207 cents a franc, compared with an opening of 16.15 francs to the dollar or 6.192 cents a franc.

American purchases of gold also affected the situation, the weekly bulletin of the Bank of France showing a decrease of 283,342,978 francs in gold reserves compared with a week ago.

Despite this difficult situation the government of Premier Albert Sarraut insisted it intended to cling to the gold standard.

London, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—The United States dollar dropped to the lowest point since the World War today on the London exchange, when it closed at $5.04 to the pound sterling. It went down to $5.06 in later dealings, after opening at $4.98½ or 3½ cents higher than yesterday's closing.

The continued drop caused consternation in financial circles, where reaction policies were being considered.

In the House of Commons Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, said the government had no intention of pegging the pound either to the dollar or the franc.

of the countess shortly after the Brookville incident.

Miss Maret was the chief witness. She said Gormley inveigled her into an automobile ride that was supposed to go no farther than the Chevy Chase Circle. When they had driven beyond that point, she asserted, she asked that they turn back, and it was then that Gormley drew the car to an abrupt halt, only to find the "policeman" confronting him.

Both Gormley and the countess denied the charge.

Neither defendant had any statement to make after Justice Joseph W. Cox ordered them committed to await sentence. The countess was held in a cell far from that occupied by Gormley. She did not appear to take the conviction seriously.

Man Held in Stabbing During Feud Outbreak

Warm Springs, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.). Jack Law, 22, is in jail here in connection with the stabbing of Norman Beard. Both live at Bacova Junction. Beard is in the hospital with a dangerous wound in the abdomen.

Girl Feared Slain, Alive in Baltimore

Knowledge of New Jersey Gang Murder Denied.

Baltimore, Nov. 9 (A.P.).—Mrs. Florence Miller, one of the two girls feared slain last week by New Jersey gangsters, was located here by police.

She said she know nothing about the "murder" report and would communicate with her mother at Johnstown, Pa., at once. Another young woman, Nancy Lang, was with Mrs. Miller.

Dispatches last week said two young women were in an automobile in which two gangsters were shot near Camden, N. J. Neither could be found later and Mrs. Miller's mother expressed the belief her daughter had been slain.

Cripple Creek Gold Strike Assays High

Ore Samples Claimed to Run $33,000 Per Ton.

Denver, Nov. 9 (A.P.).—A new gold strike on Carbonate Hill in the Cripple Creek region, one of Colorado's best known gold-prodycing areas, was reported here today by S. S. Bernard, veteran miner. He said selected samples from the mine assayed as high as $33,000 per ton.

Bernard said the strike was made at grass roots in virgin ground on the John Kirk lease of the White Rose claim. He said the vein was uncovered a half-mile from any workings.

"Last of the Mohicans" Dead in Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 9 (A.P.). Death, in the county hospital, has stilled the activities of Maq-Qua-Poy, self-styled "last of the Mohicans," 76-year-old Indian, known to the modern world as plain William Dick.

Lie Costly!

Prisoner's Denial of Long Record Nets Him Year.

George Green, 34, colored, of 1408 C street southeast, learned not to perjure himself, but the lesson cost him one year in jail, following a Police Court trial yesterday.

Green stole 60 pounds of sausage from a meat wagon November 6. When Assistant United States Attorney Milford Schwartz handed Judge Isaac R. Hitt Green's criminal record, Green said the record belonged to "some other fellow."

Schwartz continued the case. When Green appeared in court yesterday he looked upon the faces of 25 officers who were ready to testify to the authenticity of Green's record. Green took one look at the officers and admitted the perjury. The record showed Green had been accused of 39 petty crimes and was convicted of 14.

Ickes Commends Crew For Arctic Ice Rescue

The officers and crew of the Interior Department vessel North Star were warmly commended yesterday in a message from Secretary Ickes for their heroism in rescuing a sailing vessel jammed in an Arctic ice flow recently.

Mr. Ickes received the story of the rescue in a letter from John Backland, captain of the schooner C. S. Holmes. The schooner was en route to Point Barrow, on the north coast of Alaska, with supplies.

Roumania Plans Second "Token" Debt Payment

Bucharest, Roumania, Nov. 9 (A.P.). The government announced today that Roumania will pay its war debts to the United States December 15 on the same basis as its June 15 payment.

On June 15 the Roumanian government made a "token" payment of 2 per cent on its debt.

Liquor Board Bars Saloons In New York

Sale of Drinks Will Be Permitted Only at Tables.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 9 (AP).—The old-time saloon and its bar were ruled out in New York State under an experimental liquor control plan announced by the State's "A. B. C." Board tonight.

After repeal New Yorkers may buy their Bronx or Martini only in bona fide hotels, restaurants, clubs, dining cars and ships. The only restaurants permitted to sell drinks are those which can prove that most of their receipts come from the sale of food.

Modified Quebec Plan.

Sale of bottled liquor for off-premises consumption was restricted to State licensed retail liquor stores—a modification of the Quebec plan. Neither groceries nor any other kind of store can sell liquor or wine. The only exception is in the case of large groceries which have room to set up an exclusive wine and liquor division, it was explained, and drug stores which can sell a half pint of liquor or a quart of wine on prescription.

The State will collect 25 cents in tax on each quart of liquor sold, 10 cents a quart on sparkling wines, and 10 cents a gallon on still wines.

"No liquors or wines shall be sold or served in such (retail) licensed premises, except at tables where food may be served," the board ruled.

Graduated Licenses.

The board moved immediately to issue license applications. Drinking places in New York City must pay at an annual license rate of $1,500. Places in cities between 100,000 and a million population pay at the rate of $1,200 a year, elsewhere, $750.

Liquor manufacturers are licensed for $15,000 a year, and wholesalers $4,800.

The State board licenses distilleries and wholesalers. Retailers get their licenses through the New York City board or the upstate county boards.

Swinging doors, partitions, screens and colored windows are definitely out, together with the "back room" which Edward P. Mulrooney, chairman of the board and former New York City police commissioner, regards as a source of harm.

"Temperance and obedience to law and order" were the board's aims. It told Gov. Lehman in a letter accompanying the plan.

School Meet at Front Royal.

Front Royal, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.).—The public relations committee of the Warren County schools met yesterday and heard addresses by business men and school officials on current school problems.

Pieces of Eight — The Capture — By Charles B. Driscoll

Toward the Bermudas the pirate Blackbeard pursues his victim, the ship Protestant Caesar, of Boston. Because the Queen Anne's Revenge suffered badly torn sails in the running engagement, the fleeing ship manages to make a little harbor known today as Georges Bay.

Capt. Wyat, of the Protestant Caesar, beached his ship on a sandy shore. He and his men escaped overside and fled inland, while the pirate was pounding away at them with his chase guns.

The pirates boarded the abandoned prize from rowboats, and found her richly laden with mixed cargo. They found, too, two chests of money, gold and silver, in the captain's cabin. Food and perishable goods were removed into the pirate ship.

Blackbeard had the treasure taken ashore. It was carefully stowed away in a great cavern, known today as Bassetts Cave. Teach was on a long cruise, and did not wish to overload his ship so early in the voyage.

Radio Waves and Ripples

HAVING practically opened a new field for women by deciding to make a bona-fide announcer of one of them, WJSV minds now are hearing complaints about the masculinity of their attitude toward applicants.

The typical male attitude, as we understand it from a typically womanish viewpoint, is one of stultifying condensation. It is as if the minds said while listening to the efforts of lady announcer applicants:

"We know you can't do this the way it ought to be done, but we said we would hire one of you, and we mean to go through with it."

Consequently, as one applicant wrote the minds, the girls are terrified into producing something far below their abilities. They haven't a chance to make good, even though they know, as this one did, that 90 per cent of the announcers (male) and their just too perfect accents are constant sources of irritation for 99 per cent of the listeners.

As a matter of fact, we have suspected the WJSV minds of a different sort of skepticism, of doubting secretly that the lady announcer business, after all, will take them out of the rut into which their men have got them. They are ripe, we think, for some young woman with courage and sense enough to step to an audition microphone and be herself for five minutes.

Whitecaps.

WRC—Marine Band concert, with Capt. Taylor Branson speaking of the 158th anniversary of the Corps, 3 p .m.; Cities Service concert, Jessica Dragonette singing "O Dry Those Tears," "No Me Lo Digas," "When You're Away," and the Cavaliers in "By a Waterfall," and "An Old Guitar and an Old Refrain," 8 p. m.; Fred Allen's Salad Bowl Revue, 9 p. m.

WMAL — Eastern vs. Tech, high school football, 3:15 p. m.; Catholic University Football Program, Coaches Gus Dorais, Detroit University, and Dutch Bergman, C. U., in an interview, 6:15 p. m.; Jan Smeterlin, Polish pianist, in a Chopin-Debussy concert, 10:30 p. m.

WJSV—Philadelphia Orchestra concert, eight Russian folk songs by Liadow, Symphony No. 1 by Shostakovitch and "Kamarinskaya," 2:30 p .m.; March of Time, prohibition repeal, New York mayoralty, Litvinoff, 8:30 p. m.; Dr. Hans Luther, German Ambassador, in address commemorating 450th anniversary of birth of Martin Luther, 11 p. m.

WOL—WOL Brownies, program of talents for children, 4:30 p. m.; Hometowners, hillbillies, 7 p. m.; George Washington vs. W. & J., 8 p. m.

Chancellor Adolf Hitler and President Paul von Hindenberg broadcast to this country through N. B. C. today.

Both will be available through WMAL, the Chancellor at 7:30 and the President at 1 p. m.

The Hitler broadcast takes a half hour from Arthur Godfrey's Breakfast Club, which Godfrey thinks is important, for it gives him a chance to go out of the studio for breakfast.

Dave Herman, Post golf writer, turns radio broadcaster on WMAL tonight to interview three outstanding golf professionals playing in the National Capital Open at Kenwood here. Tentative arrangements have been made to bring to the microphone Tommy Armour, former U. S., British and Canadian open champion; Denny Shute, winner of the British open this year, and Horton Smith, National Capital titleholder.

A code for broadcasters was approved by the board of directors of the National Association of Broadcasters meeting in the Mayflower Hotel here yesterday. Principal provisions apply to wages and hours of studio workers and set up a code authority empowered to study working conditions for radio performers.

With a brand new production director, Alfred Chance, looking for work, WJSV goes earnestly into the local talent market today.

Nothing will be done by Chance this month, however, but shop quietly around, make notes. Auditions will be held the evening of Monday, December 4, at 7:30 o'clock and every Monday at that time thereafter. Audition appointments are being made in the Earle building offices.

Thinking about Ambassador Hans Luther boadcasting on the 450th anniversary of the birth of his ancestor, Martin Luther, on C. B. S. at 10:45 tonight, recalls a story of the doctor that is being bandied about N. B. C. studios here. It concerns the ambassador's efforts to give his American audience an idea of what a German election ballot looks like. They say he pulled a sample ballot from his pocket and waved it in the air just to make everything clear.

WMAL's Hanna Sisters, singers, make their final regular broadcast at 9 tomorrow night. The last for some time, that is. Lillian Conn, pianist, on the other hand, has received a regular Friday night assignment on the 11:15 spot. Tonight she plays Stephen Collins Foster songs, "New Moon" selections and a war melody medley.

The Brownies show on WOL again this afternoon at 4:30 is one children's program that has not become a paradise for parents with kids who recite. The talents are handpicked.

WOL continues to mark time until a meeting of operators of former A. B. S. stations lets them know what can be done about building a new network. Trial programs from Philadelphia are being broadcast nightly.

It was said yesterday that Ed Wynn has asked Amalgamated receivers to give him back $100,000 of the quarter million he dropped in the chain project. The receivers have told him to go fly a kite, or something equally cutting.

Philadelphia, Baltimore, Wilmington, New York and WOL are the chief new chain negotiators.

Army-Harvard and Princeton-Dartmouth are the N. B. C. grid broadcasts tomorrow, both at 1:45. WRC will carry Don Wilson in a description of play from Soldier Field, Cambridge, while from the WMAL transmitter will come the voice of Graham McNamee at Princeton.

National's Radio City inaugural program and the broadcasting of the Armistice Day observances look like the best on the networks tomorrow.

Combined facilities of both the National and Columbia will carry to every station on each network the Armistice Day program sponsored by the District of Columbia Department, American Legion, at Arlington, 11 a. m.

Principal address will be by Secretary of War George Dern, following the placing of a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier by President Roosevelt.

National Commander Edward A. Hayes and Mrs. William H. Biester, jr., national president of the legion auxiliary, also will speak. Department Commander Rice W. # Opera Stars Appear Sunday At Hospital

Program for Disabled Will Precede Post's Concert Series.

To give Washington music lovers a preview of stars who are to bring them their first popular-priced grand opera and to enable war-disabled men in Capital hospitals to see as well as hear famous opera performers, seven International Opera Company singers will come to the Capital Sunday for a half hour radio broadcast and a concert in Walter Reed Hospital.

Headed by Carmela Ponselle, noted Metropolitan Opera Company mezzo soprano, and Giuseppe Martino-Rossi, well-known opera barytone, the group will sing selections from the operatic roles they are to present in Washington Auditorium the week of Sunday, November 19, from the studios of WMAL from 10 to 10:30 p. m., in conjunction with the regular nightly Postilion news broadcast.

Others in the group will be Rosita Fordiere, contralto, formerly of the La Scalla Opera House, Milan; Ciro DeRitis, native of Washington, Philadelphia Opera Company barytone; Lavinia Darve, soprano; Marie Olla, lyric soprano; Elizabeth Girard, American, who won international recognition as a specialist in German operatic roles in Berlin, and Carl Bruno, Italian tenor, recently engaged by the International Opera Company.

More than 500 patients of Naval and Walter Reed Hospitals will be guests of The Post and the International Opera Company at a concert in Walter Reed auditorium at 2 p. m. Sunday. Each of the seven stars will sing in a program of popular and light classical music. Arrangements for seating the disabled and for transporting them to the Auditorium from their beds in both hospitals are being made by Red Cross representatives. Miss Margaret Lower and Mrs. Mabel Shackelford are in charge of Red Cross activities at Walter Reed.

A public address system will carry the concert to patients unable to leave their beds.

In announcing the hospital recital, International Opera Company officials yesterday said it was the first time such a group of stars has been brought to the Capital for a concert before the opening of an opera series. Free tickets to the operas have been distributed to the hospitals.

For each of the nine performances of the International Opera Company, one of which is to be a special Saturday matinee rendition of "Aida" for school children of the Capital area, The Post has reserved 3,000 seats, which are being sold to Post readers at half-price. These tickets are on sale at the Steiff piano store, 1340 G street northwest. Readers have been requested by opera company officials to bring a copy of the paper with them for purposes of identification.

A Scribe's Training Course will begin at 7:30 p. m., November 18, and continue for three Saturday evenings at the Francis Asbury M. E. Church, Sixteenth and Lamont streets, northwest. Advance registrations are necessary.

Radio Program Resumed.

The Boy Scout weekly broadcast each Tuesday at 6 p. m., on Station WOL has been resumed under the leadership of Scoutmaster Dean J. Longfellow.

Boys Prepare for Hike.

Scouts are preparing actively now for the intergroup Thanksgiving hike into the mountains. The camp will start Friday after Thanksgiving and close on Sunday. There will be two nights and one full day at the camp. Warm clothing and equipment for cooking and sleeping will be essential. Scouts of each troop plan to cook together patrol style. Evening campfire programs are being arranged. Scouts will have a chance to prepare for advancement in rank.

First Aid Contest Called.

The board of commissioners voted unanimously Monday to carry on the first aid competition by patrol teams. Each troop has been requested to hold an interpatrol first aid contest in December, each division will hold a contest in January for troop champions, and the council-wide finals will be held in March. Teams will be limited to Scouts from real patrols.

Incident to this major emphasis on first aid, many Scout leaders are participating in a first aid course being held each Monday night by the District of Columbia Chapter of the American Red Cross. William H. Murray is also at work in building up a Boy Scout emergency first aid unit.

Winners on Hike Listed.

Winners of competitions in the "sealed orders" hike held last week by Troop 25 were: Panthers in nature study, flying eagles in first aid rescue work, Mohawks in exploration, G. R.'s for following instructions. The troop held a Halloween party November 3.

Scout Papers Increase.

Headed by the Council Fire, which has been published by Troop 100 for 12 years, the number of troop papers among District of Columbia Scout troops is increasing.

In addition to papers published by Troops 8, 15, 72, 79 and others, Troop 82, of the Brookland Methodist Church, has inaugurated the Teepee, a mimeographed six-page paper, and Troop 43, conducted by the National Baptist Memorial Church, has recently started a paper, Little Turtle.

Ten-Year Program Praised.

"I have found that the ten-year program is something we have needed for a long time," E. L. Maschmeyer, veteran scoutmaster, says.

"Most important, in my judgment, is the requirement to enroll the boy when he is 12 years old. At this age he is eager and ready to accept the Scout program.

"What, after a Scout has been in the troop for four years or more—are we to let him go? No, just give him a job such as junior assistant and make him responsible for the first aid, life saving, signaling, handicraft or map making, and he will stick with his troop and be just as active as any member of his troop.

"How can we keep scouts for four years or more? Provide a balanced program and let the older boys do the leading, the scoutmaster supervising and overseeing the leadership."

Eighth Division Will Rally.

Scouters of the Eighth Division have set November 17 as the date for a divisional rally at which Troop 5 will be host in St. Alban's Parish Hall. The Jamboree Scouts recently returned from Europe will appear on the program.

Scouts to Aid Chest.

Two hundred scouts will be on duty at the closing session of the Community Chest campaign at the Washington Auditorium November 29. A dozen troops have chosen this service as a major troop "good turn."

Troop Grid Teams Meet.

Troop 201, Hyattsville, was defeated by Troop 235, Bladensburg, in a football game at Bladensburg October 28 by a score of 13 to 6. John Ogle and John Augustine made the touchdowns. Dudley Taylor was referee. A return game is scheduled November 18 at Hyattsville.

Fliers Attempt Arctic Rescue

Plane Sent to Aid Crew After Burning Ship Sinks in Lake.

Word of the plight of the crew was brought here by two companions of the shipwrecked men after crossing the ice-choked lake in subzero temperatures.

The steamship was owned by the Northern Waterways Transportation Co., which supplies isolated gold mining camps and prospecting crews.

Shortly after leaving Fort Franklin fire broke out on the boat. The crew was unable to check the flames and the steamer sank. Two were drowned. Two others set out to bring word of the tragedy to Cameron Bay. They were near collapse from exhaustion and cold and reported their comrades could not survive long unless rescued.

Towns to Pick Own Projects For Job Relief

Hopkins Reminds Again That All Various Local Offices Hold Power.

Despite the announcement by Harry L. Hopkins, chief of the new Civil Works Administration, that projects on which the Government hopes to employ 4,000,000 men by December 15 will be handled through local branch offices, headquarters of the relief administration in Washington yesterday were stormed by representatives, senators, and others having so-called pet proposals to put forward.

As a result, Mr. Hopkins emphasized for a second time the fact that the discretionary power of selecting projects is decentralized, rather than centered in Washington. Applicants among cities, counties and States hoping to share in the distribution of $400,000,000 allocated by the Public Works Administration to the civil works organization must submit their proposals locally, he said.

The various local civil works divisions, comprised of former relief boards, have been vested with full authority to pass or reject a work proposal involving employment of men under the new program, Hopkins pointed out.

Speed Major Factor.

"The basic idea of the Civil Works Administration is to put men to work quickly," he said. "We can't get speed if hundreds of thousands of projects have to come to Washington for approval. Right now the States and communities have work-relief divisions of their relief officers. The men and women who have been administering these divisions know local circumstances and needs. Approximately 2,000,000 persons are working at relief wages under them now."

Secretary Ickes said yesterday that the $400,000,000, which the President directed be spent out of public works funds for employment on small projects has been allocated. It will be used by the Civil Works Administration as needed, with other funds being provided by cities, counties and States, and by the Emergency Relief Administration.

Conference Tomorrow.

Mr. Ickes said a conference will be held tomorrow, at which a line will be drawn between projects which will be dealt with in the future by the Public Works Administration and the Hopkins organization. Representatives of the PWA, National Park Service, Indian Service, Reclamation Bureau, Department of Agriculture, and the Department of Interior will attend the conference.

Many projects of a smaller nature can be found in all of these departments, Mr. Ickes said, which will provide jobs for persons now on relief rolls. Lists of such projects will be prepared by each department, so that there will be no overlap of work provided by the PWA and the Civil Works Administration.

Navy Will Remain Bone Dry Because of Old Regulations

Prohibition repeal will not mean "grog" for "gobs" of the United States Navy.

Navy history shows that distilled spirits were forbidden aboard vessels in 1862 by act of Congress. Beer, however, was sold to crew members until 1899, when the practice was abolished.

The law of 1862 still is in force. Before prohibition, officers were forbidden to bring spirits aboard vessels, although they were allowed wine and beers until 1914.

The Secretary indicated he was opposed to any modification of the regulations. When the sale of 3.2 beer became legal, he ruled against its use or possession on ships or at naval bases.

THIS is just one of an endless number of new ways to use bananas in cooking, to lift meals out of the commonplace.

For cooking, select bananas that are yellow with green tips, or firm yellow-ripe bananas, from which all green has disappeared. Cooking brings out a different delicious flavor, and gives the meal that distinctive goodness characteristic only of cooked bananas. When yellow flecked with brown, they are at the point of full-ripe flavor—ready to peel and eat as fruit, or to slice and serve with cream, milk, or breakfast cereal.

Washington's Most Beautiful Society Women Discuss Their Ideas of Loveliness

Oriental Note In Gowns Suited To Extra Sizes

Specialty Shop Has Lovely Things for Tiny and Large Women.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

The woman who is a bit too small or a trifle too large for regulation dress sizes has been thoughtfully considered by a Twelfth street dress shop that specializes in half sizes.

This shop has just received some new silk crepe frocks that show the Oriental influence with Chinese embroidery on deep cuffs and Ascot scarf. A Chinese design is also carved on huge round bone buttons that fasten a wide bib to the shoulders. The sleeves, above the deep cuffs, are smartly plain. The back is slim and straight. Side insets give necessary fullness to the skirt. A two-inch waistline belt fastens with a square, fabric-covered buckle.

This frock may be had in Chinese red, Peking green, or black. Sizes range from 16½ to 26½. The price is $12.95.

Typical of Russia is a tall, slender chocolate pot that holds just two cups. The solid brass is decorated with an exotic dragon design that imposes the Chinese influence upon the Russian. It's a happy combination in this utterly frivolous little pot. The spout is long, slim and curved. The handle is also designed on long, slim lines.

Price, $1.25.

A tiny manicure tray is an attractive and practical addition to a dresser box. Crushed gold fabric, closely resembling wood, makes the box, with green wood interior. A mirror, 12 by 8½ inches, is inside the lid. Beneath the mirror are three roomy compartments and the enameled tin manicure tray. Attached to the tray is an unobtrusive handle so that the manicure articles may be lifted out of the box easily.

A jade bakelite rectangle, set on chromium, ornaments the top. Jade bakelite also makes the fastener, which consists of two small knobs with a metal loop.

The man who travels—and practically all men do a certain amount of wandering—will appreciate the compactness of a collapsible traveling case. It can be made to hold a lot, or flattens out neatly when only a few articles are placed in it.

The exterior is fabric finish in a nice conventional pattern. The interior is rubber lined and has a pocket for washcloth.

This case, 10 inches long and 5 inches wide, costs $1.95.

---

A work bag that stands on its own four feet is a great help on mending days. No longer need Johnnie's socks be huddled in a lump on the darner's knee while she is struggling with runs in Mary's sheer chiffons. The heavy cretonne bag on a wooden frame is large enough to hold several garments, as well as a complete sewing kit. The bag, when opened, stands alone. When closed it may be carried about by two flat oval wooden handles.

Price: $6.50.

Since women will persist in giving ties to men at Christmas time, the shopper decided she'd help the dears to the extent of finding some good-looking ones that should please even those males who usually accept this gift as a cross to be bravely borne. Imported silk in exclusive designs is the material that makes these particular ties in cravat style.

One golden brown one has beige threads worked into a neat circle pattern that is beautifully conservative.

Plodding oxen draw a covered wagon across a pressed wood plaque, 15 inches long and 9 inches high. The handsome carving and rich brown color would add a decorative note to a mantel or radio top. It would be ideal in den or library. Price: $3.50.

Pressed wood also makes a masculine-looking box with removable two-compartment tray. The exterior is ornately carved in vigorous design. The interior is suitable for cigars, handkerchiefs, collars, letters or memoranda.

Heavy black, silk grosgrain makes a collapsible opera hat, imported from Paris. Expert workmanship is apparent in the brim, slightly rolled at the sides, and in the smooth, steep crown. The hat is lined throughout with corded silk. The elegant mode for men could not be more urbanely expressed than in this "topper," which sells for $10.75. It comes in a novel flat box that has Paris written all over it.

Day Is Too Bright.

By Katherine Smith.

Why did I once dream
Of cool, sad eyes that are your own?
Why did I cry out
Into the bleakness of the night
On waking?

Day is too bright
And noon, too laughing—
Laughing, knowing that I, in torment,
Will not sleep

Green Shrubs Around Door Look "Homey"

Walls of Flowering Bushes Make Outdoor Room of Yard.

There is such a vast difference between a house and a home. Once inside a door you can feel the difference, but if you want your house to have that "homey" welcome outside, the effect is greatly enhanced by the planting of permanent shrubs.

Low rows of bushes near the front steps and around the porch keep a house from looking bare. Unattractive rear entrances and backyards can be screened by taller shrubs. Small side yards can be made into cozy outdoor rooms by the planting of flowering bushes. What could be more delightful than a wallpaper that really blooms?

Select plants that have good foliage, whose leaves will last throughout the summer after the flowers are gone. Spirea, or bridal wreath, as it is commonly called, makes a lovely screen. Its white sprays are delicate and graceful. Lilacs have abundant foilage, and their purple blossoms are effective, both inside the house and out.

Fall planting of bushes is advisable because the roots should get a good hold in the soil before spring. Then, too, they will put out better shoots and the first-year plants will be larger. When they are placed in rich soil they will make a showing two months after the growth begins.

Beds of annuals and perennials show up better against the dark green of the shrubs. Make your beds wide enough to allow the shrubs to spread without overshadowing your planned spring planting.

Gardens are like rooms. Graceful arrangement and harmony of design makes them say "welcome," as surely as does hospitable grouping of furniture in your sitting room. Like the rooms, start with your walls of foliage, planted now, and plan the beauty of the blossoms when spring comes.

Star Reveals Make-Up Art

Tells How Putty, Chemicals Are Used to Alter Faces.

With the advent of the talkies, the day passed when film actors and actresses trusted to their own good looks and natural appearance rather than to make-up. As a matter of fact, in Hollywood today many of the stars use very complicated methods of making up to completely change their physical appearance in order to fit the role they are playing.

For now ability to take a spoken part is more important than mere correspondence to a type.

Ruby Keeler, winsome ingenue of the films, has revealed some of the secrets of Hollywood make-up.

"There is a strong demand on the lot," she says, "for the services of experts cunning in their ability to transform a 20-year-old beauty into a shrew."

"Until recently nobody bothered about such tricks. Casting directors made a point of choosing types. There was no demand for lightning-quick changes."

"Today costumes, putty, aluminum powder, collodion and other chemicals are resorted to to alter faces.

"Putty or plastic wax is fine for shaping the nose, building up cheek bones, making the eyelids heavy. Of course, it does sometimes drop off at an inopportune moment. Barrymore's nose took a drop while he was playing Svengali.

"Cotton wool between the teeth pushes out the cheeks, and to look 60 all you need do is to apply a thick coat of putty to the face, then engrave lines with a sharp point for wrinkles.

"It is easier to change lips than noses. To enlarge a small mouth you simply extend the rouge beyond the corner, and vice versa."

Miss Keeler herself appears in most of her pictures au naturel. She is star of the new film, "Footlight Parade."

Mrs. Marshall's Friend.

Changing political tides make and unmake friendships in Washington. One of the finest friendships was that formed by Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge. Mrs. Marshall met Mrs. Coolidge when she came to Washington a few days before her husband was to be inaugurated as Vice President.

A group of friends, most of them Democrats, assisted Mrs. Marshall in taking Mrs. Coolidge "under their wing." When the Coolidges selected an apartment at the New Willard Hotel it was the one from which the Marshalls were moving. Every time Mrs. Marshall came to Washington she saw her friend, Mrs. Coolidge, frequently and always assisted at her teas and at-homes.

Society Women To Be Models For Style Show

Muff-Dress and Quaint New Gowns on Display.

Muff dresses, reminiscent of the gay nineties, are coming back. These ultra feminine costumes will be an outstanding feature of the style show to be given by the Francise Shop, 1919 Q street, at the Saturday luncheon hour at Pierre's, Connecticut avenue and Q street.

Miss Mary Anna Harrison, daughter of Senator Pat Harrison, will be among the mannequins. Others who will model street, afternoon and evening clothes are Miss Sally Harris, of Warrenton, Va., niece of Dr. Harry Kerr; Miss Alice Price, daughter of Mrs. O. A. Price; Miss Marjorie Moorman, Mrs. Anthony Hyde and Mrs. V. B. Wright.

Miss Moorman will wear a quaint black taffeta muff dress. Taffeta pussy-cat bows mark the points of a deep circular skirt flounce. The skirt above the flounce is sheath-like. The bodice has front cowl, while the back is cut in a deep U and is attached to wide taffeta shoulder straps. A saucy pussy-cat bow is on the front of the plump taffeta muff.

Miss Harris will model a black crepe muff dress, suitable for dinner wear. Sculptured lines distinguish the gown which hugs the figure from Vionnet bodice to the knees. The skirt gains considerable fulness before it reaches the floor. A shirred velvet necklace gives a cape effect to the upper part of the gown. The neck is high in front, with a small upstanding collar, but is slit to the velvet necklace in back. A shirred velvet muff and velvet Juliet cap complete the adorable costume.

Flamingo red cire satin makes a handsome evening gown which will be worn by Mrs. Hyde. The skirt, quite full, ends in a train. The decolletage is cut low and square, front and back, with wide shoulder straps gathered into tailored loops on the shoulders. A crushed girdle encircles the waist and loops in the center front. White and maize dahlias are bunched on the left shoulder.

Mrs. Hyde will also wear a chona brown tagheera two-piece afternoon gown. Spongy, deep-piled tagheera is running a close second to velvet in popularity this season. Angel-skin gold lame makes a yoke that is round and shallow in back and deep and square in front. The lame also makes a school-girl bow to be tied at the throat. The blouse has a surplice line, while the skirt is severely plain.

Mrs. Wright will model a wine-colored lace dinner gown for the mature woman. The silk and linen lace is in an attractive leaf design. Soft drapery falls from the shoulders in lieu of sleeves. The neck is V, front and back, and the skirt is long, full and straight.

Representative Kahn Learned From Husband

When Representative Florence Pragg Kahn was simply the wife of Representative from California Julius Kahn, she learned her political "onions" by going to the Center Market with her husband and and doing the family maketing.

Representative Kahn had once been an actor and attracted much attention by his noble bearing. Representative and Mrs. Kahn walked to the market and carried their purchases home to their apartment on Franklin Square. They walked to the Capitol building each morning and although Mrs. Kahn did not remain all day, as a rule, she usually "strolled" up the "avenue" to meet her husband.

Scarlet Velvet Used For Evening Wrap

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Harry Woodring, bride of the Assistant Secretary of War, is a stunning figure in a simply cut evening wrap of scarlet velvet made after the fashion of the "Gay Nineties," fitted to the figure with the sleeves puffed above the elbows.

Morons Won't Marry—Not If Professor Ross Has His Way

Urges Government Exam to Select Parents With Brains.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 9.—"Your pulse seems normal, but tell me this quickly now—is coffee a berry, bean, seed, fruit or fowl?"

Such a spurt of questioning might startle the subject of an examination, but if the theories of Prof. E. A. Ross are put into practice, every prospective benedict and his bride-to-be will face such a quiz before they take vows to "love, honor and obey."

For ten years Dr. Ross, head of the sociology department at the University of Wisconsin, has upheld a belief that hopes for a "perfect race" can be cherished only by those who maintain that a mental as well as physical test should be given men and women planning marriage.

"Do you realize that one person in every 100 is a moron, imbecile or idiot?" he asks. "No moron or defective should have children. Few would wish them if they realized they were defective."

Dr. Ross has "a plan—a sort of "new deal" for humanity, or a "superior race recovery program," which if adopted would result in development, he says, of people surpassing present-day humans as greatly as today's people excel savages.

"It isn't so startling," he declares. "The first step would be establishment of State laboratories for examination of prospective married couples, the tests to be free. A card with the findings would be mailed to subjects.

"No person would be authorized to marry these persons without seeing affidavits to show that the hopeful bride and groom had exchanged cards two weeks previously."

Dr. Ross would have wedding permits refused to those lacking examination cards.

The second step in his plan would encourage an increase in the size of "superior" families from examined couples.

Wealthy men, under his proposal, would establish a foundation to give bonuses to fifth, sixth and seventh children of "highly mental" parents.

"The child could receive $150 at birth, and an annual sum increasing with his age until college years, when the superior youth would receive $500 a year," Dr. Ross says.

He would issue marriage permits to deficients, provided they could be relied on to exercise birth control.

Long a student of humanity, Professor Ross has written 23 books on the subject, including the first English book on sociology ever printed. Nine years of his life have been spent studying methods of living and social habits in foreign countries.

Washington Women in Welfare Work

Mrs. Neumann Is Busy With Council House Activities.

Mrs. Lester Neuman devotes her broad welfare activities to the work of the Juanita K. Nye Council House, of which she is a member. She also finds time to serve on the Council of Jewish Women, being one of the board members in charge of the Ella Neuman Student Loan Fund, and as a board member of the Woman's Auxiliary of the District of Columbia Medical Society.

One of the original founders of the Juanita K. Nye Council House, she is a firm believer in the work accomplished by that organization. Of it she says:

"My interest in the Juanita K. Nye Council House is because of the fact that it deals mostly with children. I was one of the original group which founded the house, and through all these years it, more than any other agency, is to me the most important of welfare agencies.

"Crime prevention is one of the important aims of the house. Children whose minds are occupied with recreational and vocational activities do not resort to criminal experiences. The purpose of the house is to keep the child's mind so occupied with his activities at the settlement that he does not have time to divert it to other and less worthwhile channels.

"I was also one of the group which helped to establish a kindergarten. This is most essential to any children's character-building agency, for it is much easier to teach a child what is right and what is wrong in his very early youth than it is to distinguish between the two after he already has committed a misdemeanor."

Cereus Blooms Twice.

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 9 (Spl.). Like fruit trees, which have blossomed as many as four times this year, a night-blooming cereus of Mrs. D. W. Dubel, Hagerstown, has blossomed for the second time this year.

It is very rare when this flower blossoms after August, and never before has been known to blossom twice in a year.

No! New York First Lady Finds You Not So Big!

Washington Is Real Town, She Tells Crusade Women.

Who said Washington was "the sticks?"

Our National Capital has been acquitted of that contumelious accusation by the First Lady herself, who has ended the age-old battle to decide which is the "biggest" city in the United States—Washington, D. C., or New York, N. Y.

Listen to this:

"New York is the most provincial city in the country. The people who live there think they are the center of the universe. Washington is not provencial. Every part of the country is represented by the people who make their homes here."

With that verbal pat on the back Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt launched her address yesterday before 5,000 Washington women gathered in Constitution Hall for the Woman's Crusade mass meeting to help the Community Chest drive.

This is going to be a most difficult year to raise money for relief of suffering, Mrs. Roosevelt warned in more serious vein, adding that the Crusade is directed toward those who have more than necessities and who must in consequence feel their moral obligation to share with those who have nothing this winter.

She reminded those who have met with certain financial losses and who in consequence are afraid to give, that "this is an adventurous age. Being afraid of what is going to happen tomorrow or the next day is not going to help any of us.

"Unless we can alleviate some of the suffering around us, I doubt if the things we have will do us much good.

"We might just as well live courageously."

Parisiennes Diet To Reduce Curves

French Girls, Too Plump for Perfect Beauty.

Paris, Nov. 9 (AP).—An "eating and exercise epidemic" has struck Paris. The smartest women in the world are remolding their figures to fit the new curved silnouette.

Back from the mountains and ready for their new winter wardrobes, they are making over their figures before they order their gowns.

Food and exercise are the first rules. The "elegantes" are eating more than they did to give their figures that well-nourished look. That luxurious morning in bed is interrupted now while they "work out" on an exercise mat to redistribute their curves.

One prominent designer said:

"These are the measurements of the mannequin whom I consider the most perfectly proportioned: She is 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighs 127 pounds. Her waist measures 28 inches, her hips 36½ and her bust 36."

After the exercises and diet, given by a doctor or beauty specialist, corsets come next in the Parisian's plans for a perfect 1934 figure. This year's models are often combined with brassieres in all-in-one arrangement, although many girdles and separate brassieres are being worn.

The new model strives for three major effects: a flat diaphragm and back; a slender waist; a long unbroken, slightly curved hipline. It extends well down in the back and well up over the ribs.

Emergency Biscuits.

2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons combination baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter or other shortening
¾ cup milk

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt and sift again. Cut in shortening. Add milk gradually and drop from teaspoon on greased pan. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 15 biscuits.

Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer Is First of Capital Women Interviewed for Hints on Smart Appearance.

Physical beauty may be a divine gift of Providence, but it is a gift without virtue in modern society, unless its possessor achieves individual distinction according to her type, through proper dress, coiffure and cosmetics, beauty authorities assert.

This exclusive interview with a charming Washington society woman, classified by experts as belonging to the dynamic type of beauty, is the fifth article in a series defining and identifying the twelve master beauty types, to one of which every woman essentially belongs.

By Elizabeth Young.

Poised for flight.

That, in a word, describes the radiant, controlled temperament of beautiful Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer, wife of the Attorney General under the Wilson Administration, cited by National beauty authorities as one of four Washington society women who perfectly exemplify the thrilling charm of the Dynamic type of beauty.

In an exclusive interview granted The Washington Post woman's page, yesterday, Mrs. Palmer discussed the ways in which she enhances her natural beauty, through clothing, coiffure, exercise and skin care.

"I am constantly reminding myself that I must keep calm; that I must be more relaxed, more casual, more unhurried," she confessed, her contagious smile bringing flashing dimples into play.

"And I am as frequently forgetting. I find myself dashing up to the threshold of a room; pausing, reminding myself, controlling myself, entering with all the deliberation I can command; and, as soon as I am out of sight through another door, dashing away again!"

"Perfect cleanliness," she said, "is my only recipe for skin care." She touched exquisitely kept small hands with delicately tapering rose-colored nails, in deprecatory gesture against the firm, transparent paleness of her cheeks.

"All I ever do is get it perfectly clean at night, using a good cleansing cream. I follow this with a very light, indeed, an imperceptible—coating of nourishing cream, which I leave on all night. In the morning I use a cleansing fluid only, before apply make-up."

She uses make-up very sparingly, with scarcely a trace of rouge, a lipstick of natural rose and a cool, creamy powder for day. In the evening she allows herself a little more rouge, but always the effect is that of Nature, rather than artifice.

Mrs. Palmer never uses soap on her face, although occasionally she laves it with warm water and finds a rough Turkish towel immersed in hot water and applied to the skin an excellent, although infrequently used, circulation stimulant.

In submerging her own interests and activities to her husband's exacting life as a busy attorney, Mrs. Palmer has given up her one-time daily practice of horseback riding and golfing, and takes her exercise in the form of long, brisk daily walks, sometimes of several miles.

"My entire career, diversion and ambition is to keep my husband fit and husky," she declared. "While I thoroughly enjoy my self-imposed task, I am afraid it makes me seem terribly self-centered at times, and I am sure my friends get annoyed with me."

Mrs. Palmer wears her hair in a smartly severe, short bob, swept straight back from her brow and cheeks. Her natural hair line is beautiful, and the clean, strong lines of her triangular face and exquisitely modeled head seem to defy the possibility of the most trying coiffure defeating their pure perfection.

"Pierre does my hair," she said. "I think there is none to compare with him. He clips it, curls it, washes it, waves it and gives me a permanent twice a year. I have a shampoo and wave every 10 days. Otherwise I forget it, except to keep it brushed and combed."

When interviewed, Mrs. Palmer was wearing a subtly cut, plain afternoon gown of heavy black satin, with smart black, low-cut, one-eyelet ties. Her jewelry consisted of a short strand of pearls which hugged her throat, pearl earrings and a sapphire ring.

"I love to wear mink made into a coat, and silver fox in a scarf, for daytime," she admitted. "And tailored suits and simple dresses in black——."

Her choice for evening—and she thoroughly enjoys dressing for evening occasions—is plain white satin, with a few unostentatious gems, most favored of which are a string of pearls and her emerald engagement ring.

"The emerald is my favorite stone, and I have never cared for excessive jewelry," Mrs. Palmer remarked.

Mrs. Palmer, who was formerly Margaret Fallon, native New Yorker, and the widow of John Booth Burrall, of Waterbury, Conn., is 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighs 140 pounds. She has never found it necessary to diet to maintain the weight which gives perfectly proportioned grace to her tall, supple figure.

She sleeps 7 to 8 hours out of 24—"with one eye open"—and has never indulged in a daytime rest hour in her life, other than 5 to 10 minutes exercise—relaxation period flat on the floor.

"Dr. Walter Bloedorn feels there is such a thing as too much sleep, and that eight hours of sleep is probably the correct average for maintaining health, and I agree with him," said Mrs. Palmer. "The floor exercise is the best I have ever found for regulating circulation, and the trick of it lies in trying to have one's belt line touch the floor at the same time as head, shoulders, hips and heels."

Incidentally, Mrs. Palmer has never entirely consumed a cigarette in her life, and, with mock penitence, confessed she had ceased five years ago to attempt to convert herself to the nicotine fad.

What Today Means

"SCORPIO."

If November 10 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m., from 4:30 to 5 p. m., and from 9:45 to 10:50 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:45 to 10:45 a. m. and from 6:15 to 8:20 p. m.

November 10 will be your day, in the sense that you will make or fail to make out of it, just what you please. Forces operating will be at a minimum, and your desires, whims, ambitions and moods will act and react solely as you direct them. You have your work and you have your tools, the rest is simply up to you.

The child born on this November 10 probably will be quick to jump in and make up its own mind without awaiting the advice of others. There is danger, of course, in such a procedure, but take care in your handling of this little one not to put too much of a damper on its activities. Deal severely with it at the proper times.

If November 10 is the date of your birth, it is probable that "tomorrow" is the day on which you expect to accomplish a great deal; and, perhaps strangely, tomorrow becomes today and you seem not to get around to all the things on your mind. Your trouble probably lies in knowing so many people and in having so many things to do, that in trying to take care of all of them you slight them all. It probably has never occurred to you to cut down and do a few things thoroughly; the idea of perfection seems never to have entered your thought. Even in the matter of your friends you fall down, for in your rush to know all people well, you err in your selections and fail to know even the most worth while.

Born on November 10, you are an extremely likable person. There is a certain freshness about you that is inspiring and you are, even in your tortuous ways, sincere. You really expect to get some place in all your mad rush and none will be more surprised than you if you don't; that is, if you ever come to the realization that you are getting no place. It is possible that you will marry late in life; you will know many of the opposite sex, but few well enough to consider seriously. Marriage will do much to bring you to a slow-down, for the chances are that you will choose for a mate one who is more inclined to stop, look and listen before plunging blindly ahead. You will pull well in double harness and will make a good parent.

Successful people born on November 10:

Samuel Crowther Pleads That America Seize Its Chance to Be Independent in Every Possible Way From the Rest of the World.

"We in the United States today have no friends among the nations of the earth, but we have many bitter enemies—the more bitter because they are without the present power to harm us." With those pointed words, Samuel Crowther, in "America Self-Contained," just issued by Doubleday Doran, warns us that we would do well to keep America sufficient unto itself in natural products, industry, economics and finance. Now is the time, he thinks, to make this country the kind of independent nation we must have. Mr. Crowther is well known as a writer on economic subjects for the Saturday Evening Post. A few years ago his book on Henry Ford, "My Life and Work," was a best seller.

If you have been pained by the fact that the cheapest wines so far advertised are to cost $1.50 a bottle, you will prick up your ears at the 8-cent-a-bottle red wine for which Philip Wagner gives the recipe in "American Wines, and How to Make Them," recently issued by Knopf.

For the twelfth time, Thomas Moult collects outstanding American and English magazine verse for the current year. "The Best Poems of 1933," recently issued by Harcourt Brace, contains 77 poems, 43 of them from American periodicals. Poetry, Harriet Monroe's famous little magazine, is credited with 7, the Nation with 6 and Harper's with 5. The rest of America's contribution is scattered among 20 magazines, with the exception of one from the New York Sun, the sole newspaper so honored.

Local Best Sellers.

For the week ended November 4 the following best sellers are reported by Brentano's, 1322 F street:

Fiction.

"Anthony Adverse," by Hervey Allen; Farrar & Rhinehart.
"One More River," by John Galsworthy; Scribner.
"Winner Take Nothing," by Ernest Hemingway; Scribner.
"After Such Pleasures," by Dorothy Parker; Viking Press.
"Bonfire," by Dorothy Canfield; Harcourt Brace.

Non-Fiction.

"Crowded Hours," by Alice Roosevelt Longworth; Scribner.
"Life Begins at Forty," by Walter B. Pitkin; Whittlesey House.
"Happy Days," by Ogden Nash; Simon & Schuster.
"The Edwardian Era," by Andre Maurois; Appleton.
"Marie Antoinette," by Stefan Zweig; Viking Press.

Marry Youth and Be Young.

In this colorful narrative Mr. Bellah takes the theme of the middle-aged man who thinks he can retrieve his youth by marrying a girl young enough to be his daughter. Complications arise when Charles Jefferson Bourdinot selects as his future wife his protege, who is already secretly in love with his own son.

The story of what transpires before Charles Bourdinot eventually changes his idea that "Life is for those who will take it and break it to their will" is an engrossing narrative interspersed with character portrayals which will probably leave an impression on one's mind longer than the story itself. From Kate Harmsworth, who "had made a career out of turning 40," to Avery, who learned that "you can't ever get away from your life, no matter how hard you try," the author has created a list of vivid personalities—daring in action though puzzled by the riddles of existence.

The tense situations and sparkling dialogue which characterized Mr. Bellah's popular book, "Dancing Lady," are present in this dramatic story. Mr. Bellah is already well known to readers of the Saturday Evening Post as a writer of entertaining short stories. This book will help to establish him in the field of the novel.

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER.

How to Build an Airplane.

"THE COMPLETE MODEL AIRCRAFT MANUAL," by Edwin T. Hamilton; Harcourt Brace, $3.50.

This book is literally a bible of facts of interest to those young and old "youngsters" who construct flying and scale model airplanes for a hobby. But unless one is a model airplane fan the book holds little if any appeal. It is a technical, exhaustive study, not recommended for a quiet evening by the fireside.

All possible kinds of model aircraft are discussed in the book. The construction plans and diagrams are clear and accurate, from simple gliders that any boy can build up to elaborate flying models.

In addition to 85 working plans, there are 77 full-page photographs of models which include such new airplanes as the Pitcairn four-place cabin autogiro, the Northrop Gamma and the new Army and Navy fighting planes.

Edwin T. Hamilton is also the author of two well-known books of the same general type, "The Boy Builder" and "Handicraft for Girls." He is an experienced aviator with war-time flying to his credit, so his background in practical aviation can be regarded as the best.

Mr. Hamilton's newest effort, "The Model Aircraft Manual," is the result of five years of research in every phase of model building and flying. If some boy you know has run out of new models to build and fly, here is a book to keep him busy on rainy days until he has constructed the entire line of American airplanes. HARRIS HULL.

Mrs. Wilson Visits Model of New York

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the war-time President, was among scores of visitors yesterday at an exhibition of a miniature model of New York City in the Transportation Building at 1626 H street.

The work of Marvin Auringer, the artist, was complimented by Mrs. Wilson for its beauty and attention to detail. The model includes a reproduction of 10 miles of the metropolis. More than 700 buildings are shown.

Several hundred persons have visited the display this week. The model will remain on exhibition until next Tuesday. The proceeds will go to the Georgetown Nursery School.

Hats Show Brims, Quills and Tucks

Sleek quills with touches of orange, narrow brim with tiny flare, and horizontal tucks in back spell gay insouciance when deftly combined on a black French felt hat. The tucks give a sculptured line to the back of the head. The jaunty quills add desirable height to the wearer. The brim, beginning at the sides, gives more than a hint of diablerie to the face beneath it. A brown felt rascal with jockey visor is 'way out in front in fashion's race. Brown velvet is draped smoothly across the back, then sweeps to the crown's top to form an amusing rabbit's-ear bow. The visor has an interesting tuck that subtly softens the flamboyant line. As elegant as a French marquise is a black soleil tricorn with lacquered black ribbon encircling the crown and forming a frivolous bow in front. A diaphanous black veil, attached to the back, is bewitching when arranged in a side chou against a huge, upstanding coat collar. When coat is removed the veil hangs romantically to the shoulders.

Washington Woman Lecturer Sees NRA Ending Slavery

The greatest victory of the NRA is the fact that it has swept away child labor, the wretched blight which has darkened almost every corner of our country and from which neither State nor National Government could free us.

That is the opinion of Georgette Ross Howard, women's club lecturer, who has returned to Washington full of enthusiasm for the results of the legislation which has freed 3,000,000 children from the yoke of toil.

Mrs. Howard, who makes her home in this city, is nationally known for her talks to women on social and political topics. On November 7 she will give the first of a series of lectures before the Women's City Club.

"I have watched the struggle to eliminate child labor in this country for years," she said yesterday. "A bill passed in Congress a decade ago received the support of only 15 States and has never been ratified. The Congressmen were afraid to come out for it because their constituents who had sent them here were industrialists who thrived on this cheap labor.

"That splendid woman, Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, had much to do with the final victory. She dared to come out boldly and assert that any industry which permitted child labor had no right to exist."

Mrs. Howard believes that this administration has brought to Washington the finest of type of men she has ever seen in the Capitol.

"Roosevelt is a great human being, and one not devoid of a sense of humor. Mrs. Roosevelt with her immense energy and interest in human welfare reminds one of what an Englishman once said of her cousin, Theodore Roosevelt: 'He is half St. Paul and half St. Vitus.'

"There is no loafing in this administration and women throughout the country are following its activities with keen interest, while giving it their fullest cooperation."

New Conveniences Found In Rain Accessories

Directed by Amos Parrish

Information as to where accessories of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, The Washington Post, on request.

New York, Nov. 10.—Haven't you often wished for some magic way to make your galoshes and umbrella appear or disappear by merely saying "abracadabra"? Something like the wonderful traveling cloak of the "Little Lame Prince." When it wasn't wafting him away, it rolled itself into a neat little ball for his pocket.

We've found one umbrella that does its best to put on a disappearing act. Slips right into the bottom of a handbag, and pops out at the first sprinkle. The bag isn't too big and unwieldly either. It's one of those good-sized felt affairs that so many business women like for handy hold-alls.

Rubbers in Handle.

Another umbrella, while it doesn't disappear, at least keeps your rain things compact. It has a leather handle which hides a pair of toe-rubbers. Take it along on one of those questionable days and you're set without putting your rubbers on till it's necessary.

Of course, a good many women want an umbrella that's just an umbrella, without any tricks. They like comfortable-sized handles that feel right in your hand. Animals with smooth round heads, maybe. Or crooks of wood or prystal. On unusual shapes of composition that aren't anything at all but make attractive handles.

A bright red handle, red tips and stub against black silk made one umbrella stand out from the bobbing crowd we watched last time it rained. And we've noticed some with metal handles and tips.

Plain Colors and Stripes.

You see lots of plain black and brown umbrellas, because they go with so many clothes of course. And the fashion for green coats, red coats and taupe coats brings umbrellas to go with them.

A rainy day, too, is getting more and more to be a stripey day. Border stripes, allover stripes dripping up and down the streets. With printed designs and checked borders here and there to make the sights more interesting.

Galoshes Like Shoes.

Underfoot, there's a steady march of galoshes and rubbers that get trimmer and more shoe-like all the time. You can see in the sketches the tippings and foxings in reptile grain effects like those used so much on regular shoes. And the rubbers are designed to look like oxfords and opera pumps.

One more new gadget that's having a big success * * * a light rubber cape. Come to think of it, very much like the cloak we talked about at the start. It rolls up into a small, neat package weighing only 24 ounces, and which would fit inside a good-sized bag. Unfurled, it goes right over a coat. It's there or not there in a twinkling * * * just as the rain so frequently is.

Cross-Ruffs and the Time Factor.

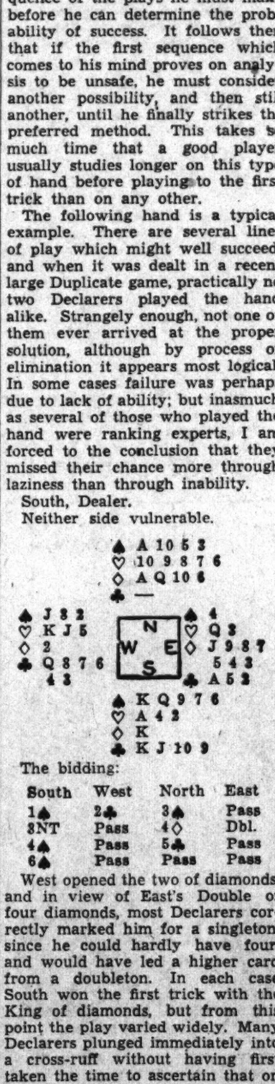
There is no hand quite so difficult to play as that which involves the alternative of a cross-ruff or a straight line of play designed to establish winning tricks in side suits after trumps have been drawn. The reason that there is much to puzzle the Declarer when he is confronted by this problem is that the Time Factor is all important in cross-ruffs and he must usually review in imagination the entire sequence of the plays he must make before he can determine the probability of success. It follows then that if the first sequence which comes to his mind proves on analysis to be unsafe, he must consider another possibility, and then still another, until he finally strikes the preferred method. This takes so much time that a good player usually studies longer on this type of hand before playing to the first trick than on any other.

The following hand is a typical example. There are several lines of play which might well succeed, and when it was dealt in a recent large Duplicate game, practically no two Declarers played the hand alike. Strangely enough, not one of them ever arrived at the proper solution, although by process of elimination it appears most logical. In some cases failure was perhaps due to lack of ability; but inasmuch as several of those who played the hand were ranking experts, I am forced to the conclusion that they missed their chance more through laziness than through inability.

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1♠ | 2♣ | 3♠ | Pass |
| 3NT | Pass | 4◇ | Dbl. |
| 4♠ | Pass | 5♣ | Pass |
| 6♠ | Pass | Pass | Pass |

West opened the two of diamonds, and in view of East's Double of four diamonds, most Declarers correctly marked him for a singleton, since he could hardly have four, and would have led a higher card from a doubleton. In each case South won the first trick with the King of diamonds, but from this point the play varied widely. Many Declarers plunged immediately into a cross-ruff without having first taken the time to ascertain that on that line of play they could develop only 11 tricks. Others tried to draw trumps and set up the heart suit, and failed because of insufficient entries to Dummy. All were set, some as many as two tricks.

Careful reading of the cards would have revealed the fact that if the spades were divided no worse than 3-1, and the Ace and Queen of clubs were either divided in the East-West hands or both held by West, the hand could be made by drawing three rounds of trumps, discarding two hearts on Dummy's high diamonds, and conceding a trick to whichever club honor East held, whereupon West's club honor could be trapped by Dummy's remaining trump. This play is safer, as well as surer because if there is a bad division of the adverse trumps the lead of South's King will reveal it, and he can play to make his remaining trumps separately, whereas if the trumps break the hand can be defeated at most one, and that only if West's club Overcall was based upon a suit headed by the 8-spot.

Tomorrow's Hand.

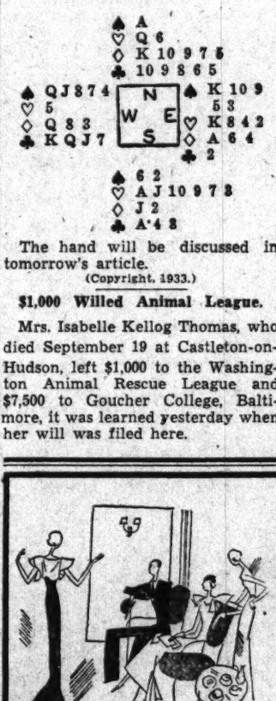
Against the contract of four spades by West, what line of defense should be adopted by North and South to bring about its defeat?

East, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Fish and Crabs Less Plentiful, but the Marketer Finds Them Good.

Down to the wharf where the boats come in! The Marketer shivered and her hands were numb.

"Good morning, Mr. Fisherman. Nice weather, isn't it?"

"Hello, there; come in the cabin and thaw out—come aboard, come aboard!"

So, after a not too graceful leap and bound, the Marketer landed on a high stool inside the warm cabin. Three storekeepers stood there rubbing their hands before a small coal stove.

"This is the Marketer, and these are some of my customers," the fishing man made the introductions, with a grand wave of the hand. "Sit down, everybody, make yourselves comfortable."

Chatter and laughing . . . nice warm stove . . . boat rocking softly back and forth . . . all the gray cold outside. . . .

"We had a bad storm on the bay, and fish is scarce," explained the fisherman, "so it's a bit higher than last week. Pan trout sells for 10 cents a pound, medium size, two pounds for 25 cents. Croakers are four pounds for a quarter. Flounders, 25 cents a pound, oysters about the same, 40 and 50 cents a quart.

"Crabs are hard to get, they don't like the cold and go burrowing deep down in the mud." He illustrated the burrowing of the crabs by a downward, wavy motion of his hand.

A whoop of laughter from one of the men.

"So that's why the crab meat is so dark!"

Mud or no mud, crab meat sells at 25 cents a pound.

Brussels sprouts, looking like so many unopened flowers, sell at a water front stall for 15 cents a quart; good peas, 2 pounds for 15 cents. Crisp iceberg lettuce is three heads for 25 cents; cucumbers, three for a dime.

If you care to buy potatoes in large quantities, you can get them for $1.90 a hundred pound sack; otherwise they sell at 10 pounds for 25 cents. Onions, per 10-pound bag, are 30 cents.

Florida oranges are 20 cents a dozen; California, two dozen for 35 cents; grapefruits are 4 or 6 for 25 cents. Tokay grapes are 3 pounds for 25 cents. Delicious apples are 6 for a quarter; winesaps, 6 pounds for the same price.

The market man suggests that mint helps the flavor of a "nice, warm drink." The Marketer would like a nice, warm drink even if it were mintless. Mint, 6 bunches for 25 cents or 5 cents each bunch.

Poetess Mother Was Classmate Of Children

A little lady with a bright, sweet, bird-like face and smiling voice fingered through a mass of typewritten sheets.

"Some of these poems are written in Hawaiian," she explained, "and some in English. I love the Hawaiian language, it is so lilting and musical."

She is Mrs. Adna G. Clark, known in the company of the poets as Jane Comstock. Poetess with over two thousand verses to her credit, and an enthusiastic historian, Mrs. Clark has been a visitor in Washington during the past few weeks. She has become a familiar figure in the Library of Congress, where she has searched through the dusty records of forgotten peoples, gathering material for her epic poems.

If you ask her grown son and daughter, they will tell you that she is a first-rate class-mate. For six years she carried her books under her arm to the University of Hawaii, and last year received her B. A. in literature and language.

"I took the literature course with my daughter," she said, "and I became so fascinated with the courses that I decided to take the degree work."

She laughed shyly, "My children were graduated ahead of me, as I had no idea of following the regular work in the beginning."

"I enjoyed the history classes so much, because by-gone times and far-away places have always allured me. I have done a lot of research, too, about the Hawaiians, their unwritten literature, folk-lore and songs. My next poem will be an epic of one of the Hawaiian queens."

West Virginia Woman's Dress in Chicago Contest

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 9. Miss Ellen Sperow, of this county, has proved herself an outstanding seamstress. A costume designed for herself, made entirely by her own hands, except for stockings and shoes, will be West Virginia's representation at the national 4-H dressmaking contest, to be staged in Chicago the last week in November. Each of the States will have picked its dress in the competition.

Miss Sperow's outfit consists of a green flannel dress, with cap and scarf to match, with a tan tailored coat. Leather gloves cut and sewn by herself complete the outfit. A dress made by Miss Sperow has been a part of West Virginia State's exhibit at the World Fair, Chicago.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Mosquitoes and Disease.

A correspondent wants an article on mosquitoes, saying: "I live near a very swampy part of Long Island. Even in the winter time mosquitos get into the house somehow. I feel sure some of these days we are going to have a nice case of malaria. I am also afraid of typhoid fever. If they inject some of that stagnant swamp water into the body of a child as they bite him they would give him typhoid. I feel the danger to be so great that I intend to move in order to protect my family's health."

Much can be said in favor of alertness with regard to the danger of communicable disease. At the same time alertness that is not based on knowledge of the facts is liable to lead to needless anxiety and to result in unnecessary and sometimes unwise action. Alertness, coupled with knowledge and wisdom, has everything to commend it.

In this instance there is little danger of malaria and none of typhoid due to mosquito bites. If it is advisable for this family to move, it is because the mosquitoes are a nuisance and not because they are menace to health. In that region there are plenty of mosquitoes of the varieties that convey malaria. Furthermore, in the malaria season some of the right varieties are infected with malaria and are capable of spreading disease. In addition the malaria mosquitoes breed in swamps. However, the anopheles, or malaria group of mosquitoes, are not the predominating types in that region. An enormous disproportion of the mosquitoes thereabouts are of varieties that are pestiferous but not disease bearing. Even if there were infected malarial mosquitoes alive and circulating in that part of the country in winter they would probably be harmless.

The malarial mosquito does not like cold weather, and when the temperature is low she has no desire to eat or fly around. She gets into some warm, secluded corner and tries to avoid giving offense. Malarial parasites do not mature in mosquitoes when the weather is cold.

Mosquitoes do not spread typhoid fever. That infection gets into the body with the food and drink and is absorbed by a certain section of the intestinal tract. The bacteria of this disease could be carried on the body of a mosquito as well as that of a fly and might conceivably be wiped off on some fruit, but the chance of infection in that way is almost improbable.

There are mosquitoes that breed in water that is rank from sewage, but those of the sewage breeding kinds do not spread malaria or typhoid fever, although they are a source of great nuisance. Since sewage water is apt to be warm, these mosquitoes continue breeding far into the cold season.

Besides these two there are several other diseases that may be mosquito borne, but none of them are of importance in lower New York and Connecticut during the cold weather. If this family decides to move it should be because of the nuisance due to mosquitoes and not because of danger of mosquito-borne disease.

Stocks Follow Other Markets In Price Jump

Realizing Cuts Gains; Sales Volume Rises to 2,916,245 Shares.

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—With foreign exchanges hastening to adjust themselves to the degree of dollar depreciation indicated by the R. F. C.'s gold prices, commodities made further progress today toward the higher levels which are the objectives of Washington's present monetary policy.

Stocks, following grains, cotton, silver and lesser staples, pushed up 1 to 4 points, but then ran into heavy realizing which clipped a large part of their gains; some finished lower and the average rise amounted to around half a point.

Generally speaking, "commodity" issues were strongest during the rally. Seven of the U. S. Government bonds listed on the Stock Exchange lost a point or more in brisk selling, an occurrence that fitted well with the inflationary leanings taken by speculative markets.

Dollar Disparity Disappears.

Foreign currencies, for the first time since this Government stepped into the gold market, reached a level that removed the previously existing disparity between the dollar's gold value as measured by gold units and the depreciation as indicated by the R. F. C.'s purchasing figure; in fact, with the French franc at 6.34 cents the gold value of our money was just under 62 cents as compared with 62.35 cents on the basis of the Washington gold price of $33.15 an ounce.

Sterling provided the most spectacular feature, being quoted at one time around $5.15⅛ cents. So wide an advance, dealers said, indicated that the British authorities were still standing aside. It was evident also that the dollar's maneuvered decline had been beneficial to the franc.

Stocks are Strong.

Stocks were strong through the morning and early afternoon as wheat and cotton forged ahead. Traders gave their attention to all groups, but in the last hour a desire to take profits prevailed and there was a general leveling off of prices.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Du Pont, National Biscuit and several other leaders showed minor losses. American Telephone was down 2, and most of the metals reacted.

Rails were about steady. International Telephone, American & Foreign Power, General Motors, Westinghouse, American Can and Case were miscellaneous gainers. Volume increased to 2,916,245 shares.

Iron Age points to the retardation in the decline of steel output, but looks for no early recovery and believes November operations will make the lowest average since April, when 25.08 per cent of total capacity was in use. Prospective orders for railroad materials and public works, the review thinks, are not likely to affect mill operations greatly until late in the year.

Tugwell on "Sound Money"

His Explanation Disagrees With Accepted Usage in This Country

By Ralph West Robey.

Some days ago Rexford Guy Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, and charter member of the "brain trust," made a speech in Chicago in which he touched upon the meaning of the term "sound money." It was an extraordinary explanation. Its real significance, however, arises from the fact that apparently President Roosevelt interprets the term in the same way, and was doing so back in the campaign when he was assuring the country that he was for "sound money."

According to Prof. Tugwell, "sound money" is not a hard and fast term. On the contrary, it means different things to different people. To some it means the gold standard. To others, however, including himself, and by implication—the President, it means a money "having substantial equality of purchasing power and debt-paying power from one generation to another." In order to have sound money, as he sees it, accordingly, one need not be on the gold standard. Rather, one may be working on the basis of a managed currency or a commodity dollar, and from time to time, even may indulge in a spree of printing-press money. The only requisite, in other words, is for prices to remain reasonably stable.

Only Through Stable Prices Is There Justice for All.

Presumably, the reason Mr. Tugwell takes this view is that only by having a relatively stable price level can one get, from generation to generation, approximate justice between debtors and creditors. Under every other condition one or the other of these groups suffers. Thus, if prices are advancing, creditors will lose because they will be paid back in dollars of less purchasing power than they loaned, while conversely, if the price level is falling, debtors lose because they have to pay in dollars of greater purchasing power than they borrowed.

There is, however, nothing new in the desire, and attempt, to assure justice between debtors and creditors through the maintenance of a stable price level. This has been the ideal of every money, currency and credit system. It was the direct reason for selecting gold as the basis of our monetary system. It also was the guiding principle in the enactment of statutes restricting the issuance of paper money. Finally, it was the immediate notive in requiring legal reserves against deposits and placing restrictions upon the lending power of banks.

In each of these cases the mechanical check placed upon the expansion of a media of exchange was for the purpose of attaining the greatest possible justice between debtors and creditors through preventing violent price changes. The sum of all these attempts rested on the requirement, or mechanical check to expansion, that all media of exchange must be kept convertible into gold. Such convertibility, therefore, meant "sound money," for it assured we would not run hog-wild through inflation.

Restrictions Worked Fairly Well for Some Generations.

As a matter of fact, too, through the operation of this mechanical restriction, prices over generations were held reasonably stable. There were broad sweeps, it is true, such as the rise from 1855 to 1876, the fall from 1876 to 1896 and again a rise until the end of the war, but none of these were sharp enough to be a disturbing element in business or to create unbearable injustices between debtors and creditors. It may be admitted, also, that to the degree such changes took place—the system did not work in an ideal manner. Compared to what has taken place in the last 20 years nevertheless, there is much to say for the period before 1913.

The trouble since the war has been that we have emasculated the gold standard through introducing what may be termed "rational control" of our principal medium of exchange, namely, bank credit. More accurately stated, we have pushed the mechanical checks so far in the rear that they have not been effective. It is quite unjust, therefore, to say that the gold standard has broken down as a means for assuring relative stability of prices. What one should say is that through various statutory changes we have eliminated the possibility of it performing its normal functions.

This recent difficulty with our monetary system, nevertheless, has not in the least altered the meaning of the term "sound money," as understood by the American public. It still means a summation of all those factors which grow out of maintaining the gold standard and keeping our currency convertible into gold, as contrasted with bimetalism or "greenbackism."

Prof. Tugwell, therefore, when he says "sound money" is a vague term which means different things to different people is being accurate only in the most general terms. He is, in fact, being just about as accurate as one who says the word "potatoes" means different things to different people. Obviously this is true to the extent that it may mean Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, mashed potatoes, or fried potatoes, but the fact still remains that under no circumstances does the word potatoes mean rotten tomatoes.

Wool Markets.

Boston, Nov. 9 (A.P.) (U. S. Dept. Agr.). Manufacturers are showing a keener interest in the wool market, although practically all lines of domestic wool continue to move very slowly and in only small quantities. There is apparent among wool trade members a strongly optimistic feeling regarding prospects of an early resumption of buying by manufacturers. Strong markets abroad this week are believed to be stimulating buyers to take a more active interest in domestic wool.

Bond Market Is Unchanged; At 73.5 Level

Weakness of U. S. Loans Is Blamed; Trading $20,769,000.

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Weakness of United States Government securities, attributed principally to liquidation caused by inflationary implications of further dollar depreciation, was an unsettling factor in the bond market today and closing prices were irregular.

Trading in Federal issues totaled more than $7,000,000, the largest turnover in this section since May, last year. Seven of the Libertys and Treasurys dropped more than a point each and four of them reached new lows for the year.

The majority finished under par. Heaviest transactions were in the new Treasury 4¼-3¼'s of 1945 and the 3¼'s of 1941.

Sales Volume Up.

With the increased activity in the Government list, sales in all bonds totaled $20,769,000, par value. This was the largest volume since last July. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans was unchanged at 73.5.

As European exchanges soared in dollar terms, some leading foreign obligations either equaled or exceeded their highs for the year or longer. Swiss Government 5½s gained 5⅞ points, United Kingdom 4s and Swedish Kingdom 5½s were up 3½ each, and issues of France and Dutch East Indies advanced 2 or more.

Bonds of Germany and Japan were up around a point. Loans of Cuba, Canada and Belgium were somewhat heavy.

Canadians Are Active.

Canadian Railway maturities were active at gains of 1 or more points and similar advances were recorded by issues of American & Foreign Power, Chesapeake Corporation, Goodrich, Goodyear, Houston Oil, Colon Oil, International Telephone, International Paper, Missouri Pacific, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Southern, Studebaker, Texas & Pacific, Warner Bros. and Western Pacific.

Prime investment corporation bonds were in supply at losses ranging from fractions to more than a point.

The more active losers included loans of American Telephone, Santa Fe, Chesapeake & Ohio, Burlington, Consolidated Gas, Detroit Edison, Norfolk & Western, Pennsylvania Railway, Pacific Telephone and Western Electric.

Gold Still Flowing From Paris Bank

Paris, Nov. 9 (AP).—Gold continues to flow from the Bank of France, according to official statements today.

One quarter of a billion gold francs were withdrawn in the week ending November 3, making a loss of 1,250,000,000 francs since the cabinet crisis two weeks ago which resulted in the ascension of Sarraut to the premiership. The drain on the Bank of France gold reserve is accredited to the subsequent public discussion of the franc's danger.

The gold hoard is less by 1,500,000,000 francs since the September 1 high of 82,277,000,000 francs and is the lowest since last April 7.

The gold circulation in France last week increased by more than one billion while the bank's deposits of francs shrank by 1,666,000,000 francs.

Steel Contracts Decline.

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Contracts placed during the past week involved an estimated 15,000 tons, or about even with the average of the last several weeks. Awards for the year to date totaled about 650,000 tons, compared with 740,000 tons for the same period last year.

Cotton's Gains Trimmed in Late Trading

December Sells at 9.83 as General Market Rises 14 to 17 Points.

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Cotton pushed up another $1.30 a bale today, but yielded part of its gain in the late trading under realizing. Buying was stimulated by continued weakness in the dollar and rising grain and stock markets.

December sold up to 9.95, making a net advance of 27 points above yesterday's closing quotations, but offerings increased in the late trading and that delivery closed at 9.83, or about 12 points off from the best.

The final tone of the market was steady at net advances of 14 to 17 points.

Active Contracts Higher.

At their high levels today the active contracts were selling $3 a bale above the closing quotations of last Monday.

Considerable price fixing was reported during the day, and the demand from commission houses was said to have been the most active in some time.

The advance was accompanied by reports of a continued firm spot basis in the South, and while hedging seemed to increase on the afternoon advance, pressure from that source was not much in evidence during the greater part of the day.

Exports today 25,537, making 2,705,221 so far this season. Port receipts, 27,835. United States port stocks, 3,952,631.

U. S.-China Trade Gains 55 Per Cent

Shipments of merchandise from Shanghai, China, to the United States increased 55 per cent in the first nine months of the current year as compared with the corresponding period of 1932, according to a report from Consul R. P. Butrick, made public by the Commerce Department.

Exports declared at the American consulate-general for the two periods were, respectively, $7,317,341 and $4,691,479.

Consul Butrick cites two principal reasons for this large increase in Shanghai's export trade with the United States. During the 1932 period the consul reported, exports slumped considerably owing to the effects of the Sino-Japanese hostilities early in 1932. The depreciation of the United States dollar in terms of foreign currencies, he states, resulted in many importers in the United States bringing in larger quantities of numerous commodities in anticipation of increases in commodity prices.

Outstanding among the Chinese products shipped in larger quantities to the American market in the 1933 period were egg products, hides and skins, furs, bristles, feathers, seasame seed, wood oil, cotton waste, raw silk, hats, antimony and tungsten.

Production of Soft Coal Totals 7,000,000 Tons

The National Coal Association from incomplete car-loading reports from the railroads, estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended November 4 as slightly in excess of 7,000,000 net tons. Production for the corresponding week 1932, 7,300,000 tons; 1931, 7,771,000 tons.

The report of the Bureau of Mines shows production of 7,030,000 tons for the week ended October 21, and 7,380,000 tons for the week ended October 28, 1933.

Gold Advance Adds to Value Of U.S. Store

Federal Holdings Could Now Be Chalked Up by $2,580,000,000.

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—If Uncle Sam should revalue all his monetary gold on the basis of the price being paid by the R. F. C. for newly mined metal, it would dump approximately $2,580,000,000 into his lap.

The Treasury and the Federal Reserve System, in reporting their holdings of gold, are still reporting them on the basis of the old gold standard price of $20.67 an ounce.

On that basis, the monetary gold stock, as last reported, was approximately $4,323,000,000.

Increase in Value.

But if it were revalued on the basis of the present R. F. C. price, or even the indicated value of the dollar in relation to foreign gold currencies, the total would approximate $6,900,000,000.

Of course, monetary experts point out, Uncle Sam would not have any more gold, but he would have that many more dollars. There has been no indication from administration sources as to how much the dollar will be devalued, but there is little expectation now that it will be returned to its old gold parity.

Even such a stanch defender of the gold standard as Prof. Edwin Walter Kemmerer now suggests the dollar be revalued at about its present level in relation to gold.

Uses for Gold.

If this were done, the question arises, what will Uncle Sam do with all these additional gold dollars? Prof. Kemmerer suggests that they be used as the French government used a large addition to the number of its gold francs when it finally stabilized after the war.

France used the franc to pay off its indebtedness at the Bank of France. Since we would gain in dollars about the amount of the U. S. Government obligations held by the Federal Reserve Bank, Prof. Kemmerer suggests that the Treasury could redeem its bonds and other obligations held by the Federal Reserve.

This would place the Reserve system in a tremendously strong position. It would permit the Reserve to issue a huge amount of additional currency, or it could expand credit to the extent of billions.

"Prize Fighter and the Lady" Arouses Enthusiasm of Palace Midnight Crowd

Boxing Racket Background of Exciting Story

"THE PRIZE FIGHTER AND THE LADY." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a story by Frances Marion, adapted to the screen by John Lee Mahin and John Meehan, featuring Max Baer, Myrna Loy, Walter Huston, Primo Carnera, Jack Dempsey, Otto Kruger, Vince Barnett and Robert McWade. Directed by W. S. Van Dyke. Previewed Tuesday, November 7.

The lilting rhythms of romance have many times before been attuned to the vigorous tempo of the prize ring, but never with such extraordinarily telling effect as here.

"The Prize Fighter and the Lady" is one of those rare combinations of sure-fire elements of mass appeal that the boys down at the corner invariably refer to as "naturals." The right story has been pitched in exactly the right key and is enacted by precisely the right people to compound a consistently amusing, interesting and exciting entertainment.

The framework of plot upon which the highly diverting succession of incidents is so effectively draped is threadbare and hoary from long and constant use, but so expertly have the old familiar ingredients of the fight racket's most reliable formula for romantic melodrama been mixed that it all takes on the aspect of new and thrilling stuff.

It is no novelty to see the up-and-coming heavyweight contender threatened with professional extinction because he has tossed the girl over and had a rumpus with his manager, only to have them both drag him back from the abyss just as the champ is about to complete the process of annihilation in the ring, but it is decidedly an innovation to see the fable told once again with the bona fide heavyweight champion of the world playing himself, and the leading contender impersonated with comparable authenticity.

But the wonder does not end there. The most surprising of the picture's revelations is the skill which Max Baer, Primo Carnera, Mr. Dempsey and others of the leather-pushing fraternity are able to muster in executing their sizable chores as actors intrusted with the believable interpretation of a dramatic narrative that encompasses something well beyond the meager matter of bag-punching and weight-pulling.

The major burden of the film's dramatic integrity falls upon the Herculean shoulders of Max Baer, who turns out to be as competent an actor as he is fighter. His essays at the exacting business of being a poised and graceful leading man to the gently feminine romanticisms of Miss Myrna Loy come off with astonishing smoothness, naturalness and finesse.

Much of this effect, of course, is to be attributed to the especially appealing and sympathetic work contributed to the narrative's major movement by Miss Loy, who has never been seen to better advantage than as Belle Mercer, the carabet singer who deserts her racketeer admirer to marry the "nice eyes with a little boy in back of them."

And Walter Huston, too, in the role of the old-time manager who sees his former champion come back to life in the person of Steve Morgan, adds immeasurably to the sum total of the play's all-round excellence.

The grand climax of the whole affair, of course, is reached in the 10-round championship fight between Carnera and Baer. This is a sizzling bout from first bell to last and is left practically unmarred, insofar as its usefulness to the present story is concerned, by the fact that it is capped by an impossible decision. It is fast, frenzied and furious fisticuffing, while it lasts, and the best "theater" that has ever found its way to the screen in a charade of this nature.

Not content with demonstrating himself to be both fighter and actor, Max Baer lifts a leaf from the book of Georges Carpentier and proves himself something of an adept at song and dance, his sense of rhythm in his big musical number, as one of the gentlemen of the sports department has pointed out, being quite palpably superior to the notions of strict tempo entertained by the chorines who work the scene with him.

Everything considered, "The Prize Fighter and the Lady" may be unconditionally commended to all ages and both genders as screen entertainment in which are to be found so wide a variety of pastiming and such a wealth of engaging incident as to provide something for every taste. This was pretty thoroughly made plain at last night's midnight preview at Loew's Palace. It will become increasingly evident as the week wears on. It is as nearly a perfect "audience picture" as the season is apt to produce.

It is augmented on the Palace bill by a new Mickey Mouse cartoon comedy, "Steeplechase Mickey"; "Across the Sea," a short-reel, and the new issue of the Metrotone News—none of which will be remembered once the feature has been viewed.

Bring Famous Play to Screen

Leslie Howard and Betty Lawford, as they appear in the Fox picturization of "Berkeley Square," which will be seen for the first time locally as chief screen feature of the bill beginning today at Loew's Fox Theater. Miss Lawford in private life is Mrs. L. Monta Bell, wife of the noted director and former Washington newspaper man.

By a last-minute change in stage bookings, "Slim" Timblin, foremost of the blackface exhorters, will supplant Jans and Whelan, comedians who are favorites of Washington audiences, on the bill opening today at Loew's Fox Theater. This is one instance in which a substitution has been so shrewdly contrived that the public is no whit defrauded. Jans and Whelan are a swell act, but so is the eminent Mr. Timblin.

First of Season.

Tonight at 8:40, in Wardman Park Theater the Drama Guild of Washington will offer its first performance of the 1933-34 season, with the presentation of Milne's delightful comedy-drama, "The Perfect Alibi," directed by one of the Capital City's outstanding producers, Denis E. Connell.

The cast which will be seen in this Broadway success of several seasons, is likewise noteworthy in Washington's drama circles, including Ada Green, Mary L. Minnix and Naoma Warden in the feminine roles; Thomas M. Cahill, Frank E. Jamison, Howard Frederick, Harold A. Weinberger, James Otis Porter, Marvin Beers, Herbert Eby and Joseph Haltigan, in the male.

For the benefit of those delinquents who invariably postpone their major pleasures to the last possible moment—no doubt on the theory that anticipation is one of enjoyment's principal handmaidens—it can not be too vigorously emphasized that the fortnight's engagement of "Dinner at Eight," M-G-M's fourteen-star screen version of the Edna Ferber-George S. Kaufman stage play, positively will come to an end at the National Theater tomorrow night. Not to have seen this picture will prove a considerable handicap in the matter of drawing-room small-talk. With regard to its famous last line at least!

Another Early Opening.

Announcement comes belatedly to hand from the executive offices of the RKO-Keith Theater to the effect that "After Tonight," the newest vehicle for the tensely emotional talents of Constance Bennett, will inaugurate its engagement on Fifteenth street with a special midnight public preview—this is getting to be a vogue, no less—Saturday night at 11:30 o'clock.

In this subject—a suspenseful tale of spies and intrigue along the Hungarian frontier in the Great War—Miss Bennett is supported by Gilbert Roland, who is happily cast as a swarthy young officer in love with a girl he is called upon by duty to——

But that is what you will wish to learn first hand, come Saturday midnight.

Speaking of previews, tonight is the night when, at 8:30 o'clock, the public will be permitted for the first time to glimpse Universal's beautifully done "Only Yesterday," in which the pivotal roles are played by Margaret Sullavan, John Boles, Billie Burke, Reginald Denny and Master Jimmie Butler, the best juvenile actor of them all. Like all of the other pictures that are being given preview showings night after night, "Only Yesterday" is a screen subject executed on a scale and interpreted in a manner that makes it obligatory to see it if one wishes to keep abreast of the most significant of the cinema's enterprises.

Coveted Engagement.

Bunny Bryan, avant couriering on behalf of Guy Lombardo and His Royal Canadians, opening today as principal stage attraction at the Earle Theater, drops by the desk to say that his organization has just been apprised of its appointment to one of the most sought after engagements on the continent—featured band at the famous Cocoanut Grove in Los Angeles, conducted in conjunction with the equally famous Ambassador Hotel, rendezvous for all of Hollywood's great and near-great.

Abe Lyman, who has had the Cocoanut Grove during the summer, comes East to the Hotel New Yorker, and Guy Lombardo, upon the completion of his present tour of the East, will trek West to take on the choice winter spot.

Election Note.

That distinguished gate crasher and eminent thespian, Mr. Tammany Young, since Tuesday's New York debacle, is momentarily expected to announce that he has changed his name to Fusion Young. The lad is no fool!

Rare Tropic Disease Kills 15; Chicago Doctors Hunt 18,000

World's Fair Visitors Are Sought to Avoid Spread of Malady.

Chicago, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—An outbreak of a rare, tropical disease has caused 15 deaths in Chicago and elsewhere in the United States, it was announced late today by Dr. Herman N. Bundensen, president of the board of health.

At least 100 other persons are suffering from the disease, known as amoebic dysentery, it was revealed, and an official of the United States Public Health Service has been sent here to help stop the outbreak.

Dr. Bundensen said the source of the disease has been traced and that the situation is now under control. Immediate steps were taken by the board of health to get in touch with more than 18,000 persons, many of them World's Fair visitors, who had been exposed to the disease.

The disease, which rarely appears in this part of the world, does not develop until about three weeks after the person contracts it, Dr. Bundensen said, so that a person might contract it here, return to his home city and not become ill until days later.

As news of the epidemic spread, hasty cancellations of many public gatherings were made.

Bundensen remained in charge of the fight to stop the epidemic and was joined by Dr. R. B. Spencer, who was sent here hurriedly from Washington.

Miss Perkins Asked to Aid New Age War

Congress Leaders Would Remove All Civil Service Limits.

Expect Labor Secretary to Reveal Her Views on Return to City.

Dissatisfied with Civil Service Commission action in raising the age limit for only one examination, congressional opponents of employment restrictions last night awaited further aid from Secretary Perkins.

Now that the Labor Secretary has prevailed on the commission to increase from 40 to 53 the maximum age for persons taking stenographic and typist tests, Representative Cochran (Democrat), Missouri, and other members of the House and Senate want the commission to lift other limits.

Miss Perkins has been out of Washington since the stenographic ban was eliminated and has not made known whether she considered the commission action sufficient broad. She probably will reveal her future course upon returning to Washington today.

Opponents of the low limits, however, recalled Miss Perkins some time ago said she believed there should be virtually no limits on the age of any person taking examination for a position which required no strenuous physical labor. She indicated age limits should be abolished where possible on the grounds that they might cause serious economic problems.

The Labor Secretary has studied the entire situation at the request of President Roosevelt, who received sharp protests from Cochran and other members of Congress. She interviewed personnel officers, department heads and Civil Service Commission officials. That intervention brought reversal of part of an earlier commission ruling on ages.

Among present age limits under fire are those of 40 for teachers of home economics in Indian schools, 35 for junior graduate nurses and 35 for tabulating and machine operators. The maximum for those grades formerly ranged as high as 50.

"I'll take the biscuits of a woman of 45 before a young lady of 25," Cochran remarked. He reiterated he intended to fight against "all class distinction until reasonable age limits are set all along the line."

Akron Police Nab Man Wanted Here

May Fight Extradition on $1,600 Forgery Charge.

Described as a notorious "confidence man" wanted on two continents, Albert Best, 35, was arrested in Akron, Ohio, yesterday on information furnished in a Washington police circular.

Best faces charges of forgery and fraud. Police said he obtained $1,600 in travelers' checks here by forging cashiers' checks on a New York bank.

It was learned that Best usually travels with "an attractive blonde." She was not found in Akron. It is believed he will fight extradition to the District.

Salesman Hangs Himself in Attic

Wife Finds Body Dangling From Rafter.

Harry Myer O'Brien, 42, automobile salesman, hanged himself with an electric light cord in the attic of his home, 3421 Porter street northwest, late yesterday.

His wife, Mrs. Anna O'Brien, discovered her husband's body dangling from a rafter. She cut the cord and called the Fire Rescue Squad. Dr. W. E. Long, 2116 Fourth street northeast, pronounced him dead.

Relatives were unable to furnish a motive for the suicide.

Beater of Hotel Bills Refused to Be "Bum"

Joseph V. Canning, 35, no fixed adress, was sentenced to 90 days in jail at Police Court yesterday when he pleaded guilty to four charges of beating local hotel bills.

Canning told Judge Isaac R. Hitt he was formerly employed by the Bethlehem Steel Company and had been out of work more than a year. He said he refused to let the depression "make a bum" out of him and force him to "sleep in the streets."

Cottage City Driver Convicted as Reckless

Larry Williams, 45, of Cottage City, Md., was convicted by a police court jury here yesterday on a reckless driving charge.

Sons of Chaplain Killed in France and Third Youth Appointed.

Three Washington youths were among those nominated to take examinations for admission to West Point, the War Department announced yesterday. They were named by President Roosevelt.

Two of the trio are brothers, Richard M. and Arthur H. Marsh, jr., of 1600 Sixteenth street northwest. Their father, Chaplain A. H. Marsh, was killed in France while serving with the Eighteenth Infantry of the First Division. The other nominee is Herbert Edward Block, of 2659 Connecticut avenue northwest.

The Marsh brothers were named under the law of June 8, 1926, which permits the nomination of sons of officers or enlisted men killed in war. Both were named last year by President Hoover. They will take the examinations in the spring.

The speaker was presented by Col. Claude D. Jones. Dr. William J. B. Orr, surgeon, was welcomed as a new member.

Cooper Argues Bank Solvent Before Court

Withholding of License Not Subject to Question, Treasury Insists.

Varying pictures of the solvency or lack of it in the United States Savings Bank were drawn yesterday in District Supreme Court where attorneys representing Wade H. Cooper, president and majority stock holder, are seeking an order requiring the Treasury to license the bank for reopening.

Representatives of the Treasury declared the bank was insolvent by some $400,000, while W. Bissell Thomas and John W. Staggers, acting for Col. Cooper, claimed it was solvent.

Early yesterday Justice Jennings Bailey indicated cutting short the case with the opinion that "if I have any authority at all it is on the question of whether the action of the Comptroller has been arbitrary."

Officers of the Treasury insist that the Comptroller has exercised legal discretion in refusing to license the bank and that such action is not subject to legal question.

The plan which Col. Cooper is asking the court to sanction provides immediate payment of 65 per cent of outstanding claims, the remainder to be covered by a trust fund into which various earnings of the bank would go.

Under the Cooper plan the bank would pay out $1,150,000, which, with capital structure, would be brought up to $1,300,000.

Hearing adjourned until today, with several witnesses yet to be heard. George P. Barse and Charles E. Wainwright represented a group of Treasury officials who were named defendants.

New Flying Field Move Hits Snag

Failure Is Seen for East Potomac Park Plan.

Interior Department officials yesterday said it was unlikely that Congress would authorize establishment of a commercial flying field in East Potomac Park.

It was learned that the Eastern Air Transport has put forward such a request. C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks, said he knew the proposal was pending but no official step had been taken by the airline.

Eastern Air Transport is likely to be evicted from Washington Airport, because the terminal recently was purchased by Federal Aviation Corporation, which plans air service between here and New York in competition with Eastern Air.

Mrs Wiley Appeals for Needy.

Act While Serving Term in Prison Caused Year Cut in Sentence.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 9 (AP).—George Crawford, Negro former convict, who faces trial in Leesburg on charges of murdering Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley and her maid, helped to save the life of a State road camp guard in 1928 when the guard was attacked with a knife by another convict, Prison Superintendent Rice M. Youell said today. Gov. Byrd shortened Crawford's term by a year for the act.

Superintendent Youell said Crawford had a bad record the first of his two terms and for part of his second term. He escaped twice and lost 20 per cent of his good conduct time on another occasion for refusing to go to work.

The Negro was born in Richmond and lived here most of his life. He was convicted here in 1921 for receiving and concealing stolen goods, and was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary. He escaped the following year and was not recaptured until arrested on a grand larceny charge several months later. He was convicted and received a five-year sentence.

Crawford escaped a second time in 1925, but was recaptured the following day. For the two escapes he received three additional years, as well as two years for being a second offender. His total sentences exceeded 11 years.

Crawford was released from the penitentiary on November 23, 1930.

Utility Firms Fight to Hold Value Figure

Boston Expert Takes All Morning to Tell His Qualifications.

Justification of their $22,358,833 claim as the reproduction value of their physical properties, other than land, was begun by the Washington and Georgetown Gas Light companies before the Public Utilities Commission yesterday.

August C. Klein, chief mechanical engineer of Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation, Boston, after taking almost all of the morning session to cite his qualifications, occupied the afternoon session with a description of how the inventory was made.

He told of measuring pipe, counting bricks in buildings, measuring concrete, sticking pins into pipe coverings to determine their depth, and other means employed to get information on which to base his estimate. Appraisals by executives of the companies also were employed, Mr. Klein said.

Total of $25,647,833.

Although no figures were given by Mr. Klein results of his inventory, filed previously, placed the value of the Georgetown company at $2,411,462, and of the Washington company at $19,947,371. An additional $3,289,000 for land has been added to this $22,358,833 making a total of $25,647,833.

To this figure the companies claim substantial additions should be made for going concern value, operating capital, engineering costs and many other intangible items totaling millions.

Inventory of the commission placed the value of the land and plant of the Georgetown company at $2,408,261, and of the Washington company at $18,907,405, a total of $21,315,666. From this commission experts contend there should be deducted the sum of $400,803 for property owned but not used. This $20,914,863 total is $4,732,970 less than the figure claimed by the company.

Objection Is Overruled.

Mr. Klein took the witness chair after the commission overruled the motion of William McK. Clayton, chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, to strike from the record testimony of company and commission land appraisers. Clayton based his motion on private conferences held before the public hearing between experts of the companies and the commission. The commission withheld a ruling on a motion by Clayton to include in the formal record of the public hearing stenographic transcript of the conferences.

Riley E. Elgen, acting chairman of the commission, announced the motion to strike had been overruled.

"In the proceedings before this commission," the chairman said, "it is interested in the ascertainment of facts relevant to determination of a fair valuation of these properties in accordance with the law, which requires that. Before any conclusion can be reached we must have all facts having a bearing upon these valuations legally in the public record. We were and are cognizant of the almost insurmountable difficulties attendant upon determination of the reasons back of differences between experts, particularly as to facts about which, in many instances, no such differences ought to exist. In order to iron these out so that an understandable public record would be available, we authorized conferences between the experts.

Followed I. C. C. Procedure.

"The commission desires to state at this time that in following the conference plan as outlined in its instructions to its conferees and of record in this case, it was not introducing any innovation in valuation proceedings, but was following a well-established and successful procedure used by many State regulatory bodies in this country, as well as the Interstate Commerce Commission, where the valuation for rate-making purposes where many billions of dollars of carrier property was at issue.

"In these cases," the commission continued after referring to several Commerce Commission reports "regulatory bodies in the States, traversed by properties under valuation, participated in the conferences; their representatives signed all stipulations together with the representatives of the carriers and the conferees of the Interstate Commerce Commission. In our authorization we did not carry the conference method to cover anything like the extensive field in those cases and we specifically stated we were not bound by any conclusion rached by the conferees. It was our hope that by these conferences differences would be reduced to their simplest terms.

"It is our confirmed belief that such conferences are in the public interest. By these subjections of the conferees to examination in open public hearing, the public record in this case has and will clearly establish what took place in conferences insofar as the ascertainment of available facts which the experts had, both prior to and during the conferences, as well as during this hearing."

Lee Mansion Remains Open During Repair

Painting and Restoration Made Possible by $12,209 Fund.

Lee Mansion in Arlington National Cemetery is being given a thorough overhauling, made possible by an allotment of $12,209.40 from the Public Works Administration. About one-third of this sum will be used to paint both the interior and exterior of the mansion and the old slave quarters.

"It will be necessary to remove and store the furniture now in the rooms where painting is in progress," Arno B. Cammerer, chief of National Parks, Buildings and Reservations, said yesterday, "and it may be necessary to close parts of the building to the public, but the entire building will not be closed unless it becomes necessary, as this would result in disappointment to people coming from long distances who wish to visit the mansion."

Wood steps on the east, north and south sides of the portico will be replaced with stone steps. A metal framework, colored to simulate wood, will replace the rotting wooden beams supporting the roof of the glass conservatory.

The floors of several basement rooms will be repaved to prevent dust and dampness from damaging the chambers above. For this purpose 20,000 colonial bricks will be required.

Mr. Cammerer said restoration of part of a kitchen garden that once existed on the north side will be undertaken, but not completely restored at this time.

A slope in front of the mansion damaged by a recent slide will be restored and landscaped. There will be numerous minor improvements to walks, grass plots and gravel roadways.

Col. Charles G. Mortimer, in charge of Arlington Cemetery for the War Department, is supervising the work at the request of Mr. Cammerer. The mansion was transferred last August from War to the Interior Department's Parks Office headed by Mr. Cammerer, but Col. Mortimer remained in charge of the building.

Free Beer in Theater Is Ruled Within Law

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover yesterday informed District Commissioners there was no violation of the beer laws when a local theater served the amber fluid to its patrons free two weeks ago.

Mr. Rover's opinion had been sought after the belief had been expressed that even though the beer was served to patrons free, there was an infraction of the law.

Boy Collects Envelopes Mailed From Frigate "Old Ironsides."

First at the mail box in the morning is little Edward McGlauflin Stowe, jr., not yet 3, and he has reason to be, for from his father addressed to him comes a letter from the famous frigate "Old Ironsides."

More than 2,000 envelopes inscribed with interesting details of the ship and autographs of famous visitors have been collected by Edward who together with his baby sister and mother live at 126 F street southeast.

His daddy, a chief quartermaster, is junior officer of the deck of the historic frigate and in the line of duty greets the crowds of patriotic Americans who visit the ship daily.

The letter collection is a graphic history of the frigate since the day it was recommissioned. A complete record of the Constitution's movements in and out of each of the 82 ports from Boston to San Diego, Calif., is inscribed on the letter covers.

Among the autographs inscribed on the latter is that of former Ambassador Claudel, of France, and the signatures of other foreign diplomats.

One envelope, from Long Beach, Calif., bears the cancellation date of the earthquake of last winter, and another has the cachet of Admiral Richard Leigh.

Edward, who will be 3 years old February 11, has not seen his father since just before Christmas, 1932, when the frigate left the Washington Navy Yard. His baby sister, Norma Anne, who has never seen her father, is less than 9 months old. Stowe was married on February 11, 1930, and both children were born on that day of the month.

Andrew Moses, Rear Admiral Ernest J. King, Maj. Russell P. Freeman and Capt. Stanley P. Smith were named junior vice commanders.

Holland Freed In Hotel Death Of D.C. Woman

Former Capitol Policeman Wins Acquittal on Shooting Charge.

Elmer W. Holland, jr., 26, 7707 Thirteenth street northwest, former policeman at the Capitol, yesterday was acquitted of a charge of manslaughter in the slaying of Leila Morrison, 28, in the Franklin Park Hotel.

A jury in District Supreme Court returned a "not guilty" verdict. Holland was indicted after police had learned that he fired a shot through the door of Miss Morrison's room, June 8.

The bullet ricocheted off a bed stand and lodged in Miss Morrison's chest. Holland surrendered the following day. Through Attorney Michael J. Colbert he denied any intention of harming any one when he accidently discharged a pistol while he was standing in the hallway outside Miss Morrison's room.

Rev. J. A. McCarl to Speak.

The Rev. James A. McCarl, S. J., of Gonzaga College, will give a "Day of Recollection" at Nazareth Social Service Center, 200 I street northwest, Sunday. The first conference is scheduled for 10:30 a. m., the second for 2:30 p. m., and the Holy Hour for 4:30.

All Rum Cases Being Pushed As Previously

Prosecution Continues Under Volstead Law Despite Repeal.

Judge Hitt and Others Consider Ban Still in Effect Here.

Prosecution of liquor law violators in the District will continue unabated until repeal of the Volstead act, it was indicated in Police Court yesterday.

In the first liquor case to come before Police Court since repeal of the eighteenth amendment, Judge Isaac R. Hitt denied a motion of dismissal entered on the ground that the Volstead act is invalid because the parent law has been repealed.

"The Volstead act is still in effect in the District," Judge Hitt said.

Case Continued to November 22.

Michael J. Lane, attorney for the defendants, asked that the case be continued to November 22, at which time he will ask that the information be quashed.

Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart, prosecuting the case, declared he will continue to fight liquor law violation cases until "told to stop."

He has scheduled several large cases in jury court to "test out public sentiment" on liquor law violation arrests before repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Judges Remain Firm.

Hart predicted repeal will increase the activity of the bootlegger, rather than obliviate him. "Once a bootlegger, always a bootlegger, and repeal won't make any difference," he said.

A consensus of Police Court judges reveals that they will continue to administer the same sentences as heretofore until repeal has legally taken effect in the District.

Revamped Colonials Are Favorites Over W. & J. Eleven Tonight

G. W. Seeking To Regain Prestige

Doose, Parrish, Bomba and Plotnicki Start in Back Field.

Stewart, Leemans Are Likely to Play; Foe Has Strong Team.

GEORGE WASHINGTON will begin all over again tonight at Griffith Stadium; where it encounters Washington and Jefferson at 8 o'clock. Stripped of three valuable players on the morning of the Tennessee game last week, the Colonials went forth to battle ill-prepared for the powerful Volunteers. Tonight they are ready for the Presidents and confident of making the visitors the first victim in another winning streak.

"Tuffy" Leemans, ace of the remaining Colonial backs, will be ready for service, but it is doubtful whether he will appear in a starting role. Ben Plotnicki will call signals, surrounded by Chris Doose, Finis Parrish and Don Bomba. Bomba will do the kicking, Plotnicki the passing, and all will have a hand in running the apple.

Colonials 3-2 Choice.

Even though weakened by the loss of three regulars, George Washington still rates a 3-2 favorite over the Pennsylvanians, who are making their first trip to Washington in 18 years. In that time W. and J. has dropped from the top of the grid world to well down near the bottom and now is on its way back up the ladder.

Al Ercius, rangy end, is the outstanding player on the team's roster. A great defensive gridder, Ercius also happens to be one of the best ground gainers on the club. He runs, kicks and passes the ball in approved triple-threat style. It was through the medium of a pass thrown by him that W. J. scored a touchdown on Duquesne last week.

Presidents' Line Strong.

Together with Ercius, Dick Dalrymple, tackle, and Johnny Fife, guard, make the left side of W. J.'s line virtually impregnable. Duquesne gained only 14 yards through this section, which has played bang-up ball against all opponents this season. Merely by coincidence most of G. W.'s plays went in this direction, but the coaching staff remedied this during the past week.

George Washington expects to take to the air on a large scale if it finds the ground going too rough. Leemans very likely will be called upon to do most of the passing. The Presidents are noted for their stout defense. Although three games have been lost, opponents have succeeded in scoring only 51 points through the season.

Heffelfinger, at 66, To Play Grid Benefit

Minneapolis, Nov. 9 (AP).—W. W. "Pudge" Heffelfinger, a power on Yale football teams in the late 80's, again has postponed his retirement from gridiron activity.

The 66-year-old local man, a great guard at Yale, has decided to play his "final" game here next Saturday with a team of former University of Minnesota gridders against one-time St. Thomas College stars in a benefit contest for disabled veterans.

A year ago, he played in a high school alumni game, suffered an injury, and decided to give up the sport.

He weighs 240 pounds and is active.

"I'm 66 now," he said, "and far past football age, but I've always been willing to help the disabled veterans, and I guess I can move back my retirement one year. I will play with the Gophers and will not ask any quarter."

Jeby Takes Narrow Decision Over Rossi

Waivers on All Asked by Reds

Cincinnati, Nov. 9 (AP).—Waivers on every player on the roster of the Cincinnati Reds were sent out to other National League baseball clubs today, as the first step in Larry MacPhail's campaign to make a winner out of a consistently last place club.

The action, however, is considered routine procedure for major league clubs, and rather as a feeler to ascertain what trades can be made than a declaration of intentions. There is nothing binding on either side.

"I am not doing this with the idea of disposing of the entire team," MacPhail said. "Some of the players I will be very glad to sell at the waiver price of $4,000, but, of course, there are some who are worth a great deal more than that. I am simply sending out this list as a feeler to discover which of our players, if any, are in demand by one or more of the other clubs. It may be that a deal or two will result."

C. U. at Peak For Detroit Battle

Nally, at Tackle, Bolsters Line to Oppose Big Titan Forwards.

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY coaches gave their football machine a thorough going-over within the secret recesses of the excavation that is Brookland Stadium yesterday, testing each vital part of the vehicle that will be rolled out on the turf of Griffith Stadium against Detroit tomorrow. Coach Bergman and his staff of assistants were well satisfied with the workout, and confident that the team will be at its best for the home-coming game, the most important on the schedule.

With the lone exception of Bob McVean, reserve quarter back, C. U. is in fighting shape, as keen as a razor edge and anxious to get into action. The Cardinals see the opportunity not only of increasing their prestige at the expense of the Titans, but also of avenging a defeat by Holy Cross earlier in the season, for Detroit crushed the Crusaders last week.

Nally Back in Line.

Bergman reinstated Tom Nally at left tackle, a berth occupied by Lloyd Stafford last week, in an effort to bolster the forward wall. Detroit's line will average well over 200-pounds, and will be particularly strong at the tackles. Nally's experience and his 208 pounds should help offset this disadvantage. Phil Gross, a 215-pounder, will be at the other tackle. This will be the only change in the line-up.

Detroit, in the meantime, was en route to the Capital City last night and is scheduled to arrive around noon today. It will stop at the Hamilton Hotel. A workout is scheduled this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Griffith Stadium.

The Titan line will be the largest to invade Washington this season, and one of the most powerful. It held Holy Cross to 67 yards from scrimmage last week and succeeded in throwing the Purplebacks for losses aggregating 24-yards. The majority of Holy Cross' gains were made on end sweeps, after it found penetrating the line next to impossible. Detroit's forward wall shapes up akin to that of St. Mary's, which displayed the biggest set of forwards to be seen in the east this year.

Helmer Is Heaviest.

The prize package is Clair Helmer, a junior, who sends the scale hand whirling around to 224 pounds. Next in bulk is Emanuel Giuliani, a senior, who weighs 210 pounds. The smallest tackle on the squad weighs 190 pounds. George Maki, center, weighs 204 pounds; Russ West and Earl Stieler, guards, 205 and 210 pounds, respectively. Norbert Reisterer, end, scales 198 pounds, and his running mate, Paul Storrie, 184. They grow 'em big in the Midwest, and Detroit plays 'em big. And the replacements are just as husky.

In Doug Nott, Detroit believes it has a man who equals Harry Newman and Benny Osterbaan in forward passing. Against Holy Cross Nott completed 12 passes, most of them to Reisterer, for gains totaling 283 yards. He also runs and kicks the ball. A triple-threater in very sense of the word. He will be the man C. U. must stop tomorrow.

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

A GEORGE WASHINGTON-Maryland game, of all things, may be the dish laid before the District of Columbia football fans next season. These two institutions, believed to be as far apart as the poles, were figuratively in fond embrace yesterday at the Twenty-first and G streets edifice that houses the president and provost of G. W. U.

A visitor to the administration offices of G. W. U. yesterday was H. C. (Curly) Byrd, vice president and athletic director of Maryland, who was in conference for several hours with Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington, and both gentlemen emerged from their parley looking like a couple of fraternity brothers who have just pledged eternal faithfulness.

All of which is a bit startling to Washington's football observers, who have been watching the battle for patronage by G. W. and Maryland during the past two seasons, and who were ready to point the half-cocked finger of suspicion at Maryland when protests of G. W. players by Tennessee developed virtually on the eve of last Saturday's game. Somebody was wrong about that.

The South Reprieved.

Following the Tennessee debacle, George Washington was ready to cross its Southern neighbors off its football lists and look to the North and Midwest for gridiron competition, but there was talk yesterday at the G. W. athletic office of attractive games for 1934 with Dixie teams. Somebody has changed his mind.

The only statement forthcoming from Dr. Marvin was an admission of his conference with Byrd and his reiteration of an earlier pronouncement that G. W. U. was on friendly terms with neighboring institutions despite reports that the troubles preceeding the Tennessee game had their inception because of "jealous rivals."

The Colonials will continue their policy of booking at least three or four intersectional games each season and the 1934 schedule is already in a fair way toward that end.

On the Spot.

There comes to hand the Williamson System of Football Ratings, a challenge to indignant alumni if there ever was one. There can be no question of the courage of Mr. P. B. Williamson, of New Orleans, who undertakes to put the colleges in their place. But he will probably hear more about this.

There can be no dissent, except from Army supporters, perhaps, in his ranking of Michigan at the top of the heap with a rating of 86 out of a possible 100 units, but thereafter Mr. Williamson put himself on the hot spot. Above the unbeaten Army team, which beat Illinois worse than Michigan beat the Illini, he has rated Georgia, Princeton, Purdue, Pittsburgh, Louisiana State and Tennessee.

Ah, there's the rub, rating Tennessee ahead of Army, which is put in eighth place, and Duke in ninth. Possibly Mr. Williamson was on vacation when Duke was beating Tennessee, 10 to 2, three weeks ago. Possibly he was still vacationing when Alabama beat the Volunteers, 12 to 6, two weeks ago.

It Must be Intricate.

I do not know the method by which Mr. Williamson arrives at his ratings, which he says has the indorsement of the Nation's leading sports editors, but it must be very intricate indeed to permit the ranking of St. Mary's in thirty-first place, seven pegs below the Fordham team that the Galloping Gaels bumped off last Saturday. And Mr. Williamson's rating include the games of last Saturday.

George Washington he ranks thirty-fifth in the list of the Nation's 231 teams, and when G. W. U. alumni peruse farther down the list and discover that this is a better ranking than Auburn, NEEDING a victory over McKinley Tech to clinch part ownership of the interhigh football league championship, the pace-setting Eastern eleven has a double incentive to spur it on in its important clash with the Hardell-coached machine at Central Stadium this afternoon.

The game itself bids certain to attract a banner turnout, probably as large as that which witnessed the Tech-Central game last week, when a frenzied, air-cooled scholastic crowd, bordering the 9,000 mark, witnessed the fray.

Should Eastern win the encounter it will jointly lead the league, something that the Lincoln Park eleven has failed to enjoy since 1897.

Tech Seeks Second Place.

Should Tech cop the scrap, then Tech will go into second place undisputed and Central will be the 1933 District champion. However, Central has yet to meet Western, but the Mount Pleasant team is expected to clean up the Georgetown club in fairly easy fashion when they battle in the series final Thursday.

Eastern is a slight choice to defeat the Manual Trainers in lieu of the fact that it has held Central, which nosed out Tech Friday, 7 to 0, to a scoreless tie. Aside from this, the Easterners have added a great ball player to their starting line-up in Jack McCarthy, former St. John's star full back. Mac can kick, carry the ball, back up the line and pass with equal precision. Cattell, a back transfer from Tech, also is available for duty.

The Lincoln Park School will also have Tommy Nolan and Bud Wiere-

Babe Ruth Says He Won't Retire

San Francisco, Nov. 9 (AP). What will next season bring for George Herman "Babe" Ruth, once baseball's mightiest swatsmith?

Not retirement, emphatically declared the Babe himself as he arrived here today from a vacation in the Hawaiian Islands.

"I'll be right in there if I feel as well as I do now," said Ruth, swinging a golf club. "I'm in great shape. I still hope to get my share of home runs."

The New York Yankees' outfielder stepped from the Liner Lurline into a pleasant reception by San Francisco admirers. He hastened to the Lake Merced golf links for a round with Frank O'Doul, outfielder of the New York Giants.

Ruth and his wife and their daughter, Julia, sail on the Lurline tomorrow for Los Angeles, where they plan to attend the Stanford-Southern California football game Saturday.

Fight Body Ignores Rosenbloom's Slaps

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—The New York State Athletic Commission at its weekly meeting today ignored the question of Maxie Rosenbloom's alleged illegal tactics in his light-heavyweight title defense against Mickey Walker last Friday.

Both judges of the fight gave the decision to Rosenbloom by a wide margin. Eddie Forbes, the referee, ruled just as decisively the other way, explaining that Rosenbloom was almost constantly guilty of hitting with the open hand, which is illegal under N. Y. S. A. C. rules.

Love Suit Against Baer Is Set for November 20

Oakland, Calif., Nov. 9 (AP).—Trial of the $250,000 breach of promise suit against Max Baer, pugilist and movie actor, brought by Olive Beck, Livermore waitress, was set for November 20 by Superior Judge T. W. Harris today.

Miss Beck has charged she accepted Baer's proposal of marriage in August, 1929, but that he later married Dorothy Dunbar Wells, actress. Letters the waitress said were written her by Baer from Los Angeles are to figure in the case, attorneys said.

Army, Princeton Uninterested In Rose Bowl Game—Too Busy

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP).—From a high, high, high-up, who says he has the low, low, low-down, it has been learned that the committee in charge of selecting Rose Bowl teams is positively not considering Cooper Union, but is watching everybody else, including Michigan, Army, Princeton, Georgia, Duke and Pittsburgh.

From what one can gather, the committee is wasting time watching several of the teams named. Michigan, for example. The Wolverines probably have the best team in these United States, but unless the Big Ten fathers rescind their rule prohibiting members from engaging in postseason games, Kipke's men will have to reject the bid just as they did last year.

Army probably isn't interested for several reasons, one of them being the rigid West Point class schedule doesn't allow for such extended junkets, even when sponsored by such noncommercial organizations as chambers of commerce. Furthermore, Army hasn't that sort of team. It's an elegant one in its own

Stecher Downs Zaharias in Mat Bout

Ex-Champ Nails Foe With Scissors; Boesch Defeats Raines.

AT an age when most wrestlers are cutting paper dolls, Joe Stecher cut himsel a hunk of George Zaharias with his leg scissors last night at the Washington Auditorium before a crowd of 5,000. The end came when the former heavyweight champion finally cornered the opposition after 34½ minutes of flitting about, and massaged the corpulent Zaharias tummy into a mid-Victorian waistline.

For the most part the bout was slow, with both contestants moping around on the mat listening to Stecher's arteries harden, but it had its moments. One of them came early, when big, bold Benny Bortnick slapped at Zaharias to make him break a strangle hold. Zaharias rose in all his might and smote the air in close proximity to the Bortnick snozzle. From then on Bortnick was as subdued as a chaperone at a sorority dance—and about as useful.

Play "Puss in Corner."

At one stage of the game, the boys indulged in a delightful pastime comparable to the familiar "Pussy wants a corner." Stecher would sit on the ropes in a corner waving his legs menacingly and Zaharias would advance to almost within hailing distance, then back shyly away. From corner to corner they played this game, until one by one the audience, the timekeeper, the referee and finally the contestants tired of it.

Midway of the bout, Zaharias indulged in rowing machine exercises on his opponent's legs, Stecher lay on his face and let him row, raising him right up in the air whenever he felt inclined to extend his big, prodigiously powerful legs. It was a good workout.

During the progress of the contest, Stecher tried time and time again to find a parking place for his scissors around Zaharias' midsection, but the overinflated Coloradoan avoided his early efforts by folding up, grabbing his legs with his hands and sitting coyly on the mat like a dainty damosel listening to a proposal.

Weakened by Toss from Ring.

Virtue finally triumphed after Zaharias had been ostensibly weakened by being dumped from the ring. Coming back within the ropes, he was apparently too weak even to be coy, and Stecher clamped on the finishing hold.

Paul Boesch and Dick Raines collided head-on after 37 minutes of their semifinal and both went to the canvas. But Boesch's head was harder, or bigger or something and he managed to roll over on his opponent at the count of eight.

In other bouts Swede Olsen threw Joe Montana in 16 minutes with a draw and crash, Pete Ramos threw John Kazonas in 16 minutes with body slams and Milo Steinborn and Vanka Zelesniack worked 30 minutes to a draw.

High School Team Is a Family Affair

Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.).—Glenville High School's Football Team, which is having the best season in years, is pretty much of a family affair.

The back field is made up of an uncle, a nephew and two brothers. Big Darius "Buckeye" Jamison, full back, directs the team and is assisted by his nephew, Lonnie Fitzpatrick, whose father married a sister of Jamison. In addition there are two Jarvis brothers, Paul and Samuel, who would look good on any scholastic football outfit.

Up the line are to be found two brothers and three cousins in the persons of Robert and Richard Beall and Laddie Bell, who play guard, center and tackle on the left side of the line, through which not a single touchdown has been scored this season.

Kerr Signs at Colgate For Three More Years

Hamliton, N. Y., Nov. 9 (AP).—Andy Kerr, coach of Colgate's Football Team for five years, today signed a contract to continue as head coach for another three years, Graduate Manager William A. Reid announced. This put an end to rumors that Kerr might move to other coaching fields. His name had been linked with a reported offer from Yale.

Colgate teams so far coached by Kerr have not been beaten more than once in any season since he took charge in 1929, following football work under Pop Warner at Pittsburg, Stanford, and a term as head coach at Washington and Jefferson.

Notre Dame Line-Up Shifted for Purdue

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 9 (AP).—As another snowstorm forced Notre Dame's varsity indoors again today, Coach Hunk Anderson announced he would start Tony Mazziotti at quarter back against Purdue Saturday in an effort to produce some points with an offensive that has gained 1,200 yards from scrimmage in five games with only two touchdowns to show for the gains.

John "Tex" Young, who showed up well against the Navy, will start at right half back and Harry Pojman, a sophomore, at center.

Duke Is Heavy Choice Over Maryland

Coach Wade May Take His 4th Team to Coast if Devils Go Unbeaten.

BLOCKED kicks, brilliant broken field runs, and timely forward passes win the majority of football games, but the factor that is expected to decide tomorrow's tussle between Maryland and the unconquered, untied Duke eleven at College Park is experience. The invading Blue Devils have a decided edge on their Southern Conference rivals in experience, not only from the players' angle, but in coaching as well.

Wallace Wade, one of the best-known grid instructors in the Nation, is at the helm of the Duke machine. A graduate of Brown, Wade first came into Nation-wide prominence at Alabama, where three of his teams won bids to the annual Rose Bowl game at Pasadena. It is possible that if Duke survives the season undefeated Wade will lead a fourth team to the Pacific Coast for the New Year's Day classic.

Faber Capable Coach.

Jack Faber, head field coach of the Terrapins, is a newcomer to varsity coaching ranks, although he turned out several formidable freshman teams at Maryland. He also tutored the varsity lacrosse ten and freshman basket ball team. While not a master strategist, Faber is recognized as a capable instructor and has the experience and ability of Curley Byrd, head coach for 21 years, who resigned this year; Leroy Mackert and George Pollock, to fall back on.

Duke's team averages 22½ years in age. Five regulars are seniors, five are juniors and the other a sophomore. Decidedly in contrast is Maryland's age average of 19½ years. Nine members of the starting line-up are sophomores, which is something of a record. The other two are juniors. Topping it all off is a slight advantage in weight for the Tobacco Planters.

Ennis, Buscher at Ends.

Maryland's starting line-up tomorrow will be Ennis and Bernie Buscher, ends; Minion and Callahan, tackles; Bradley and Garrott, guards; Cretz, center; Nelson, quarter back; Yaeger and Widmyer, half backs; Sachs, full back.

Al Houghton Shoots 67 to Top Golfers Practicing for National Capital Open

Event Starts Tomorrow; 154 Enter

$2,000 in Cash Prizes Lures Most of U. S. Links Champions.

Guldahl Added to List; 212 to 214 Believed Likely to Win.

A FIELD of 154 golfers, considered by many to be as outstanding as any National Open field, will battle for $2,000 in cash prizes in the National Capital Open championship tomorrow and Sunday over the 54-hole route at the Kenwood course.

With virtually all of the big guns of golfdom on the scene yesterday, the Kenwood layout hummed with activity all morning and afternoon, as champions from at least 32 States in the Union and several former National Open rulers tried out their shots.

Only two golfers in the pack, however, were able to break par. They were Al Houghton, the host pro, who scored a spectacular 67, 3 below par, and Cyril Walker, the 1924 National Open champion, who blasted out a 69. Houghton really showed the boys how to play the course, as he hammered out a 32 on the first nine, with an eagle on No. 5. Three putts on the eighteenth cost him a 66. Walker had 35—34.

Al Espinosa Gets a 70.

Al Espinosa, the Akron pro, equaled par with his 70, while Archie Hambrick, West Virginia pro, and Leo Walper, of Washington, scored 71's. Tommy Armour, Jimmy Hines and Wild Bill Melhorn were content with 72's. Craig Wood, Deal, N. J., star and chief money winner of last year, went around in 73 on his first trip, and Denny Shute, British Open champion, took a 74, the same reported by Billy Burke, 1931 National Open king. Ronald Mackenzie had 75.

When the battle begins tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock only three national stars will be missing. They are Gene Sarazen, Leo Diegel and Olin Dutra.

Late last night Ralph Guldahl, the St. Louis pro, whose muffed 4-foot putt on the seventy-second green cost him a tie with Johnny Goodman for the national open this year, turned up at the club, and filed his entry. He will try out the course today. Horton Smith, Joplin Ghost, defending champion, will arrive this morning, as will Willie MacFarlane, 1932 National Capital open titleholder, and former national open king.

212-214 Felt Sufficient.

With the course in beautiful shape, close observers believe between 212 and 214 will win the championship. A total of 216 won in 1931 and 214 won last year. In the two years of the competition par has not been broken for the 54 holes.

Tommy Armour holds the official course record with his 68, made in 1931.

Navy Bolsters Air Play for Columbia

Gridmen Taper Off Today and Then Leave for New York City.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 9 (Spl.).—Navy gridders today virtually completed preparations for their game against Columbia to be played on Baker Field, New York, Saturday, for tomorrow afternoon they will leave for Gotham, and only a brief signal and formation is scheduled as the final tapering off before departing.

Although the players have been put through some stiff paces during the last few days as a special prep for the Lions, Head Coach Rip Miller and his assistants have been equally as much concerned over guarding against any relaxation as an aftermath of the great triumph over Notre Dame last Saturday. Miller regards Columbia as an alert and dangerous contender and has kept before his charges all the while that there must be no let down either mentally or otherwise.

Squad Peppy in Drills.

Gauged by the peppery workouts, his injunctions apparently have had the desired effect. For one thing the Middies came out of the Rambler argument in fine shape physically, so that the entire squad has engaged in the Columbia drive.

Aside from the customary preliminaries, a lively scrimmage session against the forces of squad B featured today's practice, the underlying idea of which was to further stress defensive working against Columbia passes. The mentors feel that the greatest danger from Columbia will come through the air, with such an expert passer as Cliff Montgomery, and that the defense of the Middies, in other respects having stood the test against Notre Dame, is fit to cope with anything the Lions will have to offer in running attack.

Coach Miller plans to use the same line-up which started against the Ramblers and to make frequent substitutions consistent with the progress of the game, in order to save the regulars as much as possible, with Princeton and Army to be met on the next two successive Saturdays. The squad of 40-odd players will entrain for New York at 4:45 tomorrow afternoon.

Teams Evenly Weighted.

For the first time this season the Tars will face an enemy, on practically even terms as to weight. The Middies, if anything, will have a slight edge in the line, but this will be overcome by the Lions' heavier back field combination. Previous opponents have held a weight advantage of from 5 to 16 pounds per man, the higher figure being that of the Notre Dame stalwarts.

The grid series with Columbia is one of the shortest in Navy history. The teams have clashed only three times, and Columbia has won all. They first met in 1900 and Columbia won, 11 to 0. In 1901 the score was 6 to 5, and last year, 7 to 6.

Howard Booters Play.

Hampton's soccer team will meet the Howard University Bisons to open the soccer season this afternoon. The Howard team was undefeated last year and is expected to top the Seasiders in this encounter.

Dusty Cooke Under Knife.

Durham, N. C., Nov. 9 (AP).—Dusty Cooke, Boston Red Sox outfielder, underwent a minor operation on his right elbow at Duke Hospital this morning. His surgeon announced tonight that the operation was a success.

Indians to Put Wes Ferrell On Block

Former Star, Arm Sore, Would Be Gamble if Taken as Hurler.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 9 (Spl.).—Wesley Ferrell, temperamental Cleveland pitcher who finished last season trying to win a berth in the outfield, will not be with the Indians next spring.

Officials of the Cleveland Baseball Club have admitted that the erstwhile star hurler will be put on the trading block when the major league magnates gather for their annual meeting next month.

The big catch in the proposed trade or sale is that Ferrell has complained of arm trouble for several seasons and last summer asked Manager Walter Johnson of the Indians to give him a trial in the outfield.

Would be Gamble.

If a club takes Ferrell as a pitcher, it will be a big gamble on the part of that club. And the possibility of trading him as an outfielder is very remote. Ferrell has proved that he can hit the ball hard, but has yet to convince American League club owners that he can hold down an outfield job and hit the ball hard enough to win a regular place in the lineup.

Ferrell, who has won an unenviable reputation for speaking out of turn, stated in a recent broadcast from his home in North Carolina that he intends to pitch next year and that his arm is in good shape. Although it was he who asked for an outfield trial, he now says the Cleveland Club ordered him to try his hand at fly chasing.

Hopes to Be Traded.

The big pitcher also says he hopes to be traded. It seems that his preference is the Boston Red Sox, but he would not exactly spurn a berth with Washington, Philadelphia or New York. Chicago and St. Louis are out, however, as far he is concerned.

Ferrell received $12,000 last season and won only eleven games. The contract that will be offered him by the Indians for next season, if he is not sold or traded, will be far below that amount and it is doubtful if he would sign.

Cleveland owners have already given up the Municipal Stadium and will return to old League Park as an economy measure and salaries of all the Indians will be drastically reduced.

Landon to Battle Boys' Latin Team

Friends Faces St. Alban's This Afternoon.

While the McKinley Tech-Eastern football encounter at Central Stadium is holding the spotlight in scholastic circles this afternoon, two other schoolboy battles are listed on Capital gridirons today. They are Landon vs. Boys Latin, of Baltimore, on the Tidal Basin field, and Friends vs. St. Alban's, at the Cathedral grounds. The Landon fracas is listed for 3:15; St. Alban's for 2:45.

Woodward Prep travels to Baltimore, where it is scheduled to meet Franklin School. Alexandria and Washington-Lee, of Ballston, meet on Baggett's Field, Alexandria, at 3:15.

Joe Gardner, Georgetown Prep coach, announced yesterday that the game between the Garret Parkers and St. John's, originally slated for Friday, November 17, has been moved up to Monday. The game will be played at Garret Park.

Drill for Centennials.

Shake-Up Seen In Michigan Back Field

Cold Drives All Indoors Except Punters; Linemen Back at Purdue.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 9 (AP).—Only the Wolverine kickers braved the icy winds that swept Ferry Field today, and other squad members went through their drill in preparation for Iowa in the shelter of Yost Field House.

Outside, Johnny Regeczi, Herm Everhardus and Russ Oliver went through their paces, punting into the wind. Their form showed improvement over the early week performances, Regeczi getting off the best boots he has produced since September. Coach Kipke remained noncommital, but made no secret of an impending shake-up in the back field unless the varsity backs show considerable improvement.

Game in Snow Likely.

East Lansing, Mich., Nov. 9 (AP).—A heavy snowfall here today made it virtually certain that Michigan State College and Carnegie Tech will meet on a wet, heavy gridiron Saturday. More snow was predicted tomorrow.

The Spartans rounded out their week's preparation for Tech with an indoor session today, in which Coach Charley Bachman restored Capt. Bernard McNutt to his half back position after threatening to bench him because of a poor performance against the Kansas Aggies. McNutt's work the past two days has made him a sure starter against the Easterners.

Purdue Linemen Return.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 9 (AP).—Condition of Duane Purvis, Purdue half back, who underwent a minor operation yesterday, was reported as satisfactory today, and he is expected to make the trip with the Boilermakers who engage Notre Dame Saturday.

Returns to action of Fritz Febel, guard, and Ed Ungers, tackle, provided a cheering note in the Purdue practice today.

Scrimmage at Minnesota.

Minnesota, Nov. 9 (AP).—Coach Bernie Bierman violated one of his football training dogmas today by scrimmaging the Minnesota Gopher regulars, first such practice since early in the season. The regulars scrimmaged in the fieldhouse against a reserve team which used Michigan offensive and defensive styles. Glenn Seidel went back to first-string quarter back, while Phil Bengston replaced Dick Smith at regular tackle.

Iowans Michigan-Bound.

Iowa City, Iowa, Nov. 9 (AP).—Thirty University of Iowa football players entrained tonight for Ann Arbor and their important Big Ten game with Michigan Saturday.

With freezing temperatures prevalent, Coach Ossie Solem canceled plans for a dummy scrimmage in favor of a short signal drill.

Bud Schammel, first team guard who has been receiving treatments for a leg infection, was in uniform for the first time this week.

Central and Tech To Battle Today

shem, stellar back and guard, laid low by injuries received in the Central game a month ago, back in its line-up.

But the watchword of the Tech crew, "Stop Keegin and beat Eastern," has been thoroughly imbedded in the sytsem of each Tech gridder. Jimmy Keegin, quarter back, half back or full back—wherever he is needed—is the individual star on the field today. He's fast, tricky and a heady field general and is expected to cause the outfit from out McKinley way plenty of trouble before the final whistle has tooted.

For Tech, Holmes, Heatwole and Hess are expected to go to town. Heatwole, in particular, is a classy performer and showed up great against Central last week. Vito Pisani, Tech quarter back, with his deadly lightning aerial heaves to his ends and back field mates, will be anything but a cinch for the Eastern eleven to stop.

In fact, the game may be strictly an overhead battle, with the winner decided by a toss of the leather. Both teams compare evenly along the line. Tech has the ends and Eastern a shade in the back field talent. Both teams have been coached fundamentally sound, with blocking and tackling the outstanding feature of both elevens.

Injuries Cause Shifts On Howard U. Eleven

Vacancies in the Bison line-up caused by injuries received in the recent Morgan clash yesterday constituted the principal problem of Tom Verdell, Howard varsity coach, in preparation for the Hampton game tomorrow.

Tom Walker, center, will be out of the line-up two weeks with an injured shoulder, and Dan Skelton will be out for a similar period with a neck injury requiring a cast. "Showboat" Ware, despite head injuries, is expected to be in the line-up against Hampton, and Barry Williams, who was removed from the field Friday night, completely out, also will be back.

Hitting the Headpin . . .

JAMES I. STROBEL, rolling with the Tobacco Scraps, broke all existing records in the Miscellaneous Tax Unit League on the Lucky Strike alleys, scattering the maples to the tune of a mighty 185 count, and tieing the District's high game of the season, rolled by Smith, of Smythers' Pharmacy, at the Recreation Alleys, on October 25. Strangely enough, Strobel is carrying an average of only 103. His other games were 116 and 104, for a 405 set, breaking the previous league record. The Tobacco Scraps team, aided by this superior bowling, smashed the existing team game and set mark, rolling 595 and 1,585, respectively, and took the odd game from the Eagle Eyes. Krazy Katz maintained its one-game advantage at the top of the league by winning two from the Pin Hawks. In the other matches, the Outlaws took two from Come Backs; Capitalites won the odd one from Sand Blowers; Alley Cats, with Glenn Wolstenhome marking out in the last three frames for a 142 game, took two from Swiss Navy, and the Pin Busters won two from Sharp Shooters.

Northeast Temple skidded into first place in the District League last night by virtue of its total-pin margin over King Pin and its whitewash of the Hyattsville Team, while Convention Hall was taking Occidental, former leaders, for two games. Occidental is now tied with Beacon Sign Co. for third place, the Neon Co. taking the odd game from Lucky Strike. Georgetown Recreation took the percentage game from Columbia.

Individual features for the night were Earl McPhilomy's (Occidental) 422 set, Ray Von Dreel's (Lucky Strike) 421 and Ed Blakeney's (also Lucky Strike) 404 set. Ollie Webb (Georgetown Recreation) captured high individual game with 156, Reds Megaw (Beacon) and Whip Litchfield (Convention Hall) tying for second honors, each with a 151 game.

Doris Goodall (Agriculture Juniors), rolling a 337 set, and Maxine Fleming (Veterans Administration), with a 130 game, annexed the individual honors in the Ladies Federal League at Arcadia. Treasury's 512 game and Agriculture Juniors' 1,513 set, carried away team honors.

Southern Railway, Fritz Billiards and Takoma Tailors went into a triple tie for the leadership of the Takoma-Silver Spring League at Takoma. The Railway men, who were in third place, won two from Montgomery Club, while Fritz Billiards dropped the odd game to Lohr Real Estate, and Takoma Tailors lost two to Kimbel Lacey. Frank Hollis (Montgomery Club) scored a 154 game, and Miller (Southern Railway) had a 392 set, both high for the night.

Construction took the Engineers, leaders of the War Department League, down a notch at Arcadia, winning two games. Strant (Fort Humphreys) was the individual star, spilling the maples for a 161 game, and Ames (Adjutants) with a 367 took individual set honors. High team scores went to Adjutants who had a 606 game and Barbettes 1,655 team set.

Charlie Bell expects a good turnout this afternoon at Convention Hall, where he is holding a sweepstakes for an entry in the Dixie sweepstakes. The entries are scheduled to leave the post at 2:30 p. m.

Records are still falling in the Daylight League at Convention Hall. Skinny Morris, Washington Herald star, put two in discard with a 156 game and 375 set, helping his team take set honors with 1,661. City Post Office took team game laurels, spilling 564 pins.

Italic Olive Oil shared team honors in the Nation-Wide Grocers League at Convention Hall, with Doggie Dinner team with scores of 514 and 1,454, respectively. Wilson George (Auths) carried away individual game with 127 and Frank Riley (Doggie Dinner) rolled a 349 set.

Frank's Place annexed two records in the Independent League at Lucky Strike, when Henry May toppled the maples for a 152 game and Ben Hare crashed a 410 set. Judd & Detweiler's team game of 636 and Frank's Place team set of 1,718 were unsurpassed.

Tucker (Lansburgh's) led the list of individual feats in the Department Store League on the Lucky Strike drives, rolling a 147 game and a 365 set. S. Kann's Sons carried away team honors, rolling a 567 game for a 1,631 set.

L. C. Steuart annexed all the honors in the Automotive League, aided by Nelson's 144 game and 362 set, and a team game and set of 594 and 1,552, respectively.

Williams' 111 game and Crain's 293 set were the best individual efforts in the Inter-Sorority League at Columbia last night. Delta Alpha annexed team honors with a 445 game and 1,281 set.

Y. M. C. A. Announces Open House Tonight

The Y. M. C. A. Swimming Club will hold open house swim night tomorrow at 8 o'clock in the men's pool. The object of the plan is to stimulate interest in swimming among Washington youths. Exhibitions in swimming, diving and life-saving will be given by well-known local swimmers.

The program is as follows: Swimming demonstration—breast stroke; Knox Moncure and Paul Wilson (Y. M. C. A.); Helen Richardson (Ambassador). Back stroke—Bill Marmion and Jim Orme (Y. M. C. A.); Lois Bates (Shoreham); Free style—Ernie Boggs and John Mullady (Y. M. C. A.); Rita Augusterfer, Annabelle Whaler, Caroline Cos and Betty O'Toole (Shoreham); Jack Rait, Bob Rawls, and Ed La Salle (Unattached). Low board fancy diving—Knox Moncure (Y. M. C. A.); Norman Smith (Ambassador); Bob Knight (Shoreham); life-saving demonstration by the Y. M. C. A. Swimming team; water polo match—Washington Canoe Club vs. Fort Myer.

Yale Practices For Georgia Air Game

Aims to Tighten Defense; Dartmouth Works Out in Snow.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 9.—Yale put in a long afternoon improving its defense against Georgia passes, remembering that this weakness was the principal cause of the defeat by Army. The first back field lined up with Tommy Curtin at quarter, Bob Lassiter and Bill Keesling at halves and Earl Nikkel at full. Kim Whitehead, sophomore star, is definitely out of the Georgia game.

Big Green in Signal Drill.

Hanover, N. H.—Dartmouth went through a long signal drill and dummy scrimmage in a snowstorm. Most of the session was devoted to a defensive drill against Princeton formations put on by a freshman team. Coach Jackson Cannell said the same team that faced Yale probably will start against the Tigers.

Syracuse Backs Uncertain.

Syracuse.—The Syracuse starting back field still was undecided when the squad of 26 left for Providence and the annual clash with Brown after today's brisk workout. Charlie Sudnick is expected to replace the injured Nevins at full back but Coach Vic Hanson said he had not made a definite decision.

Light Work at Harvard.

Cambridge, Mass.—The task of keying up his Harvard players for Saturday's Army game simplified by last year's thrashing, Coach Eddie Casey nursed their edge by working them lightly. The Crimson went through its usual fundamental and passing drills before studying the Army plays demonstrated by the scrubs in a dummy scrimmage.

Columbia Tapers Off.

Army Gridders Hike.

Long Drill for Princeton.

Princeton, N. J.—The Princeton varsity had a long but not especially hard workout to wind up preparations for the Dartmouth game. The first two teams spent most of the time polishing up their offense; the Tigers also had their third defensive workout of the week. The entire team, except John Weller, first-string guard; Jack Bales, half back and Dan Hinman, whose foot is not strong enough to risk in a game, will be available Saturday.

Rose Bowl Heads Look Over Teams

league, but lacks the manpower to cope with the brawn and brains of the Far Western teams.

It would come as a tremendous surprise if Princeton, offered a bid, accepted. Coach Fritz Crisler never has said so, but one hazards the guess that he knows from his Big Ten experience that his Tigers, while ferocious to a fault in this neighborhood, would have their tails clipped, teeth pulled and ears pinned back by half a dozen schools you can name. Crisler summed up Princeton's attitude toward the Rose Bowl assignment a few days back when someone asked him if he and his team were thinking of the Bowl:

"Yes, we're thinking of the bowl—the Yale bowl."

Strange as it seems, the Tigers would rather kick an already twice-kicked Yale than handle U. S. C. as the rose petals showered about them.

Georgia Is Considered.

Georgia's bid would seem to depend on its performance against U. S. C. on the coast December 20. If the Bulldogs get past that game undefeated, their chances of being asked to hang around for a few weeks longer would be elegant.

Duke, coached by Wallace Wade, wouldn't be a bad choice. Duke isn't very well known out there, but Wade is, having taken three Alabama teams to the place and returned with two victories and one tie.

Heaven help Pittsburgh if it should go. The Panthers have made three trips and the scores have been U. S. C., 35; Pitt, 0; U. S. C., 47; Pitt, 0, and Stanford, 7; Pitt, 6. Still, there's the law of averages.

This Morning . . .

Stanford, Yale, Holy Cross, Harvard and Dartmouth, there is no great protest; that is not until they discover that Emory-Henry is ranked thirty-fourth, one notch above G. W.

Catholic University Mr. Williamson ranks No. 80 in the list, behind Howard University in seventy-fourth place. But there is balm for C. U. in the fact that the Cardinals are ranked 24 places above Notre Dame. Lo, the poor Irish.

Annapolis, Favorite, Is Handy Winner of Master of Foxhounds Steeplechase

Place Award Landed by Drapeau

Pimlico Stewards Ban Riders Doonis, Tipton for Rough Tactics.

Magi, Paying $51, Wins Second; First of Trio for Jockey Kacala.

By a Staff Correspondent.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 9.—Annapolis the husky son of Man o'War, for which Mrs. T. H. Somerville paid $10,000 a few years ago, jumped and ran his way to victory in the Master of Hounds Steeplechase—the hedge-fence Preakness. Alvin Untermeyer's Drapeau was second and Mrs. W. Plunkett Stewart's Argonaut was third in the field of eight that bounced to the starting point for the most gruelling of Maryland races.

With gentleman riders in all saddles, the field trudged the 3-mile course and hurtled the 19 jumps with only two mishaps. Pontoon, owned and operated by James Park, fell and gave C. R. White, the rider, a slide on the grass, while Point Breeze, J. W. Y. Martin's gelding and winner of the event last year, became lame in the running but finished the course a staggering last.

C. K. Bassett, capable steeplechase pilot from Virginia, rode a confident race on Annapolis and the horse justified his judgment of the pace. Bassett made no attempt to hustle his charge for three trips past the grandstand but on the final turn moved up, took the lead just before the last jump, and drew out to win by a length margin.

Philistion Sets Pace.

Philistion, from the John Bosley, jr. barn, gave his backers five minutes of thrills as he cut out a fast pace. Although an uncertain jumper, Philistion, guided by G. A. Sapportas, jr., made up for that deficiency with much speed on the flat. At the fourteenth jump, the horse landed badly and wobbled for several yards, but recovered to cling to the lead. Philistion fought it out gamely, but was shunted back to fourth money in the dash for the wire on level ground.

Annapolis' victory was popular in the clubhouse and among the chilled 5,000 or so regulars in the grand stand. He was backed into favoritism and paid a $3.80 mutuel. The time was 6:08 1-5.

Mrs. Somerville, prominent Delaware and Virginia sports enthusiast, and Mr. Bassett were presented with silver plate after the race. Annapolis was sent to the post in excellent condition by Preston Burch, Washington trainer.

Two Riders Banned.

Two apprentice jockeys were suspended for the remainder of the meeting, J. Doonis for rough riding in the first race astride Mathias and a Tipton for the same cause while riding Flaming Mamie in the sixth.

Five of the races today were accounted for by two riders. Johnny Kacala scored on three winners, including Magi, at $51 to $2, in the second, while Lee Humphries was credited with a double. He rode Guiding Light in the first and Aborigine in the fifth. Kacala's other winners were Wedding Ring in the fourth and Playfole in the finale.

Guiding Light showed the way home in the opener and gave the favorite players a flying start. Foxie Sis was second and Mathias, 126-1 shot, was third. Errant Lady had a fling at the pace-setting, but folded at the first turn. Smoke, the property of W. I. Newmarch, was cut down at the far turn and had to be destroyed. Guiding Light rewarded with a $7.40 pay-off.

Second to 24-1 Shot.

Magi, at a $51 mutuel, won the second race, a mile and a sixteenth test which drew an ordinary field of platers. Kacala, who had the mount on the winner, followed the speedy Sunny Susan until the latter faded and then went on to withstand a challenge of Ukraine in the stretch. Lei was a tiring third.

Wedding Ring missed being the favorite in the fourth race by 70 cents on the dollar, but did a million dollars' worth of running to reach the wire in front of Vacillate and Fancy Flight, the last-named the public choice. Kacala made it two winners in a row by putting up a splendid performance. He held Wedding Ring just off the pace set by Fancy Flight and Hastipast, moved up on the swing for the stretch and despite being forced wide, found speed enough in his horse to take the purse by a length and a half. Wedding Ring paid $7.80.

Max Hirsch's Aborigine was rushed to the front by Jockey Lou Humphries and hot-footed it to the finish line ahead of the competition in the Ratcliffe, a 6-furlong dash. Closest at pay-off time was Be Shy, the Bradleyite. Third was Pompestian. The heavily played Black Queen was nowhere in particular.

Yale-Harvard Regatta.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

Although the ukulele is, in the popular mind, the national musical instrument of Hawaii, it was not designed by a Hawaiian, nor is it based on any Hawaiian instrument. It was, in fact, designed by a white man whose modifications of the Portuguese "taro-patch fiddle" resulted in its invention. The ukulele was, however, introduced into America by Hawaiian singers.

The ukulele has a strictly Hawiian name, nevertheless—it comes from their word meaning "flea" or "jumping insect."

The monitor lizards of the Indo-Malay species are the largest tree-climbing lizards in the world. They attain a length of eight feet. Even this giant of today is a tiny animal when compared with the prehistoric ancestor. The ancient lizard grew to be 40 to 50 feet long, and besides them our largest crocodiles would seem to be pigmies.

Despite its awful appearance the giant lizard is relatively harmless. It feeds largely on eggs, snakes and small animals.

Beginning her swimming career when most children are learning to walk, little Marjorie Best, of Hollywood, set one childhood record after another. Before she was 2 she swam half way across a 25-foot pool 9 feet deep, and at 25 months she swam all the way across. At 26 months she swam 65 feet and at 30 months she swam 225 feet. Her father, who is an athletic trainer, is her own private coach.

Burl-Milling Victor to Get Paul Bout

Both Fought Draws With Sarron; Knowles Will Meet Genaro.

EDDIE BURL and Varius Milling will be fighting for more than 20 per cent of the gate receipts when they square off at Portner's Arena next Tuesday night. Matchmaker Frankie Mann yesterday announced that the winner will be matched with Tommy Paul, former N. B. A. featherweight champion, early next month.

Both Burl and Milling, who hail from the Pacific Coast, are anxious to get a crack at Paul, who fought two sizzling draws with Petey Sarron before capacity audiences at Alexandria. Negotiations already are underway to bring Paul here and Mann does not anticipate any difficulty in agreeing on the terms.

Will Be Rematched.

Milling and Burl are club fighters. Both have an innate desire to throw leather from bell to bell, with little regard for the good Marquis of Queensbury's regulations. Burl is anxious to reestablish himself as the leading feather in this vicinity after losing to Sarron recently. The two will be rematched later in the season.

Milling, a veritable dynamo in the ring, holds a prized decision over Baby Irish Aricandi, and a knock-out over Earl Meastro. A win over Burl, either by the decision or K. O. route, wouldn't hurt his record any.

Chief Perry Knowles gets the opportunity to prove himself in an 8-round windup with Mickey Genaro, whose ability to take it is eclipsed only by his ability to give it. Three 4-round bouts will round out the supporting card.

At the Post . . .

Dear Baron: Pimlico Race Track, Md., Nov. 9.

What will become of Winooka is a question among horsemen here. Some say that the Australian horse will not race here again, and that he will be sent to a Virginia farm for the winter. Others say that Winooka will race here Saturday and that he will compete at Bowie. To date the winter tracks have not shown much interest in the Anzac champion. If Jockey Edgar Britt is consulted on the subject, he will let the world know that he wants to go home. It's springtime in Australia now and Britt is mighty homesick. Jack Lowry, who has been winning regularly hereabouts, was taken sick this morning and was forced to cancel his mounts. BILL.

First race—Accent made a game attempt to graduate here the other day. Meets about the same brand here and should get home in front. Steelhead has worked well and may be second. Park has had many chances and has failed.

Second race—Pretentious drops down a peg in this field. Will have the hustling Meade in the saddle, and appears to have the edge over Easiest Way. The latter gets in light. Dead Reckoning has a money chance.

Third race—I'm still sticking to Dock Light. Was primed for a win last out, but made a bad landing that erased his chances. Will improve over a dry course. Speckled Beauty II to take the place from Hamptonian.

Fourth race—Fort Dearborn appears to be the solid horse in this field. If we can get a good ride, I see no reason for not cashing a bet. Mainsheet was a tip last out and may show to better advantage here. Politen for the rest.

Fifth race—Captain Argo is a youngster with much promise. The clockers like him and that last effort was an easy victory. Pharatime is consistent. High Torque won handily here.

Seventh race—Commuter gets the Bennings call here. Gloritone figures, but that last was too disappointing. I wonder what the excuse will be if Gloritone wins. Aegis for the show.

Eighth race—Little Stokes to upset the dope in this. Wishing Star and Stone Martin for the other awards.

GUIDING LIGHT, rushed into forward position, gained command when leaving the back stretch and held sway thereafter. FOXIE SIS, prominent from the beginning, weakened after a determined effort midway of the final turn. MATHIAS improved his position slowly and outstayed BIG SHOW. The latter, shuffled back entering the back stretch, closed gamely when clear. STURDY ARK had a rough trip. PORTFOLIO raced very rank in the early stages. JUSTA PLAY was used up racing with ERRANT LADY. HUPPY swerved to the inside and interfered with CONFLAGRATION. STURDY ARK and PORTFOLIO, and they had no chance. SMOKE broke down badly at the first turn.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming; for 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 1:55. Off at 1:59½. MAGI, in closest attendance of the early pacemaker, took command with a rush at the final turn, withstood a long drive willingly and just lasted to stall off UKRAINE. The latter improved his position gradually on the outside and was wearing the winner down steadily. LEI, forwardly placed, weakened after a tenacious effort at the stretch turn. ROD RACK came again after falling back at the final elbow. CROSS ROAD lacked speed and passed tiring horses in the late stages. JUSTA PEAK tired. SUNNY SUSAN stopped to a walk after leading for 6 furlongs.

THIRD RACE—Three miles. Purse, $1,000. The Masters of Foxhounds Steeplechase. For hunters. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:26. Winner, Mrs. T. H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ANNAPOLIS, 3.80, $3.60, $3.60; DRAPEAU, $5.20, $4.00; ARGONAUT, $7.40.

ANNAPOLIS, restrained off the pace for the first 2 miles, fenced stoutly when moving to the leaders and wore DRAPEAU down on the flat after taking the final fence. DRAPEAU, saved for the first 2 miles, swung to the outside when challenging the leaders, assumed a brief lead at the final fence, but could not resist the winner. ARGONAUT, a factor from the beginning, weakened after several tenacious efforts. PHILLISTION, restrained in front, recovered nicely after bobbling at the fourteenth fence, but was unable to stay in the final half mile.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WEDDING RING $7.80, $4.40, $3.20; VACILLATE, $10.40, $6.40; FANCY FLIGHT, $4.20.

WEDDING RING, rated close to the leaders, was forced wide into the home stretch, but came stoutly and drew clear approaching the finish. VACILLATE, kept under strong urging from the start, came through on the inside during the stretch drive and closed willingly. FANCY FLIGHT raced HASTIPAST into defeat, came wide into the home stretch and weakened in the closing furlong. VOLETTA, slow to settle in her stride, finished fast in the final drive.

New Tax Staff To Speed Cases Out of Court

Replaces Internal Revenue Advisory Group; Quick Settlements Sought.

Creation of a "technical staff" to settle tax disputes without formal litigation was announced yesterday by Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, as a step toward expediting the difficulties.

The technical staff will replace the special advisory committee, principal settlement agency of the Revenue Bureau, which was ordered abolished. The committee had acted in an advisory capacity to the commissioner since 1927.

Cases of disputed income, profits, estate and gift taxes pending before the Board of Tax Appeals, which could be settled without litigation, will be turned over to the new technical staff. Fourteen officers of the Internal Revenue Bureau were placed on the staff.

Swift Settlements Sought.

"The object of the reorganization is to afford the public a more direct procedure for settlement of certain tax disputes," Commissioner Helvering announced. "This is another step in the Administration's program for curing defects in procedure for collecting back taxes.

"At present, the object is swift settlement, necessarily with the taxpayers' cooperation, of all tax disputes without recourse to litigation except in fundamentals and far-reaching cases."

Senior Advisers Named.

Senior technical advisers of the staff named by Helvering are Paul F. Cain, Milton E. Carter, Frank T. Eddingfield, Leslie Gillis, Grover C. Hammond, Aubrey R. Marrs, chairman; Leonard C. Mitchell, Joseph K. Moyer, Arthur H. Murray, Craig L. Reddish, F. O. Replogle, Perley J. Rose, William J. Steiner and Henry L. Young.

Technical advisers will conduct direct negotiations with taxpayers, but their findings will be passed upon by a senior technical adviser before going to the commissioner of internal revenue for acceptance or rejection.

Witness Stirs Ire of Bulgar

Defendant in Germany's Firebug Trial Dislikes Don Juan Role.

Berlin, Nov. 9 (AP).—The irrepressible Bulgarian, Georgi Dimitroff, who listened philosophically as Minister of Propaganda Paul Josep Goebbels called him a little political agitator, bristled with anger today when a servant woman pictured him as a passionate Don Juan.

Dimitroff was the central figure in the testimony of three women before the German court trying five defendants charged with setting fire to the Reichstag.

The servant told the court she left the employ of the Bulgarian's former landlady because Dimitroff had made unwelcome advances. After listening quietly at first, Dimitroff said "that's something quite new to me."

When she described an alleged attempted attack, which she said she successfully repulsed, he lost his temper.

"I'm astonished at this impertinence," he said.

"It is beneath my dignity to ask this woman anything," said Dimitroff, when the court asked if he desired to question her.

James Roosevelt And Wife Return

"Things Better in Europe," Says President's Son.

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—James Roosevelt, returning with his wife today from a vacation in Europe, said that conditions in the countries he visited appeared improved.

"England is cheerful and things are distinctly on the up grade," said the President's son. "In Italy, where Fascism has been working out its program for 11 years, things are distinctly improving."

Of Mussolini, he said: "He demonstrated great interest in America and great friendliness for America."

While in Paris the Roosevelts were received by President Le Brun and in London they were guests at a luncheon given by Premier Ramsay MacDonald.

Court Upholds Ban Against Campbell

Virginian Loses Fight for Real Estate License.

Judge Walter T. McCarthy, in Arlington County Circuit Court, yesterday sustained the Virginia Real Estate Commission in refusing Herbert M. Campbell his 1933 license to operate as a real estate broker in the county.

Campbell, whose license was revoked, applied for a 1933 permit and it was refused after a public hearing by the commission.

The former real estate broker was represented by Attorney Charles Henry Smith, of Alexandria, and Claude O. Thomas, of Arlington County. Charles Pickett, of Fairfax County, and Amos C. Crounse, of Arlington County, appeared for the commission

Speakers Laud Red Cross Aid As Drive Nears

John Barton Payne Among Many Urging Funds in Radio Program.

The Red Cross gave flour and clothing to more than 25,000,000 needy persons in the last 12 months, John Barton Payne, National chairman, declared last night in appealing for greater membership in the roll call from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving.

Judge Payne was one of several speakers whose addresses were carried over the Nation from Washington and New York by the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The Red Cross distributed products from Government wheat and cotton in every State and practically every town and county, Payne said, adding:

"The Red Cross helped the unemployed and it gave aid in 117 disasters. It represented the disabled former service men in aid to his family and in his claims and appeals. Wherever there was human distress, there was the Red Cross."

Praise of the hundreds of thousands of women volunteers who made 7,500,000 garments and 3,000,000 surgical dressings during the last year was voiced by Miss Mabel T. Boardman, National secretary of the Red Cross.

Grandson of Kaiser Says Germany Is Safe

Walt Mason, Himself

The Fourth Year.

The great depression now has lasted through four long years, and still endures; we've had our hopes and they were blasted, we lost all faith in balms and cures. When it was young we kept on saying, "We'll soon be bringing in the sheaves; prosperity is just delaying until we have rolled up our sleeves. When once our well-known loins are girded, we'll soon fix up whatever's wrong, and all the bogies will be herded down to the dump, where they belong. Today is sway-backed with its sorrow, and all the hours are clogged with woe; but, jings, the sun will shine tomorrow, and all our griefs will have to go." The weeks rolled on and things grew darker, our hopes gave way to gloom and dread; the present week was not a marker to what was lying just ahead. The months rolled on and fresh disasters came up and would not pull their freight, and troubles stuck like porous plasters to every careworn delegate. The years rolled on and hearts were broken, and empty grew the once filled purse, and every rumor seemed a token that we were in for something worse. And as at first we're still believing prosperity is at the door; tomorrow we shall all cease grieving, the wolves will go, to come no more.

Price Increase Causes Spurt In Gold Mining

Jobs and Prospecting Up With Mint Delivery in California.

San Francisco, Nov. 9 (AP).—The stimulating effects of current high prices for gold on prospecting and mining activities in California has been marked by greater numbers of men doing such work and by heavier deliveries of gold at the mint.

Walter W. Bradley, State mineralogist, estimated today the number of men occupied either "on their own" or on pay rolls of the State's gold-producing companies is currently above 23,000. There are "probably 15,000 or more prospecting and panning," he said, with "at least 8,000 more working for wages, the number increasing from week to week."

Deliveries of gold at the United States mint here increased to 189,648 ounces in October—the highest monthly figure for years. It compared with 106,511 ounces in September and 54,464 in August. It was also well above the October, 1932, receipts of 119,361 ounces.

The value of the October receipts, with gold ranging from $29 to more than $31 an ounce during the month, was around $5,800,000.

Untermyer Short $1,024 in 1929 Tax

Samuel Untermyer, noted New York attorney, yesterday was ruled deficient by $1,024 in his 1929 income taxes in a stipulated decision of the United States Board of Tax Appeals, to which Untermyer assented.

The attorney first was notified in 1932 that recomputation of his 1929 taxes showed him short $1,542 in his income tax return. He appealed the case.

The internal revenue division based its contention on Untermyer's showing dividends amounting to $7,711 as being paid him by three concerns as distribution of capital not subject to tax. The bureau held the payments to be ordinary taxable dividends.

Pastor Describes Luther 'New Deal'

Frederick, Md., Nov. 9 (Spl.). The Rev. Dr. Abdel Ross Wentz, head of the department of church history, Gettysburg Theological Seminary, Gettysburg, Pa., spoke at a service in the Lutheran Church last night commemorating the 450th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther.

Dr. Wentz, an authority on Lutheran Church history in America, said Luther taught "new deals," not unlike those which the Federal Government of today is proposing. "He set a halo about the work of the honest toiler," Dr. Wentz said, "just as the Government is setting policies to restore in full measure work to the laborer."

Luther was not the ideal of a business man as he was not concerned about his income which was never higher than $150 per year, Dr. Wentz said. About 700 Lutherans from congregations all over the county attended.

Immediately the governor expanded his State relief committee from three to nine members.

Outlaw Union Asked to Let 25,000 Work

Wagner Promises Soft Coal Inquiry If Diggers Return to Pits.

Chairman Robert F. Wagner, of the National Labor Board, last night promised an investigation of conditions in the anthracite fields of Pennsylvania if militant strikers, belonging to an outlaw union, permit 25,000 United Mine Workers' members to return to the diggings.

The 25,000 want to return to work, he said, but are being prohibited from doing so by pickets demanding recognition of their outlaw organization. In promising an investigation, Wagner is acceeding to a request of the strikers.

He sent the following telegram to union officials at Wilkes-Barre, Scranton and Hazelton:

"The National Labor Board after consideration of its representative's preliminary report in regard to district No. 1 has decided to establish a fact-finding committee to make the fullest investigation of all complaints and practices therein.

"The committee will enter upon its duties as soon as picketing is discontinued and those who have jobs and wish to work at them are permitted to do so without interference."

Elections which will decide whether captive bituminous mines in the western part of the State are to become unionized are to be held within the next couple of weeks, Wagner said.

Takoma Plans 3-Day Festival

Town's 50th Anniversary Will Be Observed Nov. 24, 25, 26.

A three-day celebration to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the filing of a deed which marked the beginning of the town of Takoma Park will be held November 24, 25 and 26, it was announced yesterday.

Half a century ago the deed, filed simultaneously in Rockville, Md., and Washington because the land lay in both Maryland and the District, transferred 68 acres of the Grammar tract to Benjamin F. Gilbert, founder of Takoma Park.

The celebration is being planned by a committee, of which Dr. Frederick L. Lewton, mayor, and Dr. William A. Hooker are chairman and vice chairman, respectively. Dr. Lewton has appointed the Rev. R. Paul Schearrer to head the Sunday union services to be held in the Takoma Park Presbyterian Church, of which he is pastor. Among those expected to be present for the celebration is the Rev. Arthur M. Little, first pastor of this church. He will speak at the union services.

The anniversary committee will meet Saturday night in the town offices to perfect plans. All interested persons are invited.

Joseph S. Johnson, 47, Found Dead in Bed

Snake-Charmer's Pythons Will Rejoin Show in Spring.

Five handsome pythons arrived yesterday at the Zoo, where they will be established for the winter. They will remain only during the cold months, preferring the 85 degrees in the Zoological Park's reptile house to their former quarters in Sarasota, Fla. When spring comes they will take up residence in New York.

Dr. William M. Mann, Zoo director, received his new guests with undisguised pleasure, but the four reticulated pythons and one rock python, which had to make room for the newcomers remained stoically still and silent.

Undismayed by the cold-blooded reception, the largest of the new arrivals immediately wriggled his 9 feet of body into the pool where three of his hosts were soaking in siesta. He tongued about them for a sign of greeting, but in vain.

About this time a keeper unceremoniously lifted him out of the water to pose for a picture. The huge constrictor, accustomed to the gentler hands of a snake charmer, submitted with some resistance, then slid away disdainfully and shed his skin.

Meanwhile, another new arrival in the cell had draped himself about an artificial crag and gone to sleep. Only two of the pythons were placed on exhibition right away, the others having physical disabilities. One has a bump on his nose, a condition corresponding to sinus trouble in humans, but he probably will be in shape to join the family in a day or two. The other two have sore mouths. After a few mercurochrome gargles in quarantine, they, too, will be placed on exhibition.

The quintet are circus veterans, being the property of Ringling Bros.-Barnus & Bailey combined shows. During the past spring and summer they thrilled thousands all over the country, from Madison Square Garden to whistle stops in Nebraska, by winding about the dainty arms and shoulders of a snake charmer. They will rejoin the circus in New York next spring.

3,700 Citizens Are Questioned In Slayer Hunt

Fire Murder of Woman Brings Clew Search of Record Scope.

Rockport, Mass., Nov. 9 (AP).—The most concentrated hunt for a criminal in the history of police investigation in Massachusetts got under way in Rockport today.

In the hilly outlying section known as Pigeon Cove the first 100 of the 3,700 citizens of Rockport who will be asked what they know of the murder of Mrs. August Johnson, 55, were questioned.

Fourteen State troopers, four State detectives, the policemen of Rockport and two special investigators from Gloucester went from house to house in search of information which they hoped would disclose who beat Mrs. Johnson to death and then set fire to her home on November 1. Some of the questions asked were:

"Do you know anything that would help us find the murderer of Mrs. Johnson?"

"Where were you and what were you doing during the early morning on the day she was killed?"

"Have you any well-founded suspicions that would help us?"

"Has any food been stolen from your home lately?"

The yield of the first day's querying was the finding of a hammer in a shack which was broken into the night before the murder; a statement that a hammer had been stolen from a quarrying pit two days before the crime; and a report which may cause the police to drag a water-filled quarry hole near the victim's home tomorrow in search for articles of clothing.

Budget of Alexandria Schools Is Finished

The budget committee of the Alexandria School Board has completed the school budget for the coming year, and will submit it to city council at an early meeting. The figures, it is understood, will not be announced until after the budget has been adopted.

Gold-Buying Plan Praised By Vanderlip

Commodity Dollar Called Best Means to Insure Stable Currency.

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—President Roosevelt's gold-purchasing plan was indorsed by Frank A. Vanderlip, former president of the New York Clearing House Association and widely known financial authority tonight, as one that may prove to be "a boon to mankind."

Declaring the "classical economic theory of the gold standard" has collapsed, Vanderlip said even if the President is "tinkering with the currency" he is doing something "less dangerous than continuing under the evils of the old order."

"The plan for a commodity dollar," he said, "rests on the theory that if the number of grains of gold obtainable for a paper dollar is decreased, prices will rise; if increased, prices will fall.

Positive Results Seen.

"If it is possible to achieve a monetary system in which a dollar will have substantially the same purchasing power for goods throughout a generation and longer, we shall have done something more than tinkering with the currency. We shall have given it stability."

Vanderlip expressed belief that "the weight of statistical and economic evidence indicates the theory is valid, or at least that we may say it is hopefully probable."

He spoke over the NBC-WJZ network.

Check on Inflation.

"Fear of currency inflation is one of the chief reasons why I should like to see the commodity dollar tested and, if the test proves satisfactory, adopted. The commodity dollar provides a definite stopping place for inflation. The price index, rather than a printing press, dominates it.

"If we can escape the dangers of currency inflation through the commodity dollar, and at the same time insure a stable currency, which will permanently have a level purchasing power for the average run of goods, we shall have created a new mechanism which the whole world will be likely to adopt."

Old-line financial leaders and orthodox economists, viewing the test with suspicion, should remember, Vanderlip said, that they themselves "did not save us from catastrophe."

In the tax rate on real property, Alexandria stands tenth of 24 cities, with a rate of $2.40 on the $100, the highest being Clifton Forge with $2.85, and the lowest Winchester with $1.35.

In the ratio of the assessed value to the true value of real estate for 1931, Alexandria stands tenth with a percentage of 53.34, in a list of 18 cities, the highest being South Norfolk with 72.99 per cent, and the lowest Williamsburg with 25.81 per cent.

North Virginia Dealers Press Gas Tax Fight

To Take Code and Parity Pleas to Roosevelt if Necessary.

The Gasoline Dealers Association of Northern Virginia last night decided to carry the fight for modification of the oil code or the equalization of gasoline taxes in that territory to President Roosevelt if necessary.

Asserting that the National oil code, which prohibits distributors from absorbing any or all of the gasoline tax, will ruin 170 dealers and release 500 employes in nearby Virginia, the association named a committee to urge the alternative proposals before proper officials.

The committee, comprising F. E. Dove, A. M. Renschel and W. E. Ball, will first consult Senator Harry Flood Byrd and Representative Howard W. Smith, and then will seek an audience with Secretary Ickes, public works administrator.

Should Ickes deny them a hearing or refuse to modify the oil code to meet local conditions, the committee is authorized to appeal to the President.

The code, which becomes effective December 1, will eliminate the practice of distributors absorbing 2 cents of the Virginia State tax of 5 cents on a gallon of gasoline. The northern Virginia dealers, who absorb another cent, thereby bringing down the price of gas to Washington prices, declare they can not take over the other 2 cents and stay in business. Likewise, they contend, a 2-cent difference in price would drive all their patrons to District stations.

Too Small

Department of Commerce Outgrows Building.

The $17,500,000 Department of Commerce Building, designed to take care of Federal expansion for 15 years, yesterday proved inadequate for one of the several new activities of the Administration.

One hundred employes of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, including a dozen executives, moved into rented quarters in the Standard Oil Building, Third street and Constitution avenue.

It was planned to move into the temporary building owned by the Government, but it was decided that such nonfireproof structures are not suitable for the storing of bonds and records of the corporation.

Oil Leak Starts Fire.

Apparently starting from a leak in the oil furnace, a fire did $50 damage to the furnace in the basement of Velati's restaurant and candy shop at 620 Ninth street northwest, last night.

Medieval Pomp Marks Entry Of Lord Mayor

MacDonald in Address Hopes Roosevelt May Win Recovery.

London, Nov. 9 (AP).—Before a richly dressed throng which gathered with all the pomp of medieval London as guests of the new lord mayor today, Prime Minister MacDonald expressed the hope that President Roosevelt "may speedily find a way to recovery."

Ambassador Bingham was present.

The scene was the Guildhall, the fifteenth century banqueting hall whose fluttering candles and stained glass windows made it appear more like the nave of some ancient cathedral.

The host was Sheriff Sir Charles Collett, the lord mayor, who earlier had gone to the law courts to take the oath of office, in an ancient gilded coach escorted by his chaplain, the mace bearer and the sword bearer.

The prime minister delivered what tradition decrees must be the government's views of British foreign policy.

"The present position of Germany is not good for Germany. It is not good for Europe."

President Roosevelt has started "one of the boldest and most difficult experiments in trade recovery any statesman is called upon to undertake," Mr. MacDonald asserted.

"We will watch, sometimes with anxiety, but never without fervent hope, that he may speedily find the way to recovery."
